A Red Germany Next? Gay Tunes Not Enough. Hitler's Absurd Apes. Are American Men Ugly?

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

FOR THE WORLD at large, news from Germany is the important news. A few killings, suicides and arrests will not put an end to such violent dissatisfaction, and the world wonders what will happen next.

IN FRANCE, public satisfaction is not concealed. The Germans are fighting each other; that will postpone their fighting the French again. Britain, highly indignant because Germany has ceased paying debts, is pleased to hear of trouble for Hitler, but worries about the next news.

IS THE HITLER-NAZI German government to make way for a Red-Communist government, or lack of government? When a republic breaks down, dictatorship comes, and when dictatorship breaks, anarchy, or extreme radicalism in some form is apt to follow. What man can do to dispel public gloom, Hitler is doing in Berlin. Newspaper sellers carry big placards reading "good news."

Coffee houses and restaurant bands are ordered to play "jolly marches and gay tunes, and radio stations, by order, broadcast only cheerful, popular tunes."

BUT YOU CANNOT dispel underlying dissatisfaction or desperate economic conditions with lively music.

The probability is that events to come will not be suggestive of "gay and catchy tunes."

EVENTS ACCOMPANYING Hitler's rapid and overwhelmingly rapid blows at treachery within his party were tragic. At three in the morning he strode into the bedroom where Capt. Roehm, head of Hitler's storm troops, lay. Roehm, meekly submitting to vituperations poured upon him by his chief, was dismissed from his post, and was later executed.

Across the hall from Roehm's bedroom, Hitler found his trusted aide Herr Heines, under conditions recalling a shameful scandal of the days of William the Second. Heines was killed, it is not told just how.

ACCUSATIONS of basest immorality are made against some in Hitler's inner circle, but the accusations do not touch him.

CHARLES L. FLICK wires to Universal Service from Berlin "firing squads lined Nazi reactionaries of both right and left wings, against brick walls in prison yards. As day drew to a close between fifty and one hundred persons, many high in Nazi and government circles, were summarily executed or committed suicide."

HITLER HIMSELF makes plain the nature of charges against officers in his storm troops, charges that cannot be specified in public print in this country. Referring to certain crimes, he makes this statement:

"Every mother should be able to place her son in a storm troop without any fear that he could be morally ruined. I desire men in the party and not absurd apes."

That there should have been many absurd and shamefully degraded "apes" enrolled under the Nazi banner is not surprising. A government that permits and encourages sadistic cruelty may expect unpleasant by-products.

IT IS PROBABLE that many incidents in connection with the uprising universally published, and in good faith will prove to be untrue or exaggerated. But there is no doubt that a widespread plot against Hitler in his own troops was serious enough to send him from his bed at two in the morning, arresting his high officials, tearing their insignia from their breasts with his own hands, ordering, personally, arrests and executions.

HERR HANFSTAENGL, close personal friend of Hitler now in America to attend his Harvard College reunion and the wedding of the young Astor boy at Newport, expresses the opinion that "Hitler will last for 1,000 years. (Meaning his theories, not himself, presumably). Disturbances will come and go, but Hitler will remain. As fast as one of our leaders is killed, others will rise." He added, significantly, "and some one will pay for this revolt."

Hitler makes it clear that he will permit no more plotting or "absurd ape" occurrances. In a letter announcing the appointment of Captain Lutze in place of Roehm, Hitler says "Storm leaders and special guardsmen who do not obey his orders will be arrested and dealt with."

Hitler writes that the Storm Troops must help building a new people "with obedience and blind discipline."

ONE SMALL POSTSCRIPT, which will interest many in our older and younger "sets." Herr Hanfstaengl says "American men are so ugly. I do not see how these beautiful American women can bear to sit opposite them and look at them. But the astonishing fact is that they all have handsome daughters." It may comfort Hollywood and the great western spaces to know that Hanfstaengl has been staying at Newport.

BEAUTY DIES IN BRIDGE LEAP

Mystery Girl Hurtles 200 Feet From Span At Schenley Park

An unidentified girl, about 25, pretty and dressed stylishly, clambered over the railing of the Wilmot Street Bridge at the approach to Schenley Park this afternoon and leaped 200 feet to her death.

Hours later while the crushed body lay in the morgue, police were attempting to identify her and to uncover the motive that drove her to such a tragic death.

One possible explanation was given by a brown leather purse—it contained only 32 cents. Besides there were two keys, three car checks and two handkerchiefs, one with the monogram G in red and the other with a similar monogram in blue.

The girl was attired in a black dress with yellow bodice, brown silk stockings, black shoes and a black turban decorated with bits of white fur. She had dark brown hair, brown eyes, was about 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighed about 100 pounds.

Her crumpled body was picked up from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks beneath the bridge by Patrolmen William Kent and Dean Moriarity, attached to the Oakland Police Station. They had been summoned by a telephone call sent to the station.

They rushed the girl to the Montefiore Hospital. She still was breathing faintly. Life flickered in her body for nine minutes, then expired.

BIG GUNS ROAR IN GERMANY

Bombardment Heard Near Munich, Seat Of Revolution

VIENNA, July 2.—(AP.)—The newspaper Telegraf in a dispatch from Linz said travelers arriving there from the Austro-German border this morning heard cannon fire in the direction of Munich.

There was no confirmation as yet of the reports.

The travelers insisted they clearly heard uninterrupted artillery fire.

It was recalled that the February artillery bombardment in Vienna also was clearly heard for some distance.

Those reporting today's firing seemed unclear as to its location, except that it was somewhere between Passau, Germany, and Munich.

Munich was the center of Chancellor Hitler's "mopping up" campaign Saturday. Several Nazi storm troop leaders were executed and others were killed yesterday.

It was understood that the entire Austro-German border is being closely watched from both sides.

The German government, it was asserted, wishes to prevent fugitives escaping into Austria and to prevent the entry of radical elements into Germany. Despite these measures it was reported, however, that a number of fugitives succeeded in entering Austria.

Hitler, Believed 'Sissie', Revealed As 'Robespierre'

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

BERLIN, July 2.—Hitler has shot his best friend. Hitler has shot eight of his closest onetime friends. He has shot, too, his most dangerous enemy. Hitler, whom the world called a "softie," whom outsiders thought a "sissy," has become overnight the Robespierre of the Nazi revolution.

In the flame of fury against disloyalty and worse, Hitler has begun to kill like Robespierre, "the incorruptible." He has sent his bullets against men who, former friends or not, aroused his fanatic moral conscience. Nazis now have begun to kill each other. But Robespierre met the same fate he dealt his enemies, and today Germany asks where, when and with whom will the killing stop?

MELODRAMA ABROAD

No invention of a fiction writer could equal the wildly improbable melodrama of the last 48 hours' events in Germany. Picture it. Hitler on Thursday peacefully attends the wedding of a Nazi underling in Essen. On Friday night Hitler in the ancient university town of Bonn received the word which he at first refuses to believe. But Goering's secret police pile damning evidence before him that his best friend, Capt. Ernst Roehm, head of all the 2,000,000 Storm Troops together, with half a dozen of Hitler's oldest collaborators, was planning revolt. At midnight Hitler takes an airplane from Bonn, arrives at Munich at 4 o'clock Saturday morning. There he learns the whereabouts of Roehm, his best friend. Roehm is the only man in the party who exchanges with Hitler that all important intimate "du," which

GOERING SLATED FOR JOB

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

BERLIN, July 2.—A boldstroke from President Paul von Hindenburg today, calling the Reichswehr to the defense of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen's safety, was quickly followed by advices from usually well informed quarters that the Vice Chancellor would resig, or would be ousted at the instigation of Chancellor Hitler, probably tomorrow.

Advisers said that Prussian Premier Hermann Wilhelm Goering would succeed Von Papen in the vice chancellory.

President oVn Hindenburg, who earlier in the day had sent his congratulations and blessings to both Hitler and Goering, threatened a state of siege if Von Papen were victimized for his recent bold stand in criticizing some Nazi policies.

A guard of special Black-Shirt soldiers was delegated to insure Von Papen's safety.

The ultimate fate of the vice chancellor, bitter Conservative critic of some of the Nazi methods, had become a question of burning moment in Germany when his friend and patron, President Von Hindenburg gave his blessing to Chancellor Hitler.

"You have saved the German people from serious dangers. I express to you my deep thanks and gratitude, with cordial regards."

HINDENBURG RECOVERING

The 86-year-old President's condition yesterday had been so alarming that a "major medical council" was called. Once again his vitality, often amazing to physicians, enabled him to make a quick recovery.

So far as was known to the general public Von Papen was still forbidden to leave his apartment adjoining Hitler's. Several of his close collaborators were dead.

Those executed in Saturday's ruthless "liquidation" of Nazi extremists and rightists opposed to the Nazi regime, included Werner von Alvensleben, Von Papen's close friend. The Vice Chancellor's adjutant, Friedrich von Tschirsky, was reported to have committed suicide. Von Papen's secretary, Hubert von Bose was said to have gone the same way.

FACE FIRING SQUAD

Others close to Von Papen were said to have been given the alternative of doing away with themselves or facing the firing squad.

It was apparent to all that Hitler and his chief adjutant, Goering, were, in the present situation at least, firmly in the saddle.

With principal leaders of the opposition already dead and other shootings rumored hourly, opposing forces had no directing heads to lead them into action.

Government buildings were still heavily guarded by police today and police with rifles walked the streets by twos.

The black-shirted Schutz Staffel, Goering's special guardsmen, were held in readiness for any emergency.

Berlin was going about its business, but the atmosphere was still tensely charged as rumors floated back and forth through the streets.

In these rumors France emerged as the "mysterious foreign power" which Hitler charged Saturday with having been in communication with the conspirators against him.

The French Embassy denied flatly that the French government had any connection with

'PRINCE' FACES DEPORTATION

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP.)—"Prince" Child De Rohen D'Harcourt, Greenwhich Village poet, philosopher, painter and paperhanger, today figeted in the custody of immigration authorities.

The "Prince," who was rearrested for violation of the immigration laws after Louise Krist, 18-year-old poet, refused to press a complaint of seduction against him, anxiously awaited a visit from his attorney.

So did immigration officials. They have deferred calling a special board of inquiry to determine whether D'Harcourt should be deported until his lawyer comes forth.

D'Harcourt claims Guthrie, Okla., as his birthplace. Authorities contend he was born in Germany.

Miss Krist is in the Florence Crittenton Home awaiting disposition in women's court tomorrow on a charge of being a wayward minor.

WARDEN KEEPS JOB AT BEAVER

BEAVER, July 2.—Hamilton M. Brown, warden of the Beaver County Jail, was fined $500 for contempt of court by Judge Frank E. Reader, today, as the result of charges growing out of the release from jail of John Oriol, a prisoner, to do political work during the primary campaign early in May.

Charges brought under an act of 1790, charging the warden with "partiality," under which Warden Brown could have been suspended or dismissed, were dropped. Judge Reader passed sentence on the contempt charge without comment.

A commission appointed by Judge Reader made an investigation into Oriol's release and reported that the prisoner, serving a sentence of two to 10 years for arson, had been released from jail May 12 to May 15, to work among his fellow countrymen for the organization headed by former State Senator W. D. Craig.

The probe also revealed, according to the commission's report, that Oriol had written a letter in Polish urging other citizen's of Polish extraction to vote for organization candidates and that he had signed 100 copies of this letter while in jail prior to his release.

2 Murdered In Steel Mill By Maniac

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 2.—(AP.)—A phantom-like madman who seems bent on killing off employes of the Wheeling Steel Corporation here shot and killed two workers in the mill yards today and disappeared in the darkness.

The dead are William Messer, 30, and Ray Kockendorfer, 38, employes in the open hearth of the mill. They were shot as they were reporting for work.

Last January, bullets came out of the darkness in the company yards, fatally wounding Fred Melshimer, 38, company railroad brakeman. On March 21 James Barnett, 28, another employe, was shot three times. He recovered and left the hospital last week.

James Stewart, a fellow employe of the men killed this morning, heard the shots and hurried out to the mill yard. He saw a short man running and pursued him, but when the fugitive turned he dropped to the ground. Without shooting, the gunman ran toward the Ohio River and vanished.

2 GIRLS BORN TO TECH COACH

There are two new members today in the family of Howard Harpster, head coach at Carnegie Institute of Technology.

They are baby girls, born in Allegheny General Hospital at noon yesterday. Mother and daughters are doing well.

The girls haven't been named yet, but the coach who was Tech's outstanding player of all time, said their names would probably be Mary Lou and Marcia Lee. The Harpsters have another little girl, Ann Elizabeth, 2½.

Harpster, who is a special football writer for the Sun-Telegraph, was All-America quarterback, as well as captain, of the Tech team in 1928. He was often referred to as the "quarterback with the brain of a coach." Following his graudation, he spent a year as coach at Shady Side Academy and three years as coach at Geneva College.

Last year he returned to Tech as head coach, the first alumnus to occupy such a position. Both Mr. and Mrs. Harpster formerly lived in Akron, O.

Marie Dressler Clinging to Life

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., July 2.—(AP.)—On the verge of death three days ago, Marie Dressler clung stubbornly to life today despite the seemingly fatal complications of cancer and uremic poisoning.

Beer Man and Wife Slain in W. Va. Park

WHEELING, W. Va., July 2.—(AP.)—Shot through the head, the bodies of Walter Duffy, 32, Wheeling beer distributor, and his wife, Dorothy, 26, were found along a wooded nature trail in a remote section of Oglebay Park.

Lightning Explodes Gas in Auto, 2 Die

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., July 2.—(AP.)—Lightning which struck an automobile and set off an explosion of the gasoline tank caused the death today of two men.

The victims are S. G. Darr, foreman of the Norfolk and Western Railroad, of Shenandoah Junction, W. Va., and Charles Hite, of Antietam, Md., also a foreman.

Find Pretty Typist Pistoled to Death

BECKLEY, W. Va., July 2.—(AP.)—Mary Lonker, pretty 22-year-old stenographer, was found shot to death today in the equipment room of the building in which she worked.

A small pistol was found several feet from the body. A Coroner's jury withheld a verdict pending additional evidence to be given it Thursday. Miss Lonker was stenographer for A. D. Preston, former Criminal Court judge.

Milk Driver Burned As Truck Overturns

The driver of a Rieck-McJunkin Dairy Company truck was seriously burned this afternoon, Shaler Township police reported, when the machine overturned and caught fire on the Butler road near the Glenshaw Glass Company. He was taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital, his identity not determined.

Priest, 76, Making First Trip by Plane

Father D. J. Maladey, 76-year-old pastor of Holy Rosary Catholic Church, in Homewood, planned to make his first air trip today. Father Maladey late this afternoon expected to fly to New York on a Transcontinental and Western Air ship. From New York he will sail on a Mediterranean cruise.

Delay Hearing Plea Of Doomed Woman

ALBANY, N. Y., July 2.—(INS.)—Arguments in the appeal for a new trial for Mrs. Anna Antonio, saved twice from the electric chair by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, which were to have been made today before County Judge Earl H. Gallup, were put over until tomorrow.

New Poison Murder Trial Denied Lawyer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 2.—(AP.)—The Arkansas Supreme Court today denied a rehearing of his case to Mark H. Shank, Akron (O.) attorney under sentence of death for a quadruple "picnic poison" murder. Gov. Futrell will set a new date for Shank's execution.

Woman Broker Falls 20 Stories to Death

CHICAGO, July 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Helen Critchell, 55, widow and insurance broker, hurtled to her death in crowded Jackson boulevard today from her office on the twentieth floor of the Insurance Exchange Building.

U. S. MOVE AIDS DISARM PARLEY

GENEVA, July 2.—(AP.)—The American project to curb the manufacture and traffic of arms, urged by President Roosevelt as imperative, was adopted today at a plenary session of the Disarmament Conference's steering committee.

The plan provides for internation registration and publicity and the strictest inspection and supervision of all armaments.

Representatives of Great Britain, France, Venezuela, Sweden, Czecho-Slovakia, Switzerland and Spain supported and paid tribute to the United States for its constructive proposal.

A Venezuelan representative said it would "go down in history as a great success."

A draft of the proposal will be sent to all governments with the idea that it will be incorporated in the general disarmament treaty.

An address of American Ambassador Hugh Wilson, announcing American acceptance of the plan as drafted, said it will be "an important contribution to that security which looms so large in the eyes of so many nations."

Milk Price Increase Urged by Dairymen

HARRISBURG, July 2.—(AP.)—An increase in the price of milk to aid the producer was recommended to the Milk Control Board today.

H. B. Steele, representing the Dairy Co-operative Sales Association of Pittsburgh, and E. W. Maxwell, of the Spring Creek Milk Producers' Association, said at a hearing arranged by the board, that Pennsylvania farmers are not getting as much for their milk as it costs to produce it.

Former Governor Dies in Tennessee

CHAPEL HILL, Tenn., July 2.—(AP.)—Former Gov. Henry H. Horton, 68, who outrode impeachment proceedings and had a longer continuous service than any other chief executive of Tennessee in almost a century, died at his farm home near here today.

Red Police Seize Sister Of U. S. Diplomat

MOSCOW, July 2.—(AP.—Miss Avis Thayer, Philadelphia society girl, who is visiting her brother, Charles Thayer, private secretary to Ambassador William C. Bullitt, was arrested today and held in police court for an hour and a half, for taking a photograph of one of the Kremlin gates.

The arrest was made by militiamen. They took Miss Thayer's film away from her and released her when her identity had been established through communication with the American Embassy.

Soviet officials said the entire Kremlin area is closed to photographers without a special permit, which Miss Thayer did not have.

PHILADELPHIA, July 2.—(AP.)—Miss Avis Thayer has been in Russia about 10 days, her mother, Mrs. Gertrude M. Wheeler Thayer, said today.

Miss Thayer's brother, Charles, whom she is visiting, was graduated from West Point last year. Another brother, George C. Thayer, Jr., was captain of the University of Pennsylvania football team in 1926 and all-America end in 1925.

Their late father was Col. Georg Chapman Thayer, captain of the Penn football team of 1880 and later commander of the 1st Cavalry Regiment, Pennsylvania National Guard.

Ex-Kaiser in Touch With German Scene

International News Service.

DOORN, Holland, July 2.—The former Kaiser was keeping in close touch with the situation in Germany today, it was revealed here. The international telephone from Doornhouse to Germany has been busy, as the man who once ruled Germany from the throne of the Hohenzollerns talked with friends and advisers in the Reich.

The Kaiser also listened to the various announcements of the Hitler ministry of propaganda and public enlightening over his radio. He would make no comment.

HINDENBURG ORDERS ARMY TO GUARD VON PAPEN'S LIFE

AIDE TO PRINCE HELD

Among the kaleidoscopic developments of the day was the arrest of Maj. Mueldner von Muelheim, for many years adjutant to the former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, who was taken into custody because of his known friendship for Gen. Kurt von Schleicher. The latter, former Chancellor and firm Monarchist, was killed "resisting arrest" Saturday.

Quarters close to the government indicated they felt the Hohenzollern house was in no way implicated and that von Muelheim's arrest was on a purely personal basis.

The former Crown Prince returned today from his estate at Oles Silesia, and said that he had been molested in no way while he was there or while he was traveling. He went to his Potsdam home immediately upon his arrival. Prince August Wilhelm, the Kaiser's fourth son, was reported on good authority to be at his home in Potsdam with his movements unrestricted.

In this connection it was pointed out that the whole former Imperial family appeared to be keeping strictly out of the situation. No member would make even the slighest comment.

DEATH TOLL MAY GROW

The number of dead in the week-end's upheaval was fixed unofficially today at 18. Observers expect this figure will be increased.

Estimates of arrests ranged from 100 to several hundred, with official figures withheld. Men accused of plotting against Hitler were arrested in Storm Troop groups in Berlin-Brandenburg, Bavaria, Silesia and Pomerania.

A special Storm Troop law punishes treason with the death penalty and Goering plainly indicated he intended to proceed mercilessly against mutineers and reactionaries.

Hitler had a strong hold on a bewildered Germany as he drove onward with his relentless suppression of the "second revolution."

According to unverifiable rumor, the number of Nazi sub-leaders in jail and awaiting trial has reached 200.

HEADS HAVE ROLLED

Heads that Hitler once said "will roll" have rolled. A grim new warning has gone forth that "those who conspire against the state may rest assured that they are playing with their own heads."

Men who were high in Nazi circles only a few days ago and who were ranked almost as national heroes are suddenly dead—"liquidated" in most cases without benefit of court-martial.

The number of dead was fixed unofficially today at 18. Observers expect dozens of names will be added. Authorities admitted that "some few additional names are yet to be published."

Ernst Roehm, leader of the Storm Troopers and a cabinet member without portfolio, was summarly executed Saturday after being given the alternative of suicide, which he declined.

A Foreign Office spokesman said Roehm "pleaded with Hitler that he himself shoot him, but the Chancellor saw no reason why he should honor a traitor by killing him."

MORE EXECUTIONS

Ten additional Storm Troop leaders were reported "liquidated" yesterday. An inkeeper and a lawyer at Munich also were executed as "traitors."

Hitler struck swiftly and suddenly Saturday after weeks of rumors of insubordination and plots. Some of the famous Storm Troopers, the backbone of Hitler's powers, indeed were already on the march against him, one source said.

Storm Troopers, under new leaders, are subject to immediate call to seize arms to protect the fatherland, although under orders to remain at home until needed.

They linked his swift actions with concern publicly expressed in several world capitals over the government's stability and financial situation.

Rumors of a possible return to a monarchy floated about. But the Hohenzollerns—at home and abroad—refused to discuss the situation. No word came from Doorn, where former Kaiser Wilhelm is in exile. Guards were placed about homes of Hohenzollerns in Germany.

Hitler's "heads-shall-roll" slogan was revived by Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, in a nation-wide broadcast. He warned "conspirators" that they were "playing with their own heads."

TENSION IN BERLIN

Berlin felt increasing tension. Policemen were on duty before every public building, some of them armed.

The Wilhelmstrasse, leading to the chancellory, is closed to pedestrians.

Crowds eagerly bought papers in the hope of getting news, but many of the questions in their minds went unanswered. The big query was "What next?"

In conservative circles it was pointed out Mussolini might have advised Hitler to clean up his party in order to get more consideration to his plea for armaments.

There also was a belief that some European powers might have let it be known that they would be more willing to "play ball" with Germany after a shakeup and removal of the more radical elements.

Revolt May Ease Nazi Persecution of Jews

BERLIN, July 2.—(INS.)—Germany's internal policies probably will be modified as a result of Saturday's spectacular upheaval, it was learned today.

There may be more moderation in the treatment of the Jewish population against whom many of the Storm Troop leaders now under arrest devoted their energies.

The entire political organization of the Nazi party will be regrouped. The Storm Troopers' enforced vacation, ordered by Chancellor Hitler, probably will be extended indefinitely. Members joining after 1930 are expected to be dropped.

All cabinet ministers have been ordered not to leave Berlin during the present emergency.

One report in diplomatic circles today was that Premier Mussolini, of Italy, in his recent conversation with Hitler at Venice, had advised him world opinion would probably change toward the Nazis if they dropped Roehm, Darre, Ley and Streicher, Storm Troop leaders.

Britain Jeers Nazi Charge Foreign Power Aided Move

LONDON, July 2.—(AP.)—Germany's official reference to "a foreign power" in connection with the revolt has caused widespread astonishment and not a little ridicule in British diplomatic and political circles.

Such terms as "silly" and "camouflage" were used to describe the feeling in some circles.

The general reaction is that the reference to a foreign power was injected into the situation intentionally to confuse both the German people and the world while the "purifying process" continues within the Nazi ranks.

The suupposed presence in Great Britain of former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening has given rise to rumors that he might be implicated personally in the plot and had fled here for that reason.

VATICAN FLAYS NAZI SLAYING

International News Service.

VATICAN CITY, July 2.—Because of the seriousness of the situation in Germany, Pope Pius today postponed until July 15, his scheduled departure for the summer papal villa at Castelgandolfo.

Doubt was expressed in circles close to the Vatican that the Pontiff would be able to leave for his summer residence even on the date now scheduled for his departure.

The Vatican is deeply concerned over the execution of Dr. Heinrich Klausner, head of the Catholic Action party. Reports that Dr. Klausner had committed suicide were disbelieved at the Vatican. An official said:

"We must strongly protest against the attempt to camouflage murder as suicide since the Catholic religion forbids suicide. Militants like Klausner would not dream of taking their own lives. Only recently Klausner made a noble speech to Berlin Catholics which was read with deepest satisfacton by the Vatican. It is deplorable that, not content with killing their adversary, the Brown-Shirts threw mud at this noble figure."

Boys Play Football With Dynamite

BOSTON, July 2.—(AP.) — A group of boys playing football in a South Boston park yesterday didn't know it but they were kicking around a bundle of dynamite.

Patrolman James White stopped the game when he noticed a brown substance leaking from the bundle, which was wrapped in newspapers. He opened it and found a small quanity of dynamite inside.

Hanfy Praises Hitler For 'Averting Ruin'

BEVERLY FARMS, Mass., July 2.—(AP.)—Dr. Ernst F. S. Hanfstaengl, confidential aide to Chancellor Adolf Hitler, believes Germany is marching towards "a greater, brighter future."

He speaks of Hitler as the man who has "averted chaos, and has not only averted ruin for Germany, but for the entire civilized world."

"Hitler has proven himself never greater, never more human than in the last 48 bitter hours."

So it is that Dr. Hanfstaengl comments on the Storm Troop rebellion in his far-off Fatherland.

It was his first public discussion of Nazi affairs since his arrival in this country two weeks ago. He came to attend his twenty-fifth reunion at Harvard University and stayed on to enjoy the peace and quiet of Massachusett's North Shore. He is the guest of Louis Agassiz Shaw, a classmate, at the latter's estate.

He was tanned by the sun, appeared thoroughly rested, and apparently was not in the least worried over the outcome of events in Germany.

"Going home?"

"If they need me I would go, but I am here and I intend to enjoy myself for a little while longer."

Happy Days're Here Again? -:- By QUIN HALL

As Marriage License Bureau officials opened their books for a new month today, they hailed their June record as an index of returning prosperity.

The Bureau issued 1,386 licenses during the "marrying" month, highest number since June, 1929.

Depression years dealt a staggering blow to romance.

Charlie Hendrickson, veteran of 22 years of service in the bureau, credits two factors for the increase. He says:

"Money and love, that's the cause of it all. They've been in love enough, the most of them, but they've just gotten the necessary money."

'SECOND REVOLUTION'

Roehm is in Wiessee village outside of Munich. There Roehm has set up secret headquarters for his conspiracy to force Hitler to make "the second revolution." Roehm wants real Socialism. He wants something very much like Bolshevism. He wants it and he has two million brown-shirted Storm Troopers under his immediate command. Hitler is commander in chief of the Storm Troops, but Roehm is his chief of staff and gives the orders.

Hitler learns Roehm plans to force his hand and failing that to arrest him. He knows Roehm has a large force of gunmen with him. Nevertheless at 4 o'clock Saturday morning Hitler dashes out of Munich in a motorcar with only his two most trusted bodyguards and makes for Wiesse.

There just before 6 o'clock as dawn breaks they pull up before the small cottage. Hitler enters it alone. In one room he finds Roehm asleep. In another he finds the huge brutal figure of Heines, head of the Storm Troops and police chief of Breslau, who was convicted of murder under the republic and since Hitler named him, has been boss of terrorized Germany.

Both men, so official communiques intimate, were found in "compromising" positions. Both men were notorious for their abnormal tendencies. The wording from official statements can mean but one thing.

HITLER'S INNOCENT

Hitler has often been suspected, has often been falsely accused abroad of being abnormal himself. This is not true. Hitler is ascetic. He is in fact and in the technical sense of the word innocent. For a decade he has protected Roehm against charges only too well founded. Now, with his own eyes, he discovered them to be true.

Astounded, wavering, shamefaced, Roehm and Heines watched apathetically as Hitler tore from their uniforms their insignia of rank. He declared them under arrest. He ordered them to dress and follow him. They obeyed like sheep.

As they came out into the light of the rising sun, three truckloads of Roehm's devoted bodyguard, all heavily armed, pulled up before the cottage. Amazed, they saw Hitler. He spoke to them. They listened. A shadow of hesitation, one sign of fear from Hitler could have cost him his liberty or his life. When he finished speaking, Roehm's bodyguard cheered. Hitler had won the most magnificent victory of his career.

SEVEN EXECUTED

Back in Munich Hitler ordered the immediate execution of Heines and six other of the highest ranking officers of the Storm Troops involved in the conspiracy. But it took Hitler 24 hours to bring himself to order Roehm to be shot.

Your correspondent saw Hitler and Roehm march shoulder to shoulder 11 years ago in their abortive revolution in Munich. Machine gun bullets drove them apart. The republic's police brought them together again at the trial for treason.

There Roehm, barrel-chested, thick-armed, with a face scarred with bullets and saber cuts, was Hitler's stoutest defender. Both were condemned to prison. When released Hitler commissioned Roehm to form the Storm Troops. He did it effectively. The two men quarreled. But when they parted Roehm wrote Hitler letters which sounded like the farewell of a sweetheart.

ROEHM RECALLED

Roehm went off to Bolivia to become colonel of the Bolivian army and chief military adviser to the Bolivian government. Yet in the whole wide world there was only one man who called Hitler "Adolf," and that was Roehm. Reaching near to power, Hitler again called for Roehm, made him head of the Storm Troops and it was Roehm's Storm Troops who brought victory to Hitler.

Against the background must be placed that scene when they gave Roehm a revolver and told him to "play the man."

Roehm laughed. He could make Hitler cry if he'd talk with him. But they didn't let him talk with Hitler. They shot him.

This brings the Hitler revolution to a new phase. It is a phase familiar to the Russian and Italian revolutions. In Russia it corresponds with the period when Stalin, fighting against both Left and Right, first expelled Trotsky, the Left revolutionary, and then disciplined Bukjarin and leaders of the Right. In Italy it corresponds with that long fight of Mussolini's with local Fascist tyrants who refused to obey Rome's orders.

FIGHTING ON 2 FRONTS

Hitler today is fighting on two fronts. Head of the Left wing was Roehm. He has killed Roehm. Head of the Right wing is Von Papen. Von Papen is still alive because back of Von Papen is Hindenburg and Hindenburg, although 86 years old, and probably fatally ill, is still head of the army and the army would still follow him.

But Von Papen's nearest associate, his principal adjutant major, Von Boze, has "committed suicide." Von Schleicher, one-time chancellor, one-time minister of war, one-time strongest man in the army, is dead, killed with his wife as Hitler's secret police came to arrest him. Schleicher had played with Roehm. Schleicher thought he could add gray-clad Reichswehr (regular army) to Roehm's brown-shirts and force Hitler to make "a real revolution."

But the Reichswehr has not moved. It is watching Nazis kill each other. Blood has stained their boasted unity. Hitler, the Robespierre, has tasted it for the first time.

Weather Conditions

Pressure is relatively high over the southeastern states and over the Northwest, while low pressure is centered north of Lake Superior, off the New England coast and in the Southwest. This distribution of pressure caused a general thunderstorm condition during the last 24 hours from the Ohio River southward, and in the Upper Mississippi River and the upper lakes section. The weather is warm over the entire country. Temperatures of 90 degrees or higher occurred yesterday nearly everywhere from the Rocky Mountains eastward to the Mississippi and over the Ohio Valley states and eastward to the coast.

River Conditions

The rivers are about stationary. Stage at Franklin is 1-10-foot below zero; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 10.6; Pittsburgh, 9.8; Davis No. 4, 8.8; No. 6, 7.2; No. 10, 8.3, and No. 12, 8.8. The dams are up.

EUROPE FEARS MORE STRIFE IN GERMANY

Return of Ex-Kaiser Also Predicted Abroad

Associated Press.

Predictions of a return of the Hohenzollerns and of further outbreaks were included today in European reaction to Chancellor Hitler's ruthless supression of an incipient revolt.

Hitler's "violent" methods were criticised by Engelbert Dollfuss, Austria's dictator, who said "does not the light at last dawn upon us that one cannot make a people happy with violent methods?"

Austrian newspapers were almost unanimous in predicting further clashes within the reich.

Paris interpreted the weekend as a victory for Conservatives and as opening the possibility for a return to the Hohenzollerns.

The violence, it was claimed, revealed a breakdown in the unity of the Hitler movement.

LONDON'S VIEW

Some papers accused him of employing the methods of gangsters and called the slaying of Storm Troop leaders "brutal murders."

In Moscow the leading Communist organ, Pravda, predicted that the small bourgeoisie in Germany which it said has been deceived by Hitler and the Fascist program, will be disillusioned by the "murders" of June 30 and join Communist leaders. The paper said:

"Hitler is now dancing on the heads of his oldest adherents. But Hitler is not Julius Caesar and Germany is not the old Roman Empire.

"The events of June 30 would have been more appropriate for Ecuador, but Germany is not Ecuador, and these murders will not pass without their effects."

Although Hitler has isolated the group of Ernst Roehm, late minister without portfolio, Pravda says, there are millions of Storm Troopers "who can neither be exterminated nor fooled any longer."

Washington Anxious Over German Revolt

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP.)—Anxiety and hope mingled in the minds of observers today as they read about the mopping up of Germany's abortive revolt.

Some feared that the violence in the Reich might make the problem of debts more difficult; others hoped that Hitler's crushing of so-called "wild men" might make the outlook for peace in Europe a bit brighter.

They wondered if the Hitler stand against the extremists might herald a modification of the intense nationalism which has characterized his rise to power.

From Secretary Hull down, all officials were keeping lips tightly sealed as dispatches came in telling of latest developments.

DARROW HOPES HITLER DIES

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP.)—Clarence Darrow, chairman of the American Inquiry Commission, an unofficial body investigating changes in German government, expressed the hope today that the German revolution would end with Hitler's death.

Darrow was speaking unofficially, after the conclusion of the morning session, to a group of newspaper reporters. With a benign smile, the lawyer said:

"I think Hitler is a very dangerous man and should be destroyed."

The commission is hearing testimony of eye-witnesses concberning "acts of Hitler, the status of woman in the new Germany, persecution of all sects except anti-Nazis and the state of the law."

TEST REFUTES POISON THEORY

PARSONS, W. Va., July 2.—(AP.)—A post-mortem examination today showed no trace of poison in the stomach of Helen Siple, 12, whose father was arrested after her death and the illness of five of her brothers and sisters.

The medical laboratories of West Virginia University at Morgantown reported to Prosecuting Attorney Alan G. Bolton that it had been unable to determine the cause of death.

The prosecutor said Howard Siple, the father, who formerly lived in York, Pa., would be released. No charges had been made against him.

Siple's other children are improving. The nature of their illness has not been diagnosed.

Treatment of Negro Under NRA Scored

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 2.—(AP.) — Resolutions condemning the administration of the NRA as it affects the Negro, and demands for a congressional investigation of the treatment of the Negro under "the New Deal," were adopted here by the twenty-fifth annual conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The convention scored the administration of the federal farm program and asked that the AAA improve the lot of share croppers and casual farm labor.

BERLIN TENSE AS HITLER FIGHTS

Police Watch Crowds, Many Ignorant Of Crisis

BERLIN, July 2.—Berlin drank its Sunday beer in the tensest atmosphere since the Nazi government came into power in January, 1933.

Thousands of uneasy, coatless and hatless Germans, with only an ikling of the tragic events which took place behind the censorship screen, milled through historic Wilhelmstrasse from early morning until late last night under the sharp eyes of the police patrols.

The strollers paused ever and anon before Chancellor Hitler's residence, hoping to get a glimpse of the one man in the Reich who knows all about what is going on.

Just around the corner in a building abutting the chancellory, Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen watched the procession as Hitler's prisoner, under orders not to leave home without permission.

TROOPS MARCH

Reichswehr detachmets marched with fife and drum in an obvious effort to demonstrate to the people that they still have an army, and one detachment paraded before Hitler.

When he came out to salute the soldiers the crowd had its only view of the leader.

In addition to parading the street the army, although relieved of Saturday's emergency orders, brought out several armored cars.

The feeling of uncertainty over what tomorrow will bring failed to interfere, however, with the typical German Sunday of thousands of men, women and children.

'HOUSE CLEANING'

Many of these people apparently knew nothing of the tragic events involved in the Nazi 'house cleaning."

Those who had read the unofficial communiques in the newspapers preferred not to discuss them until they had made sure that there were no government agents in the restaurant or railroad station where they happened to be.

Some remarked that they did not have to worry as long as they placed their faith in Hitler, "a man who knows what he wants."

No one seemed to give thought to the possibility that Saturday's eruption may mark the first of a series of startling events.

MEXICO ELECTS GEN. CARDENAS

MEXICO, D. F., July 2.—(AP.)—A strapping 39-year-old revolutionary veteran of mixed Spanish and Indian descent, Gen. Lazaro Cardenas, was assured election today as the forty-fifth constitutional president of Mexico.

The election yesterday was the most orderly and one-sided in the history of the nation. One person, an election judge in Ocotzintla, Vera Cruz, was shot to death in a scuffle, but there were only minor clashes elsewhere.

Both defeated candidates assented today, however, that the National Revolutionary (administration) party supporters of Cardenas violated election laws in rolling up an estimated 96 per cent of the total vote.

Gen. Antonio Villarreal and Col. Adalberto Tejeda both charged irregularities and said they would not recognize the results of the election.

Air Mail Flown At 6-Cent Cut Rate

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP.)—A flat postage rate of 6 cents an ounce for air mail service went into effect yesterday.

The old rate was 8 cents for the first ounce and 13 cents for each additional ounce. Postal officials believe increased business will offset any loss from the reduction.

Airplane Sleepers on N. Y.-Chicago Run

CHICAGO, July 2.—(AP.)—Airplane sleeper service between Chicago and New York will go into effect July 8, Lester D. Seymour, president of the American Airlines, announced today.

The new planes have a cruising speed of 160 miles an hour and a capacity of 12 passengers. The interiors are divided into six sections of two seats each and can be converted into six upper and six lower berths.

Mocking-Bird Food Bill Ordered Paid by City

The suit of Michael Mairoana against the City of Pittsburgh, which refused to pay for $15 worth of mocking-bird food, wound up today in a brilliant victory for Michael.

For three years Michael, who conducts the Art Pet Shop, has been trying to collect for the banquet for the birds at the Highland Park Zoo and today his dogged efforts were successful when Alderman A. M. Maloney entered judgment for the amount against the city.

Assistant City Solicitor William A. Stewart, representing the city at today's second hearing, produced a letter from Controller J. P. Kerr to City Purchasing Agent W. R. Dunlap which stated that Michael's mocking-bird food had been rejected because it contained too much gwelback.

But this simply amused Michael, who retorted that he had never been notified and the mocking-bird food eventually spoiled. So Michael got his judgment. Now all he has to do is collect it.

BABY, YOUTH DIE IN POOLS, SISTERS SAVED FROM RIVER

BATHER VICTIM OF GLANDULAR AILMENT

Orphanage Inmate's Death Attributed To Disease

A 3½-year-old boy was drowned near Ambridge, a 17-year-old orphan died in a North Side pool, and two sisters were rescued from drowning as thousands sought relief in cool waters over the week-end.

The body of Jerry Stein, son of Maurice Stein, of Ambridge, was recovered from Wallrose Crystal Pool on the Warrendale road, near Ambridge, last night, after an aunt of the child had stumbled over it as she was bathing.

FAMILY PICNIC

According to a report made to the Beaver County Coroner's office, the boy was found in three feet of water. He had been with his parents, a brother and his aunt to an outing at the park.

The family expressed the belief he had fallen into the water from a wall at the pool or had strayed away to wade in the shallow section.

Life guards strove for 10 minutes to resuscitate him and then four crews from Ambridge, Bridgeville and Sewickley toiled for two hours in a vain attempt to restore life.

The second death in five days in the city's swimming pools from a glandular condition was on record at the County Morgue today following the death yesterday of John Hudak, 17, of St. Paul's Orphanage, in East Park pool.

YOUTH NOT SUBMERGED

The youth was stricken in eight feet of water. He was hauled out by life guards who, believing him drowned, summoned police, who exhausted five tanks of oxygen in an effort to revive him.

The story of the chief guard, O. A. Felker, that the youth's head had not submerged, and that he had been taken from the water immediately after he had shown signs of distress, led to a post-mortem examination at the morgue.

The autopsy revealed that death was due to a condition of the thymus gland. Although the death was described at the morgue as being from natural causes, it was explained that the condition probably was aggravated by the water.

The result of the autopsy was identical to the Coroner's verdict in the death of John DiMaggio, 8, of Joseph street, last Wednesday in the Highland Park pool. At that time it was explained that the malady is common among children.

CONSCIOUS WHEN RESCUED

Hudak had gone to the pool for a swim with his brother, Andrew Hudak, of 1603 Radner street, North Side. Neither of the youths was a strong swimmer, the guards were told. Chief Guard Felker said:

"I couldn't understand how he he could have drowned. I was watching him in the water, and, although he showed signs of distress, he was not under the water. He was conscious when I brought him out, and he even grabbed the chain to help himself out of the pool."

Thanks to the alertness of Life Guard Stanley Maskell, or Pool No. 10, Monongahela River, Bunny Coyle, 10, and his sister, Alice, 12, of 1200 Fifth avenue, are alive and well today.

Maskell reported taking them both from the river pool within three hours of each other yesterday afternoon. In rescuing Alice, Maskell reported his right leg was cut by a rock.

IT'S NEW DEAL IN CIRCUSLAND

Listen, the New Deal has hit circusland. With what results?

The 50 elephants eat more hay, the lions roar louder, the tigers snarl more viciously and the giraffes stretch their rod-long necks longer much to the envy of the giraffe-necked women from Burma.

That, according to the officials of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus, is how the animals will act when the big show comes to town this week. On Thursday the big tents will be pitched at Exposition Park, North Side, and on Friday and Saturday at the East Liberty show grounds.

Deserving of special mention in the menagerie is Emir, absolutely and positively the largest Royal Bengal tiger in captivity, yes, sir! Take a bow, Emir.

There will be 1,008 other wild animals and 700 horses, not to mention 1,600 clowns, acrobats and other circus performers and attaches.

HUMIDITY ADDS TO HEAT

Another hot wave intensified by high humidity gripped this district today. The mercury was shooting upward and likely will reach 90 late today, Observer W. S. Brotzman said.

Thundershowers are predicted to bring temporary relief tomorrow, but no real break is in sight, according to the weather map. High temperatures ruled throughout the mid-west.

Yesterday's lowering skies gave way to sunshine late in the afternoon as predicted showers failed to materialize. The mercury rose to 86, sending thousands to swimming pools, parks and the open highways in search of relief.

Thieves Get $15 As Owner Aids Pool Victim

Returning to his locker after aiding in the attempt to resuscitate John Hudak, 17-year-old orphan, who died in East Park pool yesterday, Frank Kobelesky, of 411 East General Robinson street, found $15 missing from his clothing, he reported to police.

'MUSIC TO FIT' DUE TONIGHT

Director Oscar del Bianco, of the WPD string ensemble, will cast his eyes over his audience in Schenley Park tonight and then decide what music he will play. His purpose is to fit the music to the audience.

One thing is certain—the whole program will consist of classical pieces. But Director del Bianco will not go in for the heaviest compositions unless the audience is predominantly adult.

Tonight's program will be the first free public concert of the summer season. It will be given near the Phipps Conservatory.

ASTOR, BRIDE IN CHICAGO

International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 2.—John Jacob Astor III and his bride, the former Ellen Tuck French, en route on their honeymoon to British Columbia, arrived here in their private car today.

Besieged by a battery of cameramen and reporters, the young couple refused to emerge from the car or even to speak with newspapermen. Railroad officials said the Astors had requested absolute privacy. All blinds in the windows of the moving suite were drawn tight.

The car was to be moved to another railroad and continue its journey later.

Recover Body From Monongahela River

The body of Chauncey F. Baker, 48, Negro, of 2235 Bedford avenue, was recovered from the Monongahela River shortly after he had leaped from the Twenty-second Street Bridge, according to a Coroner's report.

PREMIER MUM ON QUITTING

EDMONTON, Alta., July 2.—(AP.)—Premier J. E. Brownlee, of Alberta, refused to comment on reports he will resign following the verdict of a Supreme Court jury which awarded $10,000 in damages to Vivian MacMillan, 22-year-old stenographer, who charged he seduced her.

The Premier's resignation would carry with it resignation of all members of his cabinet. Lieut. Gov. W. L. Walsh also refused to comment.

The jury of six men upheld Miss MacMillan's claim for damages in a verdict reached late Saturday night after almost five hours of deliberation. The young woman was awarded $10,000 and her father, Allan MacMillan, $5,000. Justice W. C. Ives said he disagreed sharply with the verdict.

BOY FLIER FAILS TO SET RECORD

Undismayed by his failure to set a new loop record, Pilot Bobby Pyper, 17, today was planning another attempt at the established mark in two weeks.

A low ceiling hindered him yesterday as he flew above Curtiss-Bettis Airport, but he broke his previous record for junior fliers by looping 37 times.

The youthful aviator said an altitude of 10,000 feet is necessary to challenge the standing mark of 70 loops. Heavy clouds, he asserted, limited him to 4,500 feet yesterday. His feat was witnessed by a large crowd attending the Sunday air circus.

E. T. Weir Drops Business Cares, Opens New Pool

WEIRTON, W. Va., July 2.—Delaying his breakfast and throwing aside the cares of big business, E. T. Weir, board chairman of the Weirton Steel Company, yesterday helped officially open a new swimming pool overlooking Weirton.

The pool was built almost entirely from funds provided from the estate of his brother, David M. Weir, who died in 1929, and was erected as a memorial to their mother, Mrs. Margaret Manson Weir. It is dedicated to the residents of the community.

Weir dived in following his niece, Miss Margaret Manson Weir, 18, and her sister, Frances, 21, both children of his brother. Coming out he said:

"Once is enough — before breakfast."

He was asked if it reminded him of his boyhood days. Weir, smiling as he doffed a blue bathrobe, answered:

"I should say not. It's not muddy enough.

"When I was a boy, the old swimming hole was a spot in Panther Hollow, in Schenley Park, back of where the Carnegie Museum stands. There was a little water mixed with the mud."

Deny Helen Jacobs To Wed Boston Man

NEWTON, Mass., July 2.—(AP.)—Sheldon F. Fisher, prominent Boston advertising man, last night denied reports that he was engaged to marry Helen Jacobs, of California, United States women's tennis champion.

Miss Jacobs is competing in the tennis matches at Wimbledon, England.

PET EXECUTED ON ORDER OF DEAD WOMAN

Mistress in Will Asks Parrot Be Buried With Her

CINCINNATI, July 2.—(AP.)—A 30-year-old pet parrot lay dead today near the coffin of his mistress—executed with chloroform by direction of the woman's will.

In life he bore the usual name of "Polly" and was owned by Mrs. Bertha Robinson, 72, of Indianapolis, who died last Friday. After services today, burial will be made in a Cincinnati cemetery.

"Polly" was given to Mrs. Robinson by her husband when they were married. The woman's will directed that she be buried beside her late husband in Cincinnati, and added:

"I also direct my executor to have my parrot, which I have owned for more than 30 years, chloroformed and, if the rules of the cemetery permit, I direct that the parrot be buried at the foot of my grave."

No objections were raised.

"It was her bird, and she had a right to do with it as she wished," said Mrs. Agnes Kelsch, of Cincinnati, a sister, who was with Mrs. Robinson at her death. Her sister, she added, probably feared the bird would lack the special care she always had given it.

Robinson died several years ago, Mrs. Kelsch said. Even before his death, she explained, the childless couple had lavished unbounded affection on the parrot, and had taught it an extensive vocabulary in both German and English.

NUDIST COUPLE ARRESTED

CHICAGO, July 2.—(AP.)—A "high-minded" student of divinity fetched Chicago's naked newlyweds, the Samuel Wallaces, Jr., into court today, the charge being "participating in an indecent and obscene exhibition."

The couple were arrested yesterday on warrants obtained by Attorney Mary Belle Spencer who led protests last year against Sally Rand's "fan dance" at the Century of Progress exhibition.

The attorney said the warrants were obtained on behalf of a client of hers, John Patterson, whom she described as "high-minded." Patterson, she said, attended the nudist wedding ceremony of the Wallaces last week posing as a cameraman.

The wedding took place on the Century of Progress grounds and was attended only by a small wedding party and cameramen. All the principals were unclad except the officiating clergyman, who was draped in an animal's skin.

The newlyweds have asked a speedy trial so that they may hasten to an Indiana nudist colony, where they plan to spend their honeymoon.

INSULL LOSES CONCERT SEAT

CHICAGO, July 2.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull, once backer of the Chicago Civic Opera, wandered down to the symphony concert at the World's Fair and sat in an unreserved section.

A large lady informed him acidly that his seat was "reserved." He protested mildly and an usher told him he could have the seat if he wished as it was not reserved.

But Insull said he had "enough enemies," and moved.

DILLINGER MEN SLUG DOCTOR AFTER AID

Gun Wound Treated; Trail Leads to Roadhouse

CHICAGO, July 2.—From the underworld hideouts of Chicago to the lake country of Northern Indiana, federal, state and local authorities sought to pick up the trail of man-killing John Dillinger and his bandit companions today.

Authorities expressed the belief that the desperadoes separated following the raid on the Merchants' National Bank at South Bend, Ind., Saturday, in which Policeman Howard Wagner was shot to death and Dillinger and his henchmen escaped with $30,000 loot.

Two of the bandits, identified as Homer Van Meter and George (Baby Face) Nelson, assaulted Dr. Leslie Laird, 40, of North Webster, Ind., early Sunday after forcing him to treat one of them for two bullet wounds in the arm.

After administering medical attention, the physician was beaten over the head with a revolver and left unconscious in his office. When he revived some 30 minutes later he found the telephone wires had been cut.

Dr. Laird identified Van Meter, and the description he gave of the wounded man led authorities to believe he was Nelson.

Some time after the assault on Dr. Laird, three bandits visited a lakeside tavern three miles northwest of North Webster.

One of the men was identified as Joe Burns, one of the 10 convicts Dillinger helped escape from the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City September 26, 1933.

The bartender at the tavern reported the men were well dressed and apparently were well supplied with money. One had a bandaged arm.

TWO SISTERS, BROTHER WED

By PHIL HARRIS
Staff Correspondent.

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., July 2.—Two sisters and their brother got up before breakfast to get married here today in a triple ceremony at 4 a. m. It was a great joke on friends and relatives, but it will take at least half a dozen ordinary weddings to use up the supply of rice and old shoes literally left waiting at the church.

Nellie A. Premoshis, 29, married Joseph Smelko, proprietor of a local slaughter house.

Bans for the triple ceremony were announced for the first time last week. Everybody agreed on a family affair, but vacations and honeymoons would have to come together, and this week was the ideal time. Through their pastor, the Rev. Father George Bullion, they appealed for special dispensation.

The three happy couples were united in marriage at nuptial mass in St. Joseph's Church at 4 a. m. The only witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Dixon, of Uniontown. After the ceremonies, the couples went their separate ways by automobile. Each expects to be gone a week.

PRINCESS BABS JOINS FATHER

PARIS, July 2.—(AP.)—Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani came to Paris by air today to join her father, Franklyn Hutton, for a trip to Czecho-Slovakia, leaving the prince in London playing polo.

The Woolworth heiress was in excellent spirits as she stepped from a plane at Le Bourget Airfield at 2:45 in the afternoon. Said she:

"There is no truth in divorce rumors about myself and the prince. The prince and I are quite happy.

"I am leaving tomorrow with father on a trip to Carlsbad. The prince will go there from London about July 15 when the polo season has ended."

Reports that the couple was renting an apartment in Paris for a "second honeymoon," were denied.

Persian Ruler Sails After Turkish Visit

ISTANBUL, July 2.—(AP.)—The Shah of Persia, accompanied by the Turkish Foreign Minister, Rushdi Bey, and several Turkish generals, sailed today for Trebizond en route home to Teheran.

Close collaboration between Turkey and Persia in all affairs of mutual interest in the Near East was expected to result from the highly ceremonial 16-day visit of the Shah to the Turkish capital as guest of President Mustapha Kemal Pasha.

COURT BLOCKS LIQUIDATION OF POOLS

Investors in mortgage pools were denied the right to demand immediate cash, Chief Justice Robert S. Fraser, of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, ruled today in upholding Orphans' Court in a test case.

Because of the stagnant condition of the real estate market, immediate liquidation of mortgages on demand of one investor would work injustice to other members of the pool, the court held.

Justice Fraser sustained Orphans' Court which had held that Roswell D. Crick could not collect $90,000 cash which he had demanded of the Fidelity Trust Company after the company had reduced the interest rate to investors from 6 to 5 per cent in 1932.

JUSTICE'S OPINION

Crick was one of 2,800 investors in the $18,000,000 pool. He gave 30 days' notice for withdrawal of his money as provided in the agreement, but the trust company refused on the ground that to pay would work a hardship on other participants.

In his opinion, Justice Fraser said:

"In the depressed state of the real estate market, it was impossible for the trustee at the time of the termination of the agreement to make prompt liquidation of its securities without injustice to other participants in the mortgage pool.

RULING IMPORTANT

"In the circumstances, no duty was imposed upon the trustee other than to issue a participation certificate to appellant stating his interest in the fund. Had the trust agreement specifically stated that donor might demand cash, a different situation might be presented, but no such question is involved in this appeal."

There was no allegation of mismanagement on the part of the trustee the court pointed out.

The court's opinion is of importance to a large number of mortgage pool investors whose income had been reduced by inability of mortgagors to pay principal and interest charges.

Pa. Supreme Court Cleans Up Docket

Chief Justice Robert S. Fraser of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, revealed today that the court has disposed of every case before it and will resume with a clean slate in the fall. This is the first time that this has happened in the 19 years in which Justice Fraser has been on the Supreme bench.

Justice Fraser returned today from Philadelphia, where on Saturday the court handed down the last of its decisions.

Rum Store Official Ousted by State

HARRISBURG, July 2.—(AP)—Officials of the State Liquor Control Board have announced the dismissal of Charles G. Kress of Johnstown, as assistant controller.

Acting on affidavits they said were obtained from employes of a Johnstown liquor store, the board asserted Kress presented an "I. O. U." for liquor purchased, later tore up the note and charged the liquor to the state's breakage account. Kress is quoted as denying the charge.

STORE'S CHIEF GREETS 500 AT PARTY

Col. C. O. Sherrill, of Cincinnati, vice president of the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company, welcomed more than 500 Kroger employes of the Pittsburgh district yesterday afternoon at a party in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

The affair was held in honor of the new branch manager of the Pittsburgh district, E. J. Chaplicki, and the retiring branch manager, H. V. McNamara, who is to head the St. Louis branch. Mr. Chaplicki formerly was assistant branch manager here.

Under the administration of Mr. McNamara the Pittsburgh branch has grown to one of the strongest in the Kroger chain, employes were told by Col. Sherrill, who, besides being a former city manager of Cincinnati, was a military aide to Presidents Coolidge and Harding.

All industry needs for a complete recovery is confidence, Col. Sherrill said. He also asserted business with the Kroger concern, steadily increasing in the past six months, had surpassed any other period in the firm's history.

The increase of business here, Col. Sherrill said, has made Pittsburgh one of the most important districts in the system. He added that a new expansion program is being planned here.

STORE'S PICNIC HELD FOR 1,500

More than 1,500 employes of Spear & Co. and their families attended the annual picnic held by the organization yesterday at The Dells, Wildwood.

Dancing, athletic events and refreshments were on the program arranged by a committee of which William Verner was chairman. The outing was planned by an employes committee co-operating with store executives headed by Nathaniel Spear, Arthur Guggenheim and William Lord.

Free transportation to The Dells was provided by the company. Awards were presented to the winners in the athletic contests and eight prizes were distributed to the holders of lucky numbers in a grand drawing.

MAN SLAYS FOUR MERRYMAKERS

EAST TAWAS, Mich., July 2.—(AP.)—A. J. Wood, 53, who said the noise made by merrymakers so enraged him that he slew four of them and wounded a fifth, was held for arraignment today on murder charges.

Wood, who walked to the county jail in nearby Tawas City after the quadruple slaying early Sunday morning, expressed no remorse. His only fear, officers said, was of mob violence. Precautions were taken, but there were no signs of disorder.

Those killed were Dr. Stanley Somers, 31; Sheriff Charles C. Miller, 38 (whom neighbors had called when the shooting started); Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hayes, age 35 and 31 respectively. Roy Hickey, one of the guests at the party, was wounded.

Prosecutor John Stewart said four warrants would be asked, each charging Wood with murder.

TROLLEY CRASH INJURES FOUR

Four passengers on an inbound Negley avenue car were injured when the car and a truck of the American Reduction Company collided at Baum boulevard and Negley avenue at 6:24 a. m. today.

The injured, treated for minor injuries at Homeopathic hospital, were Agnes Holden, Baum boulevard; Joseph Rothmar, Sherman street, Mt. Oliver; James McGurk, Rippey street, and Maurice Cohen, Colombo street.

PINCHOT SISTER DIES IN LONDON

MILFORD, Pa., July 2.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot has been informed of the death in London of his sister, Lady Johnstone, widow of the former British minister to Denmark and Holland.

Lady Johnstone, who during the World War was active in hospital organization and management, took an active part in liberal politics after the armistice was signed.

She was the former Antoinette Eno Pinchot, daughter of James W. and Mary Eno Pinchot, of Milford. Her son, the Hon. Harcourt Johnstone, liberal member of Parliament, and two brothers, Gov. Pinchot and Amos Pinchot, of New York, survive.

Guardian Named For 'Pretty Boy's' Son

NEW KIRK, Okla., July 2.—(AP.)—O. V. Black, of Ponca City, today was appointed guardian of Charles Dempsey Floyd, 9-year-old son of Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, Oklahoma's phantom bandit, at the request of the mother.

Black indicated the guardianship was arranged so a contract could be signed to display a motion picture of the child being baptized recently at Fort Worth, Tex.

Social Work Keeps Children in Homes

Mrs. Edith Miller Tifta, research associate of the Bureau of Social Research, announced today that 125,000 children here under the age of 18 have been able to remain in their own homes instead of being cared for by foster parents as a result of the effective work of welfare and social agencies.

Families of the children, Mrs. Tift's report showed, are dependent upon private and public agencies for assistance.

Zionists Will Ask Palestine 'Open Door'

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 2.—(AP.)—The convention of the Zionist Organization of America had voted today to call a conference of representative Jewry to ask Great Britain to open Palestine to all oppressed Jews of Europe.

The resolution calling the conference was adopted by 1,000 delegates at the opening session of the convention at the suggestion of Louis Lipsky, national chairman of the American Palestine Campaign.

Thaw Nephew Rites Delayed by Mixup

MILTON, Mass., July 2.—(AP.)—Arrangements for the funeral of Edward Thaw, Jr., of Milton, killed in an airplane crackup in Albuquerque, N. M., were delayed today because of a mixup in which the body of Thurle Ellis, 28, of Auburn, Me., killed in the same accident, had been sent here by mistake.

The body was to be cremated. Thaw's mother made the discovery and then shipped the body to Auburn.

Historical Society Head Starts Tour

Franklin F. Holbrook, acting director of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, left this morning for a two-day exploration of historic spots between Pittsburgh and Bedford. He will gather information and make final arrangements for the tour of this region which the society is conducting July 13 and 14 in cooperation with the summer session of the University of Pittsburgh.

Children Mourn 'Party Policeman'

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP.)—The annual party "Kelly the Horse Cop" gave for 300 Rockaway Beach children each year wasn't held today. Instead the children mourned his sudden death from pneumonia.

James W. Kelly, who was 48, and his horse, Pedro, were known to almost every resident of the Rockaway Beach region.

Mercy Flight Aids Two Ill in Yukon

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, July 2.—(AP.)—Pilots Steve Mills and Charles Hutlan have returned from a 1,000-mile flight to the delta of the Yukon and remote Hooper Bay, to take two persons to medical aid.

An Eskimo girl was flown from Hooper Bay to a mission hospital at Mountain Village, on the Yukon, and Donald Clark was brought to an Anchorage hospital. The trip was made in a seaplane.

FATHER SLAYS DAUGHTER WITH 'HIGH IDEALS'

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 2.—(AP.)—A half-cleaned pair of white shoes, a spilled bottle of cleaner and a soiled white cloth—these are grim reminders to seven small children in a West Zollarsville home of sudden death which has darkened their lives.

Yesterday, they marked the church-going preparations of their sister, Annie, who was at once the children's mother, caretaker and guide.

Today, they mark a void in the children's life that never will be filled; the loss of a 20-year-old sister who can't take care of them any more.

Annie, her body torn by shotgun slugs, is still at home—but in a casket, awaiting burial. And the children's father, Michael Chalidin, 44, is in a cell of the Washington County jail.

Police said the father shot and killed the girl in a drunken rage, while she was sitting on the steps of the little home with the shoes and the cleaner. A few minutes later and she would have been on her way to church.

The police quoted the father as saying he had quarreled with the girl and her sick mother shortly before he turned the shotgun on Annie. They had berated him for coming home intoxicated. Annie, in high school, had developed ideas of what a "nice family" should like. And her ideas didn't include fathers who came home intoxicated.

'PROF' ASSAILS EDUCATORS

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP.)—One professor assailed some other professors today for (of all things) their use of English.

Prof. R. O. Hughes, of Pittsburgh, speaking before the National Education Association, pleaded with savants to bring their language down to earth. He lit into a recently published document called "Report of the Commission on the Social Studies of the American Historical Association."

This report, signed by Dr. Ada Comstock, of Radcliffe; Dr. Charles Beard and nine others, has been interpreted as meaning the United States is heading for planned economy. Hughes challenged some conclusions, but what appeared to irk him was the language. He called it "completely over the heads of most of us." He said:

"I found one sentence that stretches over 23 lines and another over 21. We read sentence after sentence and ask ourselves, 'what the heck does this mean anyway?'

"Why should it be necessary to invent such a meaningless term as 'frame of reference' and give that as a title to a considerable portion of the book?

"Why can't cultured people, when they have a big proposition like this to put before the public, say it in clear, terse, everyday English?"

Predicting the general discussions on the recommendations would be handicapped severely by "this fault," Hughes said:

KLAN SLAYER'S PAL MURDERED

JEFFERSON, Wis., July 2.—(AP.)—Discovery of the beaten and bullet-punctured body of Earl Gentry, once tried with D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, for the death of Madge Oberholtzer, gave Wisconsin officials a slaying mystery today.

Gentry's body was found late yesterday, grotesquely slumped in his automobile, parked near a swimming pool on the Rock River.

Absence of normal amount of blood in the car and the fact that the body was covered with rugs led to a search of the home of Mrs. Carrie Gill, 59-year-old widow, where Gentry had lived for several years. The Sheriff said what appeared to be hastily sponged stains were found on the kitchen floor.

Mrs. Gill told authorities Gentry left her home late Saturday. The Sheriff said he learned Gentry spent the evening with Mrs. Gill's niece, Josephine Probst, at Fort Atkinson, near here.

Goslin Faces Suits Over '31 Income Tax

Tax liens for $3,740.38 for additional income tax for 1931 was filed against Thomas J. Goslin, 1615 Brownsville road, one of the "three Toms," of Monaca Club fame, were filed in the offices of the Prothonotary in Common Pleas Court and the clerk of the Federal District Court by Collector of Internal Revenue D. L. Lawrence. Judgments were entered in each court.

Goslin is serving a six months' sentence in the county jail, imposed April 9 by Judge Thomas M. Marshall, for operating a gambling establishment in the Monaca Club, across from the Oakland police station.

Laugh, Clown, Laugh Role Real to Singer

CHICAGO, July 2.—(AP.)—John Ehrle, tenor, sings the Pagliacci number at a revue at the World's Fair. It is about a clown with a broken heart.

He sang his number as usual last night. Ten minutes before he had received a telegram informing him his sister, Helena, had died from a heart attack.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS ::

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The inside story of how Congressmen slipped over that law allowing themselves to get relief loans from the government is one of the great political classics of all time.

Two Senators did it. One is a newcomer from a Mid-western state. You have probably never heard his name unless you reside in his state.

A fellow in his home town has a mortgage on one of his houses, but cannot get the relief offered in the Home Owners Mortgage set-up because the house is owned by a Senator.

The Senator went around among his friends in the Senate telling them the story and pointing out that such a situation needed correcting.

DISMAY

Another Senator, who has large cotton interests in a South Atlantic state, was more interested than anyone else. He is an old-timer who knows how to get things done.

He took the Mid-westerner's idea and expanded it. A nameless bill was quietly introduced, amending the criminal code so Congressmen could borrow from the Farm Credit Administration as well as the Mortgage Relief Administration.

Not a word ever got outside the inner Congressional circle about the bill until after it had been passed by the Senate and was pending in the House. Then the story got out and members of the House rebelled. Word was slipped from the White House that the bill would be vetoed if the House passed it.

PERSEVERANCE

Such a setback would have dismayed less spirited men than the two Senators. There was just one way for them to make the House and President accept their little bill, and that was to tuck it into some big bill, marked "must" on the administration program. They chose the housing bill, knowing full well the President could not veto that.

But so modest were they about their work that no one discovered their prank until four days after Congress adjourned. Then President Roosevelt's housing experts came across a strange sentence, away back in Title V of the bill. It did not stop with opening up the coffers of the FCA and HOLC to Congressmen, but took the lid off virtually every other government relief agency as well. Mr. Roosevelt hesitated but finally signed the bill and said nothing about the matter.

As a result of the successful fruition of this great work of relief for poor Congressmen, who only get $9,500 a year (plus mileage), a movement is afoot among newsmen to strike off a medal to the two persevering Senators.

The motif suggested is that of an eel on a background of two crossed palms.

BELOW BOARD

If you think there is any skullduggery behind this business, you are mistaken. You just do not understand. Any Congressman can explain it to you.

The explanation is that, after all, congressmen are human beings. Even if they get $9,500 a year (plus mileage), some of them are in distress if not actually in want. They have farms, homes, businesses (all kinds of business). Other people who have farms, homes, businesses are getting money from the government. It is rank discrimination for Congressmen not to get it.

To think otherwise, you must be a suspicious soul. You must believe that the Congressmen are going to exert political pressure on government officials to get unfair or even dishonest loans or that they will get more consideration from government relief agencies than the average citizen. You must suspect that, sometime in the future, these same Congresamen will next pass a law cancelling the loans they got, so they will not have to pay the money back.

By J. JAMES MOORE
Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Greetings, boys and girls! Every day brings more filled-out entry blanks from hopeful contestants in the forthcoming official Pittsburgh Model Plane Derby, to be held Saturday at South Park on the athletic field. It promises to be a "Red-Letter' day in the annals of the Junior Birdmen of America.

Ever since the announcement in Thursday's column of the change of the derby from Schenley Oval to South Park I have received a "wing load" of requests for books and entry blanks. Both the novices and the amateurs welcomed the change.

You still have time to enter this great contest and compete for the 18 medals and wing trophy. I have extended the deadline for mailing in your entry blank from Tuesday midnight to Thursday midnight. That gives you three days yet to become a contestant. Get busy now!

Non-Contestants To Be Spectators

The Derby will begin Saturday at 12:30 p. m.—sharp. Every member should make it a point to witness this great spectacle. Go to your calendar now and put a ring around Saturday, July 7. You can't afford to miss it!

Bring your parents, too. There'll be acres of room in which to roam around and witness the thrilling miniature armadas of the air zip and zoom through space. There are many cool picnic groves in the park where you can eat your lunch with your family. And by all means don't forget the swimming pool.

If you are having any difficulty in learning to build models, little problems that just don't seem to want to straighten don't seem to want to strtighten themselves out, here is your chance to pick up many valuable pointers from the champions themselves.

See the champs fly their models at the Derby. Find out what they did to solve their problems. All this information will be very valuable to you in preparing yourself for future meets which I am planning for you.

Remember, this is your show! You made it and you are carrying it through. The Air Pageant which was held for you we put on by outside talent. But this time you are to be the actors! The derby should appeal to every boy and girl member.

The contestants expect you out at the field yelling for your favorite. One boy or girl will win the city championship and when he or she goes to Washington to compete in the all-American Championship Contest that member will represent YOU!

Special Bus Rates To South Park Meet

If you are driving to the contest in an automobile you will find the roads well marked. The athletic field is located in the heart of the fair grounds at the south end of the park.

If you do not have a car special buses will carry you to the meet at a low price fare. Take a No. 53 Carrick street car to the end of the line—the Brentwood loop. You can get the Carrick car in the downtown district on Fourth avenue.

At the loop a Brentwood bus will meet you and take you to the South Park meet. The fare to the park and back will cost 20 cents, which is but half of the regular bus fare out and back.

The buses will run from 12 noon to 1:30 p. m. The return trip will be made between 5 and 6 p. m. Don't forget the time.

Herewith is a time schedule of the three flying events:

12:30 p. m. to 1:00 p. m.—All-balsa glider trial flights.

1:00 p. m. to 2:00 p. m.—Official all-balsa glider flights.

2:00 p. m. to 2:30 p. m.—Single propelled model trial flights.

2:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.—Single propelled model official flights.

3:30 p. m. to 4:00 p. m.—Double propelled model trial flights.

4:00 p. m. to 5:00 p. m.—Double propelled model official flights.

Answers to Some Of Your Questions

Several members have asked whether the single stick and double stick models may be both pusher and tractor types. Yes, they may be.

Others have asked me what is the best wood to use. Balsa wood, as stated in this column about a month ago, is by far the lightest and best wood to work with in building model planes. Experienced model builders like it best also for constructing scale models.

New wings and new cards will cost you 10 cents, according to regulations laid down by New York headquarters, so hang on to them. Try not to lose them! And don't forget to wear them to the plane meet!

Several requests have come from members asking for airplane plans which have been printed in the paper during the past weeks. I am very sorry, but it is impossible to send you back copies of newspapers. You will have to clip out the birdmen column each day and keep it on file.

Later we plan a scrap book contest. Some of you girls should do well in that competition.

Also after the plane meet I am going to try to get some full-size plans of all-balsa, single stick and twin pusher models to mail you members.

We will have another lesson in the building course for you tomorrow.

I'll see you Saturday at South Park!

MISS MARIE CRISWELL, 19, LAUNCHING HER PLANE MODEL

Model Plane Making Held More Fun Than Sewing

Miss Marie Criswell, 19, is the first girl to enter the Junior Birdmen's model plane derby, which will be held at South Park next Saturday.

Miss Criswell intends to enter not only the competition for all-balsa gliders, but also the single stick model as well, she said. She was asked:

"Are any other girls in your neighborhood building model planes?"

She replied:

"No. The only girl I know who is making any lives in the South Hills. The boys in my neighborhood are rather young, and not many of them are interested yet, but I think they are becoming interested."

"Do you fly your planes in your back yard?"

"Yes, we have a rather large lot. But it's pretty hard to keep the planes in bounds."

The young plane enthusiast enjoys visiting flying fields, where she finds new models to use as patterns, but she has never been aloft and hopes some day to soar in a plane.

She has no brothers or sisters, likes to read books, takes a normal interest in sports and enjoys the friendship of many boys and girls in her neighborhood.

She also aspires to sing over the air, having had several auditions and having sung once over a Pittsburgh station.

Explaining how she, a girl, happened to begin making model planes, Miss Criswell said:

"I thought it would be fun, so I got some balsa wood and glue and started to work. It's much more fun than sewing. Why shouldn't a girl make planes? The neighbors? Yes, I think they get a kick out of it, too."

Indications are that a full list of entries will be on hand for the first model plane derby sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph wing of the Junior Birdmen of America.

The meet will begin at the fair grounds in South Park at 12:30 p. m. Saturday. Everyone is invited to attend. Bus transportation at special rates has been arranged to connect between the park and the Brentwood street car loop.

VACATION SHIP OF PRESIDENT AT SEA

ABOARD THE U. S. S. GILMER, ACCOMPANYING PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 2.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt turned to the open sea today, striking out on his historic journey to the American possessions of the Atlantic and Pacific.

The cruiser Houston, carrying the President, neared Hampton Roads at dawn for a final exchange of official papers, after a cheering sendoff as darkness fell last night at Annapolis, Md.

From Hampton Roads, the President goes to the high seas, stopping briefly at Haiti Thursday before landing at Porto Rico Friday to travel across the island.

ROUSING FAREWELL

Mr. Roosevelt stood at attention.

A few moments later the Houston was under way, with the last flickers of sunset glowing over the shores of old Annapolis.

TWO SONS ALONG

Franklin, Jr., and John, sons of the President, were aboard with him. Mrs. Roosevelt and James, their oldest son, waved farewell from the dock with a crowd that gave the President a rousing sendoff.

The 13,000-mile route that lay ahead will take the President to Cartagena, Colombia, South America and Hawaii—the first visits by a President of the United States to South America and Hawaii—and thence to the American west coast.

Landing at Portland, Ore., about August 2, the President will travel fast, viewing at first hand the results of his "New Deal."

Congressman Goes On U. S. Trade Body

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt yesterday announced the appointment of Representative Ayres, of Kansas, to succeed James M. Landis as a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

Landis was named to be a member of the New York Stock Exchange and Securities Commission.

MacDonald, Ishbel Will Visit Canada

LONDON, July 2.—(AP.)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, who arrived at his home in Lossiemouth, Scotland, today, will sail July 12 for Canada, accompanied by his daughter, Ishbel MacDonald.

The Prime Minister is taking a three months' rest.

MRS. ROOSEVELT PAYS SURPRISE VISIT TO W. VA.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., July 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived by train today on an unannounced trip to West Virginia, where the homestead projects she fostered to rehabilitate destitute families are situated.

Mr. Work is superintendent of the Crown mine, situated at a settlement between Morgantown and Fairmont.

GOES TO LOGAN

Mrs. Roosevelt and her friends left the Work home by automobile for Logan, which is near the site of the Red House homestead project.

At the same time it was disclosed Mrs. Roosevelt on Saturday had made an unannounced visit to the Arthurdale project near Morgantown, where families of jobless men are enjoying her "new pattern of living."

She was accompanied Saturday by Miss Cook and Miss Dickerman, and by Representative Isabella Greenway of Arizona, Mrs. Mary C. Rumsey of the Consumers Advisory Board, Col. Louis M. Howe, a secretary to the President, William Astor, eldest son of Lady Nancy Astor, and others. Mrs. Roosevelt went to Terra Alta and returned with some members of the party to the capital.

MAY PROLONG TRIP

Friends of Mrs. Roosevelt said she expected to continue her trip, probably by automobile, into the Tennessee valley.

In Washington Mrs. Roosevelt's trip was described as an "off the record vacation." Her aides declined to say where she was going.

Former Senate Foe Of Free Silver Dies

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP.)—The body of former Senator Chester I. Long, of Kansas, who died last night in his seventy-fifth year, will be sent to Wichita for burial.

A kidney ailment killed the veteran Republican, who, besides attaining national prominence in the fight against the Bryan free silver drives, was president of the American Bar Association in 1925 and 1926.

JOHNSON MAPS REPLY TO NEW DARROW RAP

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson intends to fire the parting shot in his feud with Clarence Darrow.

He put his NRA aides at work today drafting an answer to the final report of the recovery review board Darrow headed.

Like the previous two, the third report maintained NRA fostered monopoly. In so doing, it said last night, the recovery unit became "not the foe, but the adjunct of depression."

'SINISTER' AIM SEEN

Despite its recommendations, the board said "there seems a sinister purpose to entrench" monopolistic practices "still more securely in the processes of the act."

Abandonment of price-fixing was recommended.

Since completion of the report, Darrow has resigned. Other members said they would take a recess until they received further directions from President Roosevelt.

In a chapter entitled "The Governmental Boycott," the board said Mr. Roosevelt's order requiring certificates of compliance for bidding on government contracts was eliminating many small firms which "cannot without ceasing to exist comply with the requirements that mean the surrender of their vital business secrets or the end of every chance to meet the stronger position and greater resources of more powerful rivals."

STEEL CODE TARGET

The report contained findings and recommendations for changes in 12 codes, among them that for the steel and iron industry.

Hitting the motion picture code again, the board said:

"The first means toward correction would be the abrupt dismissal of the present code authority and the choice of another that can conceive something of the rights of the public and has some other impulse than the extraction of fat profits."

Rust Engineering Co. Gets $500,000 Job

The Rust Engineering Company has been awarded a $500,000 contract to build the foundations for the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company's new continuous strip mill at the Campbell Works.

Several hundred men will be employed on the project, according in C. G. Thornsburg, vice president of the Rust Engineering Company here. Work will start within two weeks.

Material Ruin Faces U. S., Says Dr. McDowell

UNIVERSITY, Va., July 2.—(AP.)—The Christian church must save humanity from "the abyss of material ruin and spiritual despair," the Rev. Dr. John McDowell, former moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, asserted today.

He opened the round table conference on the function of the church in modern life at the Institute of Public Affairs conducted by the University of Virginia, saying:

"There never was an hour when the nation needed the inspiration and guidance of a compelling religious faith more than in this hour, and for such a faith the nation has a right to look to the Christian church. She holds in her keeping the future of our country."

Dr. McDowell declared the supreme task of the Christian churches of America is to help the nation "re-examine the foundations of her political, industrial, intellectual, moral and spiritual life" and to "inspire her to re-endow her citizens" with freedom, originality, humanity, hopefulness and peace.

One function of the church, the moderator said, is to test social theories "by the law of the kingdom of God" and to uphold those that agree with it and to condemn those that do not. He went on:

"Industrial secularism has brought modern civilization very near to an abyss of material ruin and spiritual despair. It is only the prophetic leadership of a Christianity revitalized by the sense of its vast responsibility which can achieve the rescue of humanity by the redirection of its thought and life."

Gas Station Men Voting on Union

Workers in filling stations of the American Oil Company today were voting in a government-supervised election to determine the extent of union membership. The vote is to settle disputes of wages and working conditions. The voting was being held in the Logan Armory, under supervision of Hugh Friel, conciliator from the United States Department of Labor.

Employes of other oil companies will vote at a later date, it was announced.

MIXUP OVER NRA AWAITS MOVE BY FORD

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP.)—This week may tell whether Henry Ford is to signify compliance with the NRA codes.

The outcome apparently has been delayed by a bit of a mixup.

A Ford dealer near here, who has lost out on government contracts because the Ford company lacked the Blue Eagle, submitted a "trial draft" of a letter to Hugh S. Johnson Saturday. It asserted the company had complied with NRA and would continue to do so. It concluded:

"We reserve, however, our constitutional statutory rights."

Johnson did not like that wording. He suggested it be changed thus:

"We reserve, however, such rights as we may be able to establish in a competent court of jurisdiction."

A satisfactory solution of the long difference between Ford and recovery officials seemed imminent. But in Detroit, Louis J. Colombo, a Ford attorney, said the letter did not come from the company, and that Ford acceptance of the code would await signing of the letter by a company official.

Dog of Pedigree Gives Blood to Save Mongrel

MACON, Ga., July 2.—(AP.)—A blood transfusion has saved the life of Polly, a black and white mongrel, thanks to the chivalry of a pedigreed Spitz.

Desperately ill with lead poisoning, Polly was sinking fast when her veterinarian announced that only a transfusion would save her life. An appeal was broadcast for blood and the owner of the pedigreed pet responded.

Polly rallied quickly. She was able to sit up today and gnaw a bone.

Youth Near Death In Picnic Shooting

John Pilik, 20, of Four Mile Run road, Fourteenth Ward, was reported near death in St. Francis Hospital today from a bullet wound in the abdomen inflicted yesterday in an argument at the first annual picnic of the Slovak Citizens Political Club of the Fourteenth Ward in KDKA boulevard, O'Hara Township.

According to county detectives, the shooting followed an argument concerning beer that developed between Pilik and an unidentified man. The unidentified man fired the shot and escaped, according to detectives.

RIVER PAGEANT AT ELIZABETH CENTENNIAL

With streets bright and banners and flags flying from housetops, Elizabeth today began a three-day observance of its hundredth birthday.

Twenty-five boats, arrayed for the occasion, were to parade down the Monongahela River past the borough today, led by the steamboat R. J. Heslop, which has been churning the river waters since 1879.

Capt. John M. Hysmith, owner of the flagship, will be its pilot, and will also act as host at a reunion of old steamboaters aboard his boat. City and borough officials of Elizabeth and neighboring communities will attend the reunion.

Before the celebration closes Wednesday night, a pageant with a cast of more than 350 persons will be staged, reviewing the history of Elizabeth since Gov. George Wolf signed the borough incorporation act 100 years ago.

The centennial was officially opened last night at a union religious service at the high school field. Dr. Galus G. Slosser, of the Western Theological Seminary, delivered the principal address. Dr. R. H. Kirk presided, assisted by the Rev. H. G. Howell, the Rev. R. C. Rogers, the Rev. M. C. Brubaker and the Rev. T. Jordan. The community chorus, directed by Thomas Grenfell, sang.

WINDOW 'GRAB' HOLDS 2 MEN

Two men were held for investigation today after one of them was reported to have stuck his hand through a window of a closed gasoline service station at Wood street and Boulevard of the Allies last night.

Stanley Rekowski, 24, and Herman Kerston, 24, both of Etna, told police they had a car belonging to a friend parked on First avenue when they were arrested. Rekowski's hand was cut.

Police said the automobile was owned by Leonard Curran, 25, of 4215 Bruce street, arrested a few hours earlier on a disorderly conduct charge on complaint of Mrs. Curran. Kerston was with Curran at the time, police said, and the latter asked his friend to watch the car for him.

MISSING BRIDE CASE IN FICTION FORM

Dazzled by first romance, Agnes Tufverson awaits the return of the glamorous "Capt." Poderjay, whilst in London his French wife, petite Suzanne Ferrand, scorns his protestations of love unaccompanied by hard cash and grants him only an agreement to "marry" the American woman.

The following installment of Winifred Van Duzer's thrilling, true-life serial shows in fictionized form the strange life of Poderjay and Agnes after their "marriage" at the Little Church Around the Corner and its sudden interruption on the Hamburg-American Line pier.

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

(Copyright, 1934, United Press, Inc.)

CHAPTER IV.

The bride was not young, but no one thought of that. In plain serge, with orchids and valley lilies at her waist, she seemed filled with beauty inexpressible . . . a radiance more poignant than mere youth.

People passing on the street saw her under the church portico, moving in that glory, and turned to stare. And sometimes sighed as they went their way.

Not one glanced at the groom.

He said nothing as the taxi jolted along, but she whispered Ivan!"

He kissed her then, saying:

"Lalkem! That is a word of my people, Agnes." It means 'my soul'."

"You feel that, too?"

"Yes, but nothing is as I planned. Nothing of this."

He gestured toward the dismal street, the gray December sky, adding:

"I wished to take you away, at once, out of this so bleak city."

HOME AND NURSERY

She laughed. Already he had told her about the business in London, so successful, but with its conclusion delayed, tying fast his funds. As if such things mattered now! She said:

"But another day we'll sail away, straight into heaven! Do you know what I've been dreaming about all these weeks? Your home in London. Is it a little house? That's what I want—a little house in the country with a fireplace and a picket fence."

A deeper note came into her voice.

"And a nursery, Ivan. If you could guess how I've wanted that. The emptiness that's been in my life! Empty arms. Empty heart."

Tears flooded her eyes.

He gave her a long, curious look and shrugged even as he kissed her hands.

FEVERISH GAYETY

For Ivan awaited her there.

Rather impatient, eager to hear each detail of her day, he always was waiting. He'd have done her work if he could. Already he had managed investment for her. She was ready to burst with pride as she told her friends.

But there were not many friends these days, though it is doubtful if she noticed. A few had called—once. Sometimes it troubled her vaguely. But he only smiled.

"I fear they don't like me, Lalkem."

"Then they needn't like me."

"You love me so much?"

"Of course!"

Sometimes late at night he talked. Hour after hour he told of his rovings, things he had seen, people he had known. Often she would fall asleep and awaken again to that gentle monotone.

NEIGHBORS WONDER

Neighbors heard it and wondered.

She didn't know that they said she was looking ill. That frequently she passed by without seeing them, a dazed expression in her eyes. That they asked each other if she was afraid, and why.

Christmas in the air when Poderjay begged her not to wait longer on his business.

"I already owe you so much—what is a little more? Let us go to London and finish the matter quickly. Then India, beloved. Settle your affairs so you need never return."

FIGURES IN THE NIGHT

Cruising by Grammercy Park on a stormy December evening, a taxi driver thought himself in luck when he picked up a handsome woman and her escort for the Hamburg-American Line pier.

He watched them move toward the waiting liner, bending a little against the wind, and stop under a light.

Hopeful of an uptown fare, he lingered. But the two continued to stand there, under the light.

When he drove off slowly the woman had half turned away, though the man was talking earnestly, palms lifted in a furious gesture.

(Next will be the fifth and last installment of the life and love story of Agnes Tufverson, whose strange disappearance is one of the great mysteries of modern times. It will appear in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.)

PITTSBURGH'S ORIGINAL BARGAIN BASEMENT

PITTSBURGHER FINDS JAPS 'FRIENDLY'

A nation of friendly people, where secret police constantly question visitors, is the contradictory picture Charles E. Skinner, former director of Westinghouse Research Laboratories, brings back from Japan after a six weeks' visit.

Skinner was in Japan as the second lecturer for the Iwadare Foundation, designed to encourage better relations between the United States and Japan. Throughout, he was the guest of the Japanese government, with an official guide always with him.

PROGRESS IS AMAZING

He describes Japanese progress in industry as "amazing." Skinner visited Japan during the World Engineering Congress in 1929. Since then, he reports, the entire country shows a noticeable increase in productiveness.

There is no National Recovery Act. Japanese workmen labor longer hours than American, six days a week. And many factories, working overtime, cannot keep up with the demand.

At the same time, Skinner explains, the country maintains somewhat the appearance of an armed camp. Describing conditions, he said:

"Strangers are required continually to identify themselves and explain their business by government agents and police. The process is always very polite but very insistent.

"I was given maps, showing the many zones where no pictures are permitted. In some of these places, you can get a permit to take certain pictures, but an official goes along and points your camera."

PAID HONOR

Skinner returned full of admiration for Japanese handicraft and art. During a visit to the Bunrakauza puppet theater in Osaka, he admired the thousands of small figures, so perfectly carved and elaborately dressed.

Breaking a long tradition of never parting with any of the puppets, the Japanese presented him with a figure of Kurgnosuke, chief of the 47 Ronin, principal character in a famous Japanese tragedy.

THOMAS WINS SOCIALIST TEST

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP.)—The leadership of Norman Thomas in the Socialist party had asserted itself with full force today and withstood an acrimonious assault on his position by the right-wing "old guard" in one of the bitterest state conventions in the party's history.

The "old guard" of the right, however, mustered a majority by its control of the party machinery in the state to have the convention go on record, 70 delegates to 43, against the leftist declaration of principles adopted at the Detroit national convention.

Thomas, though he admittedly did not seek it, won the nomination for United States Senator in the convention's major test of power—after he was charged by rightwing floor leaders and speakers with "thinly-veiled Communism" and subordinating the Socialist movement to his own personal prominence.

State Starts Drive On Stray Dogs

A drive on stray dogs in Allegheny County was announced today by the State Bureau of Animal Industry. Announcement of the drive followed receipt of numerous reports that stray dogs have killed several hundred chickens in North Fayette Township.

V. D. Johnson, bureau agent in Pittsburgh, said the stray dog menace in this section of the state is a serious one. Many of them, he continued are taken on into the country by city residents and abandoned.

Jewish Campaign To Close Tonight

The final reports of workers in the drive for funds to aid in the rehabilitation of Jews in Germany and the Holy Land will be made at a meeting in the Y. M. & W. H. A. tonight. Pittsburgh's quota in the national drive for $3,000,000 is $100,000.

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Here is a new kind of midsummer story. Bertha Maseth, of Sharpsburg, reports that the Christmas tree from last year is still standing with all its decorations. Only about 50 needles have fallen from the branches.

Perhaps she will still have it when Yuletide arrives again.

The dog in a story recounted by Mrs. E. A. C., of Ingram, displays the extra-ordinary intelligence and trust in humans of a small dog in difficulty.

The dog toppled into a deep pit from whence there was no escape.

The pit was discovered, and by the use of a flash light beam the small bewildered fox terrier was brought into view.

Mr. C uncovered a few boards over the opening of the pit and lowered a ladder which, when placed, was too short by three feet. Because of the narrowness of the pit, the ladder was almost vertical.

Mr. C. urged the little animal to climb the ladder. After innumerable tries in which the dog reached the height of three or four rungs only to toppie back to the bottom, he finally made the topmost rung and held on.

Now for the last three feet.

Mr. C. dangled a noose over the dog's head. At first the dog did not understand, but finally it dawned on him that he should put his head through the noose. He did, and a jerk from above lifted him to the top.

He stopped long enough to wag a "thank you" with his tail and then scampered off.

Mrs. "Brentwood" writes that in the past three months she has had four dogs poisoned and a neighbor lost a pet.

"It was horrible to witness the dying agonies of the animals, she said, and heartbroken cries of the children, whose pets they were, were even more unendurable.

I know that if everyone thought of the grief occasioned by poisoning of a pet, they would not consider such an act. If a dog is destroying your garden or lawn, report the fact to the owner of the dog and ask him to keep the dog lashed or report a marauding animal to the police.

DON'T POISON IT.

Notes About Radio Stars, Stations

By AIRCASTER.

Bing Crosby will be back on the air for the same sponsor as last season, on WJAS, Tuesdays at 9 p. m., in the autumn.

Many had thought he would change his allegiance.

* * *

It isn't generally known that Johnny Marvin's father, who runs a restaurant in Butler, Okla., is the champion fiddler in those parts.

* * *

When "The Goldbergs" fade out from WCAE, the vacant spot will be given as a sustainer to Eddie East and Ralph Dumke, who return to the waves Monday.

They will dramatize, what the lives of famous people in the news.

* * *

Likewise, when Babe Ruth folds his radio tent July 12, his Wednesday night spot at WJZ will be filled by Thornton Fisher, and on Friday nights Jack and Loretta Clemens will be entertaining you.

* * *

Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer, remember, is back in harness and will blossom forth pretty soon to advertise shoes by way of the WCAE channels.

Those yarns will leave KDKA's air July 18, and provide another spot for a sustainer.

An Important Letter

CHRYSLER CORPORATION
Detroit, Michigan

June 26, 1934

WALTER P. CHRYSLER
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

Dear Mr. Pritchard:

You asked a straightforward question and I'll give you a straightforward answer.

The De Soto and Chrysler Airflow cars will be a permanent part of the Chrysler Motors line.

Five years ago, we started work on a new type of car for our higher priced lines. We felt that cars in this class should provide more comfort, greater spaciousness and a better ride than had ever been possible before. Airflow is the result.

Before we built a single car we invested a great deal of time and money in machinery, tools and rearranging our factories. In less than six months we have built over 20,000 of these cars.

At first people were startled by the Airflow's unusual appearance, but today as more and more of them are on the road, people are realizing that here is a safer and better way to travel. The Airflow car looks different because it is different.

I wish that I could get every person who is interested in cars to study and drive an Airflow. Neither talking, advertising nor pictures can bring out the real features of this new kind of car. You have to drive an Airflow to appreciate the improvement we have accomplished.

Each day finds the Airflow car becoming more popular.

So, Mr. Pritchard, go buy your Airflow. You'll be a lot happier because you bought a car that will stay modern a long time.

Very truly yours,
W. P. Chrysler
Chairman of the Board

WALTER P. CHRYSLER makes public a letter to one of his friends, because it answers a number of questions of interest to everyone

Max Baer's Story of Life, Loves

Fails to Impress Dempsey With His Wardrobe

By MAX BAER,
World Heavyweight Boxing Champion

CHAPTER XIV

After finishing luncheon with Tommy Loughran, I dashed to my hotel to doll up for the visit with Jack Dempsey. I wanted to impress the old guy—show him what a real swell should wear. He's supposed to be one of the 10 best-dressed men in the world and I was out to show him a few little things in what's called faultless attire.

After thumbing through my book which told what kind of clothes to wear for all occasions, I rigged myself out in afternoon attire—frock coat, striped trousers, high silk hat, spats, cane and all the other trimmings. Boys, I was positively gaudy.

To make my appearance more impressive, I decided to take along Alden Humphries, my social secretary, and I told him to get into his happy rags, too.

Acquires Brief Case

On the way to Dempsey's I hooked onto a snappy idea. Ordering my chauffeur to stop in front of a leather goods store, I gave Alden some money—I forget whom I had borrowed it from—and told him to hop in and buy a brief case. When Alden came back with a very natty brief case he asked:

"What's it for?"

"To impress Dempsey," I told him. "Everybody that's important has a brief case. You carry it—and make it look important."

I didn't announce myself at Dempsey's hotel — just went up to his room and rapped on the door. Jack opened it. His vest was off; so was his tie. His collar was opened at the neck. Best dressed guy, eh?

"Mr. Dempsey," I said, in my best voice, "I am Mr. Max Baer."

Dempsey looked me up. Dempsey looked me down. He narrowed his eyes—squinted at me. He blinked. Then he got solemn, bowed very low, and asked:

"Ambassador from where, sir?"

Well, the old important impression plan was knocked out right there. I busted into a laugh. I couldn't fool that wise old bird. He knew me for what I was—punk fighter trying to put on the ritz. He poked out his hand, I poked out mine, we shook—and then he jerked me right off my feet and hauled me into the room.

Deflated by Dempsey

He took my hat and cane, and reached out, grabbed the brief case from Alden, shook it, punched it with his thumbs and asked:

"What's this?"

"A brief case, sir," I said, trying to get back into my act.

"I suppose you use it to carry around an extra set of brains," he asked.

I nodded.

"I thought so," he wisecracked. "I see it's empty."

After Jack had parked our hat and things, he bowed to me again and said:

"My dear Mr. Baer, will you be so gracious as to tell me what in hell is the purpose of your visit?"

"I hear you are the greatest short puncher that ever lived," I answered.

"Oh," laughed Dempsey, "so you came to make a touch, eh? Well, how much do you need?"

"Touch?" I repeated, puzzled. "Touch? What do you mean, touch?"

"Most of 'em do it that way," answered Jack. "They tell me how good I was—and usually it costs me anywhere from $20 to $100, but lately I've been working on cut rates owing to the depression."

"Hell, man!" I said, "you've got me wrong. I don't need any dough." (I was fingering my last $2—borrowed money.) "Tommy Loughran said you were the greatest short puncher that ever was; thought I ought to learn to shorten my punches, and that you'd show me how."

Advice From Jack

"Okay, champ," I said. "Let's go."

Jack started laughing.

"Sometimes I miss the chin," he said. "If I missed with you, I might cut your throat with your own wing tip collar. Take off your frills, dearie. You look like a big sissy."

"Who's a sissy?" I demanded.

"You heard me. And, listen, kid. I'm an old guy and all that. But if you try to slip anything over on me, I'll use up the one punch I've been saving all these years and knock you right into the faucet end of the bathtub."

When I had stripped, Dempsey looked me over carefully.

"Great shoulders," he said. Plenty of power. But you'll never be much on short punching. You're a natural swinger. I'll show you short punching, but you won't learn much. When we get through with the short punching lesson, I'll show you how to speed up your swings. If you can learn that trick, you can whip any man in the world."

Learns Valuable Trick

"No matter what sort of punch you throw," he said over and over again, "be sure to pivot with it. Get your whole body into it. Swing from the hip—not from the shoulder."

I never forgot that part of the lesson, and it was that trick of hitting with my entire body that enabled me to whip one man—another—and another—until finally I was champion.

As I was about to leave, Jack said:

"I'm off both," I said, looking at my watch, lest I be late in a date I had with Dorothy. "They're out—both of them. Goodbye, Jack, and 10,000 thanks."

"Okay, kid," grinned Jack. "I know you're off both. But be sure not to drink more than a quart this afternoon and give the lady my best regards."

LAUNCH INQUIRY INTO CRACKING OF P. O. STONE

U. S. Engineers Probe Breaks in Masonry Of New Building

An investigation to determine what caused the stone facing of the new Federal Building to crack was under way today. About 45 stones in the $8,000,000 structure at Seventh avenue and Grant street have cracked.

Workmen, under the direction of Maj. Robert Greenfield, United States construction engineer in charge, began erecting an iron scaffolding on the Grant street side. According to Congressman Henry Ellenbogen, the investigation is to fix the responsibility for the faulty work.

Two engineers from the public works branch of the Treasury Department in Washington are expected to arrive late today or tomorrow to aid in the probe. A represenative of John Macbeath & Son, Bedford, Ind., sub-contractor who set the stone, also will be here when the first stone is taken out.

The first cracks were discovered more than a year ago, and new ones have appeared from time to time. Pending the investigation a large amount has been withheld on the contract, it was learned. Maj. Greenfield said he could not estimate the sum held up.

Declining to give any opinion on the cause of the cracks, Maj. Greenfield explained that the workmen would cut out the upper part of the stone and then before raising the lower remaining piece they would examine the bedding of mortar. He said:

"There are 15,300 pieces of limestone and 1,200 of granite in the new building, and to have 45 cracked is not a big percentage, but we want to find out exactly what caused the cracks. Most of the breaks are in the limestone pieces."

DEMMLER FIRM IN STAND FOR INCINERATOR

Choice of N. S. Site Unchanged After Protest Visit

Councilman Walter R. Demmler refused to change his stand in favor of the North Side incinerator plant when a delegation of 20 residents of the district conferred with him today.

The delegation sought to have Demmler lead a movement to recall the measure, now awaiting Mayor McNair's signature, that authorizes purchase of a site and construction of the plant at Chateau and Reedsdale streets. Demmler voted for the site when the measure was passed by Council.

The conference was held as both the North Side distarict and the East End district prepared for protest mass meetings tonight. The East Liberty Chamber of Commerce is staging a rally at the Peabody High School at 8 o'clock to protest against the proposed plant at the Brilliant Pumping Station.

The North Side residents will meet in the Arena, 1100 Western avenue, at 8 o'clock under auspices of the North Side Board of Trade. Councilman Demmler told the delegation today that he was not ready to answer, but would speak at tonight's meeting.

The Rev. C. L. Daugherty, speaking for the group, told Demmler that he wanted to be able to tell the meeting that "Mr. Demmler will listen to the voice of the people."

Former Councilman Harry A. Little suggested a site be purchased from the Pennsylvania Railroad on Herrs Island. The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton informed Demmler:

"We can't understand what there is in this incinerator plant that was bad for Saw Mill Run boulevard and good for North Side."

DISTRICT READY FOR NUMEROUS FESTIVALS

Moyer Warns Danger Lies in Smallest Powder Injury

Pittsburgh and other Allegheny County communities made plans today for numerous Fourth of July celebrations, while officials pleaded for a "safe" celebration.

More than 3,500 persons, of all nationalities, will take part in the third annual All Nations Festival in Schenley Park, where 50,000 are expected, according to Grafton Duvall, general chairman of the executive committee.

HISTORICAL PROGRAM

The program will start simultaneously at the bandstand and at Flagstaff Hill at 2 p. m. and continue until 5:30 p. m. An evening program, with patriotic flag exercises directed by the American Legion, chorus singing and an historical pageant is also planned.

Stephen Foster and other airs will be played by a 60-piece orchestra at the bandstand. Dancing and presentations at Flagstaff Hill are being prepared by German, Bavarian, Hungarian, Ukrainian, Swedish, Italian and Greek groups.

Air stunts arranged by Maj. Hal Basley, manager of the City-County Airport, will mark the program at South Park, in addition to an athletic meet, racing and a polo game. In both North and South Parks band concerts are scheduled from 2 p. m. to 7 p. m.

The Woods Run Settlement will start its celebration with a morning parade and continue throughout the day with its program, concluding with street dancing in Petosky street.

Common Pleas Judge Ralph H. Smith will be the principal speaker at the Soho Community Association program, which will hold a street dance in Reed and Soho streets from 6:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

SEVEN DEATHS IN 1933

Pointing out that Pittsburgh last year celebrated the Fourth at an estimated cost of seven lives, Dr. Ray P. Moyer, health director, pleaded for strict adherence to safety rules and for immediate skilled treatment of any injuries that might result.

Declaring that the Fourth is the most perilous holiday in the year, he urged parents to explain the dangers of fireworks to their children. Four "dont's" for everyone were included:

4—Don't take chances in boats.

The Committee on Conservation of Vision, Medical Society of Pennsylvania, added a warning that hundreds of children suffer painful eye injuries and become blind as the result of playing with dangerous fireworks. Parents were urged to supervise these celebrations.

Fire Chief John Heinz declared all fireworks are dangerous, even the so-called safe ones. He added:

"A little common sense and precaution will do much to keep small fingers and toes where they belong, eyes uninjured and buildings free from fire."

POSTAL HOLIDAY

All departments of the main office, stations and branches of the postoffice will be closed all day, Postmaster William M. Turner announced. Special delivery and perishable parcels will be delivered according to regular Sunday schedule.

The steamer Washington will arrive in Pittsburgh from Cincinnati today for an excursion Independence Day to Rock Springs Park, Chester, W. Va.

A large patriotic gathering is expected to attend the dedication of an eight-foot granite soldiers' memorial in Service Cemetery, Midland, by Attorney General William A. Schnader.

A four-day celebration will be started the Fourth at Ebensburg fair grounds, where there will be racing, vaudeville acts and a midway.

A bronze tablet to replace a stone inscription on the monument of Maj. McFarlane, Whisky Insurrection hero, will be dedicated during exercises at the old Mingo Presbyterian Church, Finleyville. The tablet has been donated by the Monongahela Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

At the Pennsylvania Training School, Morganza, celebration will be featured by rifle drills, a field meet and a military review.

EAST END CLUB RAIDED, 2 HELD

Frank La Padrella, 41, of 6512 Shetland avenue, and Michael DeMarco, 40, of 5511 Baum boulevard, arrested early yesterday when East End police raided the Hazelwood Literary Club, 318 South St. Clair street, were held for court today in East End Police Court.

Police under Lieut. Michael Murphy testified yesterday they seized a stock of beer, whisky and moonshine in the club.

Also held for court were Walter Lipski, 39, of Blackberry way; Ben Goldberg, 25, of Herron avenue, and David Bernie, 32, of 816 Collins avenue, arrested when police reported seizing lottery tickets and gin in a place at 6263 Frankstown avenue.

Joseph Marmarosa, 44, and John H. Birck, 32, arrested when police raided the Manchester Turn Verein, 6133 Penn avenue, second floor, were held for court by Magistrate Charles Papale today on charges of violating the state liquor laws. Police said they were serving drinks on Sunday, and that some persons present were non-members.

Magistrate Howard B. McNutt fined five numbers writers $10 each in North Side Police Court yesterday, and four others, charged with operating lotteries, were fined $50 each by Magistrate T. L. Moritz in Center Avenue Police Court.

CITY GETS PWA LOAN FOR MART

A grant of $71,000 has been made to the City of Pittsburgh by the Federal Public Works Administration for the improvement of the North Side Market House.

The greater part of the market house renovation has been financed by the city, which has sold $210,000 in bonds for that purpose.

The work contemplated at the market house includes uniform stands and refrigeration equipment, new floor, modern lighting system and four main entrances replacing many small doors.

The control of the market house still remains in the Bureau of City Property, although a committee of five businessmen has the right to advise with city officials on management.

Press C. Dowler has been named by City Council as the architect to draw plans for the remodeled market.

Man Loses Voice In Auto Accident

ERIE, Pa., July 2.—(AP.)—Earl Rohr, of Erie, lost his voice in an automobile accident yesterday.

Found unconscious on a roadside, Rohr was taken to a hospital by a motorist. He rallied but was unable to speak. He wrote:

"Hit by automobile."

AIMS TO 'FREE' PWA FUND

Joseph C. Trees, chairman of the Allegheny County Authority, announced today he would call a meeting of the authority this week to approve the Federal government's loan and grant of $24,500,000 for pubic works projects.

As soon as the approval is given and attorneys have checked the legal phases of the contract the vast sum will be available for launching the big program that will give work to unemployed thousands.

Trees returned over the week-end from Washington where he had been conferring with government officials. The first project to be undertaken will be the toll-ramp at the south end of the Liberty tubes.

Stray Dog Injures Girl, Pet Bites Boy

Frederick Koff, 4, of 856 Spring Garden avenue, and Dolores Flaherty, 14, of 521 Reedsdale street, were bitten by dogs near their homes yesterday and taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

A dog owned by his mother bit the Koff boy in the right elbow. A stray dog bit the Flaherty girl on the ankle.

CAROTHERS DIES IN SON'S HOME

James Carothers, 83, at one time president of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, died yesterday at the home of his son, Samuel Carothers, of 7044 Woodland avenue, Ben Avon. Funeral services will be held tonight at the T. B. Moreland funeral home, North Highland avenue and Rippey street, with private burial in the Homewood Cemetery tomorrow morning.

Mr. Carothers was born in the Lawrenceville district. He was graduated from the Western University of Pennsylvania, now the University of Pittsburgh, in 1871, and 16 years later became engaged in the brokerage business. He became president of the Stock Exchange in 1903. He retired from active business three years ago.

Besides his son Samuel he leaves two other sons, John A., and James M. Carothers, of Pittsburgh; a daughter, Mrs. James P. Fleming, of Wanetka, Ill., and three sisters, Mrs. S. P. Montgomery, Miss Sarah A. Carothers and Mrs. A. E. Kincaid, all of Pittsburgh.

Man in Electric Chair Loses Out, Tho Sitting Tight

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

That's only the first day you read about. By the end of July it will be a heaping spoonful.

Now's the time to consolidate our own business and pay attention to nobody. That does not mean we will not get into trouble. Like the man in the electric chair, we can sit tight and still lose out.

It is too bad there must be revolt, shootings and disaster. But it is in the cards. And drawing two will not improve the hand.

There is one thing we would like to ask. When Lenin, Mussolini and Hitler fought the existing form of government, they were patriots.

But, whoever fights Lenin, Mussolini and Hitler are traitors. Give us the answer to that and enclose a picture of Whistler's mother for a reply.

For the best exclusive news tip of the week $15.00 will be given, for the second best, $10.00, and for the next 25 best, $1.00 each.

KEYSTONE BANK OPENS DOORS

The Keystone National Bank in Pittsburgh opened today prepared to pay in full depositors of the old institution. A. S. Beymer, chairman of the board of the new bank, located at 322 Fourth avenue, announced its deposits as approximately $2,500,000.

S. Clarke Reed, who has been receiver for seven closed banks in this city, is president of the new institution. It will have capital and surplus of $590,000, of which $200,000 will be preferred stock, $200,000 common stock, and $100,000 surplus.

Tech's Flood Expert Building Model Dam

Thomas Working on 'Key' to Tygart Project

Prof. Harold A. Thomas, Pittsburgh Flood Commission engineer and head of the hydraulics engineering laboratory at Carnegie Tech, is at work today completing a scale model of the huge Tygart River dam, key project in the Pittsburgh flood control plan.

United States Army engineers, through a $3,000,000 Public Works Administration grant, have already begun work on the project, to cost approximately $12,000,000.

The Tygart River unites with the West Fork River to form the Monongahela River at Fairmont, W. Va. The reservoir will be located on the Tygart about two miles above Grafton, W. Va., and about 10 miles above Fairmont.

The Thomas dam model has been constructed primarily to study the washing effect of the water falling down the dam into the pool below. Government engineers believe it will be necessary to build a concrete "apron" or cushion pool below the dam to prevent the rushing water from tearing up the river bed.

With the model which is one-eightieth the size the real dam will be, he will conduct a series of experiments to determine the best design. Loose gravel in the model below the dam will copy the loose rock and gravel of the actual river bed.

Maj. W. D. Styer, who heads United States Army engineers here, in charge of construction, names partial flood control, reduction of the Monongahela River's acidity, better river water and sanitation, and improved water supply for navigation as among the benefits the dam will bring to Pittsburgh and the Monongahela Valley.

The dam, to be one of the highest in the East, will be about 215 feet high from river bed to top of crest gates. It will hold back a maximum of 327,500 acre feet of water. The reservoir behind the lake will cover about 3,860 acres.

'CRACKER' MAY COST BOY EYE

A premature Fourth of July celebration is believed to have cost Lawrence Buyanski, 11, of Vandergrift, the loss of his left eye. The boy is in the Eye and Ear Hospital, where an operation was performed in an effort to save the eye.

Saturday afternoon Lawrence was shooting off firecrackers. He placed a cracker in a milk bottle and the explosion sent a shower of glass into his face.

Three persons today were recovering from firecracker burns.

Eileen Commin, 10, was burned on her right leg when a shooting cracker tossed from an automobile exploded alongside her. A Fourth of July explosive that he held too long caused painful injuries to the right hand of William Lasso, 22, of Whitaker.

Five Pittsburghers are among 150 community leaders throughout the country appointed to a Mobilization Committee for the sponsoring of Jewish welfare agencies and appeals for national and international Jewish relief. Local men named are Dr. Ludwig B. Bernstein, Charles Dreifus, Alfred M. Oppenheimer, Charles J. Rosenbloom, and Leon Falk, Jr.

Paralysis Epidemic Not Feared in City

Taking note of the epidemic of infantile paralysis on the Pacific Coast, City Health Director Ray P. Moyer has announced that no epidemic of the disease is anticipated in Pittsburgh.

Thus far, but one case has been reported in Pittsburgh this year, he states. Scrupulous observance of personal cleanliness, particularly washing of the hands, is the best guard against the disease, according to Dr. Moyer.

DRUGGIST HURT IN 3-CAR CRASH

A Mt. Oliver druggist was injured in a collision involving three automobiles on Saw Mill Run boulevard near Edgebrook avenue last night.

Paul Thoms, 30, of 69 Allen avenue, said his car struck one driven by Charles Jack, 2968 Knowlson avenue, after a tire blew out. Jack's auto then crashed into another driven by Frank J. Pike, 1305 Esplanade avenue, North Side, police said. Thoma was treated for lacerations by a nearby physician.

A large trailer, attached to a truck, upset turning from Oliver avenue into Bigelow boulevard at midnight after its wheels locked. Only slight damage was done, according to E. L. McFarland, 5847 Center avenue, driver for the United States Transportation Company.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., July 2.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, the President leaves on his cruise aboard what must be Jesse Jones' boat, for it's called the Houston.

Will Rogers

Germany has some sort of a custom where they allow you to commit suicide in case you have been found to be against the government. Over here we just let you go on making speeches, and it amounts to about the same thing in the end.

Well, they finally got that Astor wedding over with. There ain't nothing that will do more to add comedy relief to our reading of strikes, wars, revolutions, and world uncertainty than to read about a society wedding.

Yours, WILL.

Judge Lencher Sketches Under Wife's Eye

Judge Benjamin Lencher may have the last word from his bench in County Court but with his wife it's different, for his wife knows about sketching and the judge is learning about it.

Mrs. Lencher is the judge's teacher. For the past several months she and her husband have been seen strolling through Schenley Park, stopping now and then to sketch something that Mrs. Lencher decides is a fit subject for the judge.

Commenting on his hobby, Judge Lencher says:

Mrs. Lencher:

"He's a good pupil. And we both enjoy it."

12-Million Dollar Order Looms for Steel Firm

An order for work and equipment at a cost of $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 may be placed with the United Engineering and Foundry Company by the Great Lakes Steel Company, of Detroit, it was learned authoritatively today.

A continuous hot and cold strip mill to roll steel sheets up to 75 inches in width and to be ready for operation in 1935 is to be erected, according to plans.

George T. Ladd, president of the United Engineering and Foundry Company, confirmed the possibility that his company may get the job. A spokesman for the National Steel Corporation, of Pittsburgh, of which the Great Lakes Steel Company is a subsidiary, also confirmed that an inquiry had been made with the United Engineering company.

Ladd said the equipment planned is rapidly replacing the old-fashioned hot steel mill for the manufacture of plates, blue annealed and other hot rolled products as well as the highly finished cold rolled material demanded by automobile manufacturers and others who have requirements for highly finished sheets.

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Paula Bauersmith, another Pittsburgh daughter whom the theater has attracted, is to be married today.

And marriage will not spell the end of her stage career. For she's marrying Dr. Barnett H. Warren, of New York, whose hobby is writing plays.

Miss Bauersmith

One of his plays will be given in East Hampton the end of July. Paula has been rehearsing in Sea Cliff, L. I., and will appear in her husband's play.

Her parents, the W. R. Bauersmiths, of Bartlett street, have gone to New York, where the marriage, to be a simple ceremony, will take place today.

Paula did not make her debut. Instead she went to Carnegie Institute of Technology to work hard in the drama department.

In the home of the William McKennan Reeds, Fifth avenue, their niece, Helen Virginia Miller, daughter of the Harvey Millers, of La Jolla, Cal., will be married today to Carrington Brown, Jr.

Louise Seedenburg Married in Home

A pretty wedding took place this morning at 10:30 o'clock—that of Louise Seedenberg, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Seedenberg, of Beechwood boulevard, and John Sharer Allen, son of Mrs. Harry Lewis Allen, of Alliance, O. The Seedenberg home was the scene of the pretty ceremony.

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of Shady Side Presbyterian Church, read the wedding service in the sunroom of the home, which was decorated with ferns and roses.

A gown of white mousseline de soie, fashioned with long sleeves, flaring over the hands, and with a plain front, and ruffles down the back to form a slight train, was worn by the bride. She had a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried lilies of the valley and white roses.

After a wedding breakfast, Mr. Allen and his bride will leave for New York, from where they will sail for a Bermuda honeymoon. On their return they'll be at home in Greenwich, Conn., until the first of October, when they'll go to New York to live for the winter.

The bride is a graduate of Wellesley, class of '32; and of the Boston School of Fine Arts, class of '33; the bridegroom is a Princeton man, class of '32.

Pittsburgh Man Weds in Washington

Ruth King Molyneaux, daughter of Mrs. John Molyneaux, of Washington, and Ralph Grant Kennedy, Jr., of Pittsburgh, son of the late Ralph Grant Kennedys, were married Friday in the Italian garden of the Mayflower, Washington, by the Rev. Dr. John K. Cartwright.

The bride had as her only attendant, Edith L. McCoy, of Washington. J. Ewing Kennedy, of State College, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride was graduated in June from George Washington University. She is a descendant of John Jay, first chief justice of the United States Supreme Court. Mr. Kennedy received his bachelor's degree at Pennsylvania State, and his master's at George Washington.

Bridge to Open Benefit Series Of Congress

Although each hostess may choose her own variety of party and may make it large or small as she chooses, the majority of benefits to be given this summer for the Congress of Clubs will be card parties. Mrs. Sherman Massingham, who is opening the series on July 10 at her home in Crafton boulevard, will have a dessert bridge of 50 tables. The entire Congress membership has been divided into sections for the summer series.

Amaranth Chapter To Sponsor Bake Sale

William S. Roe Court, Order of Amaranth, will sponsor a bake sale in the North Side Market, on Saturday with Mrs. Sarah Pherson as chairman. Mrs. Minnie Shaw, Mrs. Minnie Loeffert and Mrs. Mary Johnston will assist.

Woman Lawyer Appointed by Council

Appointment of Miss Shoshana Garber, young Jewish attorney from Cleveland, as a field worker of the National Council of Jewish Women, has been announced by Mrs. Arthur Brin, of Minneapolis, president of the Council, and is of interest, of course, to the Pittsburgh section.

Miss Garber is a graduate of Columbia and Western Reserve Universities, with the degree of Doctor of Laws from the latter, and for several years has practiced law in Cleveland.

She did graduate work in Europe at the University of Geneva and the Institute de Jean Jacques Rousseau and further pursued her studies at the Sorbonne in Paris and at the National Institute of Industrial Psychology in London. During her residence in Geneva she was connected with the research department of the International Labor Bureau.

Miss Garber came to New York to join the staff of the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities and formed the Women's Division, a Junior Federation and a children's group for that organization. More recently she has been the executive secretary of Junior Federation.

The addition of a new field worker to the staff of Council is necessitated in part by the fact that Miss Cecilia Razovsky, field counsellor, has been released for part-time service with the newly organized National Coordinating Bureau for German Refugees, and with the German Jewish Children's Aid, Inc.

Wilkinsburg Girl Married in New York

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Ford, of Wilkinsburg, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Hildred Ford, to W. Parkhill McGowan, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McGowan, also of Wilkinsburg, which took place April 14 in Ripley, N. Y., with the Rev. Bruce L. Middaugh, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, officiating.

Mt. Lebanon Club Entertains at Dance

The plaza, where a 10-piece orchestra played for the dancing, was decorated with lighted lanterns and bowls of bright colored blossoms. Trailing ivy in wrought iron trellises lined the walls, and lights were shaded with tiny Japanese parasols.

The affair was arranged by the department's new ways and means chairman, Mrs. W. H. Kramer, and proceeds will be applied to the program promotion, under direction of Mrs. M. Lee Gardner. The decorative background was the work of Mrs. H. M. Leathers, while social arrangements were directed by Mrs. A. W. Hilf, Mrs. G. F. Goldthwait, Mrs. D. D. Butler and Mrs. H. A. Kreiling.

The receiving line included the club's newly-elected president, Mrs. John McKelvie, the department chairman, Mrs. A. E. Loeffler, and the aides, Mrs. J. J. Estabrook, Mrs. M. E. Henry, Mrs. E. J. Gealy and Mrs. Chester Sierakowski.

Gladys Griffiths Joins Goodwill Staff

Miss Gladys Griffiths, daughter of the Rev. R. R. Griffiths, of Baden, has joined the staff of the Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries for the summer months. Miss Griffiths, who is studying social work at Muskingum College, will assist with the program of the Goodwill Community House for practical experience.

The Vacation School of the Industries will begin its activities on July 9, and will continue through July 27. Classes in spatter-painting, bead work, wood working, and other handcrafts will be offered the children of the Lawrenceville section. The younger children will attend session from 1 to 3 each afternoon and the older children from 7 to 9.

Miss Ella M. Fieger, head girls' worker of the industries, and Miss Lura A. Turner will have charge of the school. A number of volunteers will assist as teachers.

Pittsburgh Women Going to Conclave

Several members of Pittsburgh Unit, Women's Overseas Service League, are attending the annual convention of the national league in Detroit opening yesterday, continuing through Wednesday. Mrs. Coit R. Hoechst and Mrs. Walter McBane are the delegates. Others there are Miss Edythe Davidson, who is vice president of the Third Corps Area, and Miss Josephine Hammond, Mrs. Wilbur Laughlin and Miss Elma Belle Miller.

Wilmerding Girl Weds W. L. Pullen

Dr. and Mrs. George W. Horrocks, of Caldwell avenue, Wilmerding, announce the marriage on Wednesday of their daughter, Miss Margaret Arabelle Horrocks, to William L. Pullen, of Turtle Creek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Pullen, of Knoxville, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. Pullen will make their home in Turtle Creek.

Club Picks Committee Heads

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Summer in the club world is a time for appointing committees and making programs and except for this there is little activity. While all committees have not been entirely filled out, the Twentieth Century Club has appointed all its committee chairmen.

Mrs. David Wilson Kuhn, with Mrs. Elizabeth Burt Mellor as her vice chairman, will again serve as lecture committee head. Mrs. William P. Witherow, now president of the club, will be succeeded as music and arts chairman by Mrs. George J. Willock, who will have Mrs. J. Hanson Rose as vice chairman.

Mrs. Carl H. Borntraeger heads the catering committee, with Mrs. Charles S. Shoemaker and Mrs. Benjamin G. Wells as vice chairmen; Mrs Horace Forbes Baker is current interests chairman, and the dramatic activities will be conducted under the chairmanship of Mrs. Will Knox Dunlap. Mrs. H. Allen Machesney is to be her vice chairman.

The finance committee will function under Miss Hannah J. Patterson and both the grounds and library committees under Mrs. Frank A. Evans, while Mrs. Frederic S. Morris and Mrs. Julian Burdick are to be chairman and vice chairman of the hospitality group.

Mrs. W. Eugene Gary has been made chairman of the house committee, with Mrs. Stephen Stone and Mrs. Frank B. Gordon as vice chairman. The rentals committee is headed by Mrs. Frederic Schaefer and Mrs. L. Gerald Firth is its vice chairman. The season's whist chairman is to be Mrs. Robert M. Marshall, and the vice chairman, Mrs. Andrew E. Sloan.

Grace Lauterbach Married to L. W. Herdt

Attended by the bride's twin sister and brother, Miss Dorothy and Walter Lauterbach, Miss Grace Lauterbach and Leslie Wayman Herdt were married Wednesday evening in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lauterbach, Esplanade street, North Side. Also in the bridal party were two little flower girls, Peggy Herdt and Annabelle Schmidt.

The Rev. Lammert Reddelfs, of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, officiated and after the wedding dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Herdt left for an eastern trip. They are to be at home upon their return in Colby street, North Side. Mr. Herdt is a son of Mrs. Mathilda Herdt, of Sprague avenue, Bellevue.

Miss Kaveny Honor Maid At Wedding

At a wedding Thursday morning of a St. Marys girl and a Washington man, Miss Mildred Kaveny, of the Schenley Apartments, was maid of honor, and Paul Eichenlaub, of Pittsburgh, was best man.

The bride was Miss Ruth Sweeney, formerly of the Ruskin Apartments, East End, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Sweeney, of St. Mary's, Pa., and the bridegroom was Allen Robinson, of Washington. The ceremony took place in the Church of the Epiphany with the Rev. Thomas Lappan, director of the St. Vincent de Paul Society of the Pittsburgh area, a personal friend of the bridegroom, officiating.

There was a wedding breakfast after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Eichenlaub, of the Alder Court Apartments, gave the rehearsal dinner at their home Wednesday evening.

Meets Abroad Attract U. S. Clubwomen

Two important international meetings in Europe have focused the interest of clubwomen throughmout the United States. They are the meeting of the board of directors of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, which was held in Geneva last week and the meeting of the International Council of Women, which will take place in Paris, opening today and continuing until July 12. The right of women to work at gainful occupations on equal terms with men will be a major topic of discussion.

Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, of New York City, president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women and the National Council of Women, represents the United States at both meetings. She presided at the board of directors meeting in Geneva, and will be one of the speakers at a mass meeting under Council auspices in the Sorbonne Ampitheater in Paris on Thursday which will take the form of a joint demonstration of women in defense of their right to work.

The tendency to discriminate against married women in both state and private employment during a period of economic crisis was one of the most important topics discussed at Geneva where reports were presented from 21 countries.

Three Girls Sail for Europe

Miss Emily Johnson, of Webster Hall, Miss Marie Hanley, of Travella boulevard, and Miss Louise Ponti, of Travella boulevard, sailed Saturday on the S. S. Patricia for the continent.

Mrs. E. C. Stone, of Bryant street, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. William Holmes Bennett, of Park View Manor, left last week for Wildwood Crest, N. J., where they have taken a cottage for the month of July. Mr. Stone will join the party later.

Nettie Martin Married to E. E. Man

Abe Martin, of Steuben street, announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Nettie Martin, to Alexander Goldberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Goldberg, of North St. Clair street, which took place Sunday, June 24, in the Adath Jeshurum Synagogue. There was a reception later.

The bride wore pink organza with blue accessories and carried Talisman roses and blue delphinium. Her sister, Miss Sarah Martin, as maid of honor, wore an embroidered yellow dress and carried summer flowers. Edward Goldberg was his brother's best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldberg are in Atlantic City and New York on their wedding trip and will be at home in North St. Clair street when they return.

English Girl On Visit to Friend Here

Kathryn Stewart Engaged to Wed

At a bridge luncheon recently in the Highland Country Club announcement was made of the betrothal of Miss Kathryn Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Stewart, of Bellevue, to Adie A. Stevens, II, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. McKnight, of Davis avenue, North Side.

Miss Margaret J. Blume Married to Dr. Brown

At a quiet ceremony in the First Presbyterian Church, Warren, Pa., last Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Miss Margaret Jean Blume, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Blume, of Leetsdale, became the bride of Dr. Aaron Wilson Brown, son of William Boyd Brown, of Rochester, Pa. Officiating was the pastor of the church, Rev. T. S. Dickinson.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an afternoon frock of white taffeta with a small white maline hat. She carried a shower bouquet of white bridal roses and baby's breath. Her only attendant, Miss Hazel Holt, of Pitcairn, wore yellow mousseline de soie with a large hat of white rough straw, and carried yellow roses showered with baby's breath. Dr. Randolph Wilson, of Rochester and Pittsburgh, was his cousin's best man.

There was a reception and dinner in the Hotel Carver for 24 guests after which Dr. and Mrs. Brown left on a wedding trip. They will be at home after today in Rochester, Pa.

The bride is a graduate of Geneva College and Dr. Brown was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University and from the Medical College of Virginia, Richmond, Va.

THROUGH THE SPYGLASS

-:- Viewing the New -:-

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 5300 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

Flourish of Roman candles and pop-pop of crackers! Usher in the Fourth . . . and the stores are doing right by you too!

Because . . . we know of two grand and glorious sales that are taking place. That you'll have time to dash in for, before starting your celebration—to get these $1.98 wash frocks that will go places and do things for you! One place has taken a number of their $2.98 frocks together with some new arrivals . . . and reduced them for the Fourth. Included are eyelets, voiles, seersuckers, shirtings and piques—in light, white, and dark shades. Also some numbers in shirt and shorts style—three pieces. Sizes 14 to 44.

* * *

And for the hours when your tongue's hanging out after some intensive Fourth-of-Julying . . . we suggest this refreshment set that goes equally well on porches as on picnics!

A tin, painted tray—green, red, or orange with white polka dots . . . and four matching cup holders for paper cups. Handy, attractive, practical—we're tired of having paper cups melt and spill their contents into our lap! These holders preserve them nicely while you get your drinking done! $1.00 the set.

Lest you go B.O.-ing around the landscape . . . lest you forget, and melt your best dress before even arriving at the party . . . we suggest—

The oh-so-old-and-yet-so-new cake powder which is a perspiration deterrent and deodorant all at once. Made by the house of M., long favorit. of females . . . but whose light has rather been hidden under the well-known bushel in the last ten years.

Now it's here once more! With a whole line of toiletries that include this popular form of perspiration aid. Women have been asking for it . . . and will rejoice to find it back again. In chrome or gold metal cases . . . $1.75, complete with puff. (We use it . . . have used it for years . . . and personally recommend it!)

LACE IS AN ABLE MARINER

By PRUNELLA WOOD

GIRLS GOING down to the sea on ships that provide a night club atmosphere after eight bells in the evening ought to take along an evening gown of lace. There isn't fog enough to make it curl up and shrivel; it wouldn't stunt itself by packing, however inexpert the job might be, and it can be had in so many weaves, weights, colors and cuts that anybody from a flapper to a great-great-grandmamma can find her own becoming model.

* * *

THERE ARE always very sophisticated black lace gowns—most women have one that goes on and on in the wardrobe—but this summer is a very good time to investigate new models. The Spanish influence has crept into them, for one thing, and they suggest a mean, sinuous carioca, very devastating to the beholder. Then there is th huge bracket of picture book lace gowns in misty pastels and lots of floating tulle which make a woman look touch-me-not and picturesque.

* * *

PLENTY OF jacket models are provided—gowns that are double-crossers in the line of duty. They can look practically prim and tailored for the dull evening, and shed a layer to reveal a very formal decollete when the occasion demands such a toilette.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

This thread lace gown in butter beige shade sports a monkey jacket of matching fabric over its very formal bodice, so that the model may be used formally or informally.

Chanel's polka dot lace makes this demure pastel gown. The fichu and the mousseline flowers, the tunic ruffle and the train give it a picturesque quality.

'COMICS' TO VIE IN PARADE

Every boy and girl up to 16 years of age, living in Pittsburgh and vicinity, is eligible to enter the parade of the Sun-Telegraph comics to be staged at Kennywood Park, Friday, July 13, as the fun feature for the annual Sun-Telegraph outing. From the number of entries already received it is evident that Kennywood will be the scene of one of the most unique and laugh-provoking parades ever held in Pittsburgh.

It is impossible to announce at this time which of the popular comics will lead the parade. Popeye and Mickey Mouse seems to be the favorites for this honor, yet Tillie the Toiler, the Katzenjammer Kids and the Skippys have a strong backing from the youngsters. However, kiddies, don't delay getting in your entry blanks. Get them in today. You have just as good a chance as any other boy or girl to win one of the high-class bicycles to be given away as prizes for the best make-ups.

And bear in mind the distribution of hundreds of free strips of tickets for the Kennywood rides and attractions will begin this week. Watch the Sun-Telegraph for the coupons. At the same time the 15-cent round trip passes provided by the Pittsburgh Railways Company will be put on sale.

Come on, kid comics! Get that entry blank in at once. Win a $25 bicycle or a $15 outfit of clothes—one of each for both boys and girls.

CRAFTON HOST TO FIREMEN

Crafton is host this week to the annual convention of Allegheny County volunteer firemen. Memorial services were held last night in the First Presbyterian Church, Crafton.

Wednesday, July 4, there will be drills, demonstrations of fire fighting, water battles and fireworks. Election of officers will be held Friday.

Saturday 54 volunteer fire companies and 2,500 firemen will participate in a parade, the concluding feature. John Krohe, assistant fire chief of Crafton, is general chairman of the convention.

Headaches Caused By Escaping Gas

A survey by the Pittsburgh Motor Club reveals that headaches and drowsiness frequently experienced by motorists are caused by carbon monoxide gas "in dangerous volume" seeping through the floor boards into the car compartments, the club reported today. Of a large number of automobiles examined it was found that 3 per cent showed four to eight parts of the gas.

Faulty carburetors, exhaust systems and loose flooring were given as the chief causes for the escape of the fumes.

Meeting Set Here On Social Justice

Fourteen leaders in religious and academic circles, headed by Prof. Jerome Davis, of Yale University, will be guests of honor at a meeting to be held by the League for Social Justice on the lawn of the Hiland Presbyterian Church, Perrysville, Friday evening. The group comprises the traveling seminar of the National Religion and Labor Foundation, which is making a tour of the country.

MACARONI AND CHEESE WITH HAM JACKETS AND STUFFED GREEN PEPPER

Four cups boiling water.
Two tablespoons fat.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon pepper.
One cup milk.
One cup water.
One cup grated cheese.
One tablespoon horseradish.
Eight large thin slices boiled ham.

Add macaroni and salt to boiling water. Cook until tender, then drain, rinse with cold water, melt fat in saucepan, blend in flour, salt and pepper. Stir in slowly the milk, add cheese and horseradish. Cook slowly until cheese has melted. Put about 12 pieces of macaroni on each ham slice. Pour hot cheese sauce over macaroni then roll up and secure with string or toothpicks. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 minutes or until ham has browned. Serves eight.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

One and one-half tablespoons butter.
One and one-half tablespoons flour.
Three-fourth teaspoon salt.
Three-fourth cup milk.
Three-fourth cup liquid from vegetable.
Few grains pepper.
Two and one-half cups cooked or canned peas, beans, carrots, rabbage, etc.
Three-fourth cup dry bread crumbs, buttered.

Cut off tops and remove seeds from peppers. Cook five minutes in boiling water to cover. Drain. Melt butter in saucepan. Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Stir in slowly the milk and cook until thickened stirring constantly. Add vegetable and fill peppers. Top with crumbs. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 15 minutes until browned. Serves eight. Left over vegetables may be used. Serve on platter with ham jackets.

TONGUE SALAD

Two calf tongues diced.
One small can peas.
One small can sliced mushrooms.
One-half cup diced celery.
Mayonnaise.
Salt.
Pepper.

Cook two calf tongues until tender. When cold dice. Mix with peas, sliced mushrooms, eggs, celery and mayonnaise, season with salt and pepper to taste. Serve garnished with olives and pickles, on lettuce leaves.

VIRGINIA ADLER,
127 West Fayette street, Uniontown.
SUNDAY DINNER PIE

One pound lean round steak, ground.
One egg.
Two graham crackers finely rolled.
One can beef broth or one cup meat stock.
One tablespoon finely chopped pimentos.
Ingredients to make a pie crust.

Fry the mushrooms five minutes in a little butter. Add the beaten egg, cracker crumbs, salt to the ground steak, knead until thoroughly blended, shape into balls of small patties. Arrange in alternate layers in a deep baking dish the mushrooms and meat balls, with the chopped pimentos. Pour over this the broth or meat stock thickened with a teaspoon of flour. Cover with a pie crust, brush the crust with beaten egg yolk, and bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Serves four to six.

MRS. T. A. BOYER,
R. D. 2, Box 24, Sharpsburg.
FRENCH MELANGE

Two cups chopped rhubarb.
Two cups chopped pineapple.
One cup fresh strawberries cut in quarters.

Cover the fruit with four cups sugar and let stand for one hour. Put into a dry skillet and stir once or twice and cook slowly for half an hour. Keep covered while cooking. By this time the melange should begin to thicken. Add one-half cup shredded almonds or walnuts and one tablespoon grated orange rind. Remove cover and cook till clear. Stir very little during entire cooking process. Pour into sterilized glasses and cover with paraffin.

MRS. L. H. KRAEUTER
4018 Lanmore avenue (10).
BREAD CRUMB AND CARROT OMELET

Two well beaten eggs.
One-quarter cup bread crumbs.
One tablespoon flour.
One medium sized grated carrot.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Jelly.

Mix in order given and fry in deep fat until light brown on both sides, spreading batter over bottom of skillet. Spread with jelly and serve.

HELEN E. ABBOTT,
321 Academy street, Carnegie.
SANDWICH FILLING

Two hard cooked eggs.
Two small canned pimentos.
Two tablespoons chili sauce.
Half white onion.
Three-fourths cup English walnuts.
Pinch of paprika.
Two green peppers.
Salt.
Two cakes cream cheese.

Honorable Mention

MRS. H. E. CULIN,
417 Ashland avenue (16)
BUTTERSCOTCH APPLES

Five apples.
Two-third cup brown sugar.
One-half cup water.
Three-quarter cup milk.
One-half tablespoon cornstarch.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One-half to one tablespoon butter.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.

Wash the apples, and cut them into quarters, pare and core them. Into a saucepan put the sugar and water, and heat. When the syrup boils, add the apples, cover and boil gently until the apples are tender. Remove the apples from the syrup with a skimmer or a wire egg beater, placing the fruit in glasses or other suitable dishes for serving.

In another pan, mix the milk and cornstarch thoroughly. Stir and cook until the mixture reaches a boiling point, then add it to the syrup in which the apples were cooked. Boil for a few minutes. Add the salt, butter and vanilla. Stir these into the mixture, then pour over the apples. Serve Butterscotch Apples hot or cold for a dessert.

MRS. EDNA KING,
105 Neff avenue, Masontown.
PINEAPPLE ISLES

Six slices pineapple.
One teaspoon walnuts, chopped.
Salt.
One tablespoon water.
Two eggs.
Four tablespoons powdered sugar.

Place the slices of pineapple (canned) on a greased tin and sprinkle each with the chopped walnuts mixed with a few grains of salt. Add the water to the whites of the eggs, beaten very stiff. Then beat in the sugar. Heap in the center of the pineapple. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees F.) for 20 minutes, or until delicately brown.

MISS EMMA WENZELLBURGER
TAPIOCA REFRIGERATOR PUDDING

One-half cup minute tapioca.
Two cups hot grape juice.
One cup sugar.
One-fourth cup orange juice.
Two tablespoons Maraschino cherry juice.
Ten Maraschino cherries.

Add minute tapioca to grape juice and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar. Remove from fire, add orange and cherry juice, and finally cut cherries. Cool. Before tapioca mixture thickens, pour into greased mold, lined with lady fingers or sponge cake. Chill in refrigerator for 12 hours. Unmold, slice and garnish with whipped cream.

VIOLET M. ALCORN,
740 Wallace avenue, Wilkinsburg.
SALAD OF TOMATO JELLY CUBES WITH SHRIMP

One and one-fourth cups canned tomato juice.
One-fourth cup cold water.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One tablespoon sugar.
One tablespoon granulated gelatin.
Two tablespoons vinegar.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
One six-ounce jar shrimp.
Lettuce and salad dressing.

Heat tomato juice to boiling. Pour cold water in a bowl and sprinkle gelatin on top. Add the hot tomato juice and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add vinegar, lemon juice, salt and sugar; mix well and pour into loaf pan. Chill until firm, then cut into one-inch squares and arrange six squares on each of six individual plates of lettuce with about four shrimps in the center of each. Serve with any desired salad dressing. Cucumber sandwiches are delicious served with this salad.

MRS. RUTH C. PEPE,
216 Woodhaven drive, South Hills.
CHICKEN FILLED ROLLS

Three cups cooked cubed chicken or tuna fish.
One-half cup toasted almonds.
One cup celery heart cut into small pieces.
One-half cup mayonnaise, or more if desired.
Three hard cooked eggs chopped.
One cup shredded lettuce.

Place all ingredients into a bowl and toss together lightly with a fork. Take long finger rolls or long hard rolls (either plain or poppyseed), and slit lengthwise. Remove some of the soft bread from the roll, butter lightly and fill with chicken salad. Pile filled rolls on a large serving platter and garnish with pickles, olives and small wedges of fresh tomatoes.

muses the Epicure, "Remind me of life at The Warwick at all times. Celebrities in abundance, the atmosphere of glamour, the anticipation of something new (excepting that at The Warwick there's scarcely ever a whisper of criticism from the sophisticated). There's good reason for the choice of first nighters who call this home. And not the least of these is a famed cuisine and a genuinely whole-souled hospitality."

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Memos From a Columnist's Girl Friday

Dear W: I put in a whole day's work trying to contact everybody we know in town . . . I started on the phone at noon and here it is almost 7 . . . It's the weather—nobody's home these days—and on week-ends they flee from it all . . . Only I'm the chump—I had to be a secretary to a columnist! . . . Well, what I meant to tell you—only I didn't want to shock you—is that I didn't get a single line of news you'd like . . . It's dead around here . . . So you finally got back your senses? . . . You owe the tailor $185 . . . Your mother says take care of yourself.

You get the wrong songwriter in love—it isn't Nacio Brown . . . Did you know that in the picture featuring Lew Cody and Dorothy Dell—three extras also died while the film was being made—what a jinx! . . . Didn't you love the testimony of Adele Astaire in that London court? . . . We all screamed around here . . . The title of F. Scott Fitzgerald's latest novel: "Tender Is the Night" has received more favorable comment than the book itself . . . You know, of course, the title comes from a phrase in Keats' "Ode to Nightingale."

Frank Sullivan wants to know is it true that a namesake runs a gas and oil depot near the Roosevelt Hotel in H'wood? . . . Did you see Harry Evans' story on outstanding scoops? . . . The Zangara beat is conspicuous . . . I hear the quickest fadeout among the Hollywood sensationalists (in the night life, I mean) was that of Kitty O'Dare, the heiress, who came from N. Y., spent her money wildly, danced briefly at the Ballyhoo and then disappeared from the scene . . . Crane Wilbur eats scallions backwards! No kidding. He eats the green part first . . . Bill Carpenter says the parents of the five babies are just Dionne showoffs.

I have a thumbnail description of you: Primo Carnera: A long-winded joke that didn't click . . . Also this on Prof. Pitkin: A lowbrow's idea of a highbrow . . . Damon Runyon's book isn't called "What! No Butler?" It is named "Blue Plate Special"—I read proof on your foreword for it . . . Made no changes—looks fine . . . It is sure to be a best seller . . . Give my regards to Ted Flo Rito and his band. I met him once—he's so regular.

Elinson called. Left these: I hear that England sent us a biscuit when the debt payment fell due—ah, an English muffin! . . . I was down to the beach (Elinson still gabbing) and saw the new bathing suits the girls are wearing. Say, how can a feller tell when he's in the ladies' dressing room? . . . Izzy says he guesses he'll have to wear a sign on his back, too . . . "No, I'm not striking," he adds, "but I'm beginning to look too conspicuous!" . . . A. Hamburg called. He said Broadway is a street where those who tell you to keep your chin up usually are the first to take a sock at it . . . H. Snyder and H. Wedlock, Jr., left this: The late Bill Mizner was strolling down B'way with some pals. A gal with a curiously flat head passed by. Mizner said: "She looks as though Strangler Lewis had a crush on her" . . . Arthur Murray's daily contrib is a simile: As vain as an acrobatic troupe who are on next-to-closing.

Olin Miller clicks again with this observation: "Mary Pickford says she won't run for Congress. We won't either, but we'd stand a fat chance of getting our name in the paper if we said so!" . . . Here's a new racket . . . Let's say a film firm is making a picture called: "Clothes Make the Man" . . . Letters are then received by clothing makers from a guy who says that he has a tie-up with the flicker firm . . . And in exchange for mentioning the picture "in your ads" we will allow the star of the film to indorse your clothes . . . It is added: "We expect a commission, of course." Then a letter goes to the producers, saying: "We represent several clothing makers. In return for mentioning the picture in our ads, we expect your stars to indorse our product. Of course, we expect a commission if this is arranged" . . . In this way the promoter cleans up from both ends . . . Until, that is, all concerned see this here—one hopes.

Douglas Fairbanks will be back in August, hot or cold . . . And Chaplin's picture will get started any day now, this year or next . . . A new angle in the code authority's investigation of the movies is the secret professional, and personal interests, and partnerships, the producers and execs have in various agencies . . . Through which they may designate the agent through whom they are willing to negotiate contracts. Mr. Rosenblatt, handling the investigation, thinks it is much more vicious than the petty graft or studio politics it seems on the surface.

George Seldes called. Said that he thought your recent crack about the movie makers spurning the exposes on the munition racket was a rumor and not a fact . . . But he found via his agents that you were right . . . The munition makers got to the banks who back the movies and arranged the thumbs down angle . . . Imagine that . . . Next thing Seldes says is sure to happen is that they will also sabotage the Nye investigation . . . The M. Delmans are threeing . . . I look at the listings of temperatures every day to see how cool you are out there—and San Francisco was listed at 58 and here it feels like 158 . . . Is it that way all the time? . . . Oh, dear . . . Mark says his picture title has been changed from: "On the Nose" to "Broadway Bill"—they are on location at San Mateo, whichis pronounced San-Mah-tay-oh . . . It's only 20 miles from S. F., why don't you go down there and watch them shooting it? . . . Mark says he hopes they don't hurt his picture any more than he did . . . Can't think of anything else to tell you—I thought when I started it I'd never get to the best line in the column, which is

Mae West's Picture Is Given a Bath

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, July 2.—Hello! Well, Mae West suddenly cracked the front pages again. This time, not just as she would have most enjoyed. The New York Censor Board pounced upon her newest SINEMA and screamed "nix" at a couple of the hot scenes and lines. The Paramount studio canceled all showing dates until adjustments could be decided upon.

The studio bosses have agreed to eliminate the offending "It" (the Censor Board couldn't decide exactly what it meant, so it was hinted) and the new title of the ditty may merely read: "A Mae West Picture" or "Ain't No Sin."

The bit of dialogue, which has now been securely tossed into the ash can, was spoken by Miss West in a scene with Roger Pryor, portraying a prize fighter.

There were reports of retakes requiring at least two or three weeks of actual filming time, but this is unnecessary now that the suggestive lines have been cut out.

* * *

Wanderings around Hollywood—Heh, Heh! One of Broadway's VERRA SMART agents got chased right out of a producer's office—for being fresh! . . . Valerie de Loremzo, the red-headed cutie signed by M-G-M, is the ex-brown derby waitress I was yelping about some weeks ago . . . Charlie Chaplin WON a battle with a 125-pound swordfish off Catalina Island. In fact, Charley, always clowning, challenged the salt-water tough guy to a DUEL! . . . Sheila Manners nicked off a nice Columbia long-term ticket . . . Try to imagine the TORRIFIC BLUSHING scene when a stately character actress busted right into the wrong dressing room—and there stood an important star in—well, even we have censors! . . . The Clark Gables, the Eddie Mannixes, the Lloyd Bacons, Charley Chase, Frank Orsatti and Ben Goetz have been making it MONEY LIVELY at the six-day bike races by contributing PO-LENTY of coin to speed the pedal-pushers.

And so to dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Lew Fields, and to chin over old times. Gene Mann did a table-rapping routine that had Herb Fields, Marjorie Wellman, Jack Durante, Joey Ray, Inez Courtenay and Jack Gordean guessing for a while. Durante suffered a "ham relapse" and went into his acrobatic act which also serves as a tease-breaker—if you want one and don't happen to care what becomes of the furniture . . . And so it does . . . In view of the fact that moons are always popular with song writers, Herb Magidson claims his new ditty is the topper—he uses two moons for his new song, "North and South Carolina Moons I'm Coming Back to You."

GREEN ROOM GLEANINGS

The publishers of "Who's Who in America" recognize only four of the presidents of the eight large motion picture corporations in their biographical dictionary . . . those mentioned are Merlin Hally Aylesworth, RKO . . . "Uncle Carl" Laemmle, Universal . . . Harry Morris Warner, Warner Brothers, and Adolph Zukor, Paramount . . . unlisted are Harry Cohn, Columbia . . . Sidney R. Kent, Fox . . . Joseph M. Schenck, United Artists, and Nicholas Schenck, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer . . . but, three production chiefs, Louis B. Mayer, Winnie Sheehan and Sam Goldwyn, for the companies headed by the unrecognized Mr. Kent and the brothers Schenck, were accorded "Who's Who" honors . . . all of which proves that four press agents slipped somewhere . . . I hear Edward G. Robinson has returned to the form he used to know in "The Man With Two Faces" . . . Mrs. John Hooley, wife of the Family manager, is vacationing on Chesapeake Boy . . . Benny Davis will bring an entire flock of new protegees to the Penn stage Friday . . . It will be a late August or Labor Day opening for the Alvin . . . Evelyn Langfeldt, Rudy Vallee's secretary, is playing an extra role "for the fun of it" in Dashiell Hammett's "Woman in the Dark."

Put that last-minute reprieve of Anna Antonio in Sing Sing the other night in the movies and they wouldn't believe it! . . . Willard Mack once told me he was afraid to incorporate in his melodramas many of the fact occurences he unearthed in real life . . . In addition to Marion Davies' "Operator 13," the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae recommends: Ronald Colman's "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," Penn booking . . . Shirley Temple's "Baby Take a Bow," Fulton booking, and Joe E. Brown's, "The Circus Clown," coming to the Stanley . . . For a real box-office mop-up and the eternal blessings of the censors, why don't they put Shirley Temple and Baby LeRoy in the same picture? . . . Sir Ibriham, the Sultan of Jahore, is sending presents to Gail Patrick . . . Word drifts East that the Eddie Cantors made a real celebration of their twentieth wedding anniversary . . . Joe Feldman, Warner publicity chief, figuring ways and means to get a small cruiser or submarine up the Ohio from New Orleans to exploit Jimmy Cagney's new one, "Here Comes the Navy" . . . Rob Cimse, who has his motorcycle daredevils in Kennywood, was once an officer in the Cossack army.

Although the Censor Board is still, messing around with "Dr. Monica," it is slated to begin its Stanley run on Friday, July 13 . . . Morizowicz Scocepkowska (sneeze it, please) wrote "Dr. Monica" . . . In "The Life of Vergie Winters" John Boles wears the same haircut and the same moustache for 24 years . . . All the prints of Mae West's "It Ain't No Sin" have been called in and censors will never see the shocker in its present estate . . . Sam Goldwyn is playing safe . . . The canny producer is replacing "Barbary Coast" with "The Wizard of Oz" in view of the censor flare-up . . . Mr. Goldwyn could do worse than take Fred Stone to the Coast to play his old role in "The Wizard of Oz" . . . Latest reports are to the effect that Eddie Cantor gets the part.

The Fable of Hugo Hogwater

THIS IS an old story; as old, probably, as vaudeville itself. But I never heard it before and, when Harry Jans unfolded it the other night, I enjoyed the tale immensely. So I pass it on to you.

Hugo Hogwater was a vaudeville performer with a specialty. He had numerous jokes and funny sayings—but, first and foremost, he was a paper-tearer. No, Oswald, they are not backing up the wagon for me. That's exactly what Hugo was. A paper-tearer.

When Hugo stepped on a stage, he had a roll of blank paper that he exhibited to the audience, if any. Then, as he talked, he placed the roll behind his back and began to tear it into various parts.

He'd continue with his line of chatter, stopping every now and then to bring one hand forward and let bits of paper fall from it. This went on for some eight or nine minutes. And as he walked from the stage after delivering his big punch gag, he would bring forth the paper gadget he had made behind his back and display it triumphantly to the audience. The gadget was generally an animal that was easily recognized, or some popular figure of the day.

For more than 30 years, Hugo toured the land with this paper trick that someone had taught him—most unfortunately—in his youth. As you can readily believe, he never earned much money. He usually played for coffee and cake. And if there wasn't any cake, that was okay with him too.

From one tank town to another went Hugo Hogwater; from one crawling hotel to another. He never improved and he never grew worse. He just kept telling his bewhiskered jokes—now heard any night on your radio—and tearing up his roll of paper.

The days, the seasons and the years were all the same to him . . .

Then, suddenly, came the great break of a lifetime. He received a call from the biggest of the Broadway agents. And this man wanted to see him!

Hugo felt that it was some practical joke and he fully expected to be tossed out of the agent's office on his roll of paper. But wonder of wonders, that didn't happen. Instead he was received with great courtesy by the agent and motioned to a chair.

"Hugo Hogwater," said the big man, "I caught your act in Edgemere the other night—and you're just the man I'm looking for. Do you want to know where you're going? To England!"

"England?" repeated Hugo, vaguely. "You mean that town across the ocean?"

The agent nodded.

"Exactly. They've never seen a paper-tearer over there and you're bound to be a sensation. I've cabled across and everything is satisfactory. I have your contract here, and I also have your passport all vised. You sail the day after tomorrow on the Leviathan."

Hugo gulped.

"Do I," he stammered, "do I get paid?"

"Well I should hope to land a Penner!" replied the agent. "What a question! Of course you get paid. If you'll look at your contract, you will see that it calls for $500 a week for ten weeks. Will that be satisfactory?"

The paper-tearer slid to one corner of his chair. He blinked nervously and he rubbed his forehead.

"Please, sir," he cried, "you wouldn't fool an old-timer, would you? You're not telling me all this just as a joke, are you? All my life I've dreamed of a break like this. $500 a week! Please tell me it's on the level."

The agent shrugged impatiently.

"Don't talk nonsense," he commanded. "I'm not in the habit of wasting time on jokes. You're the best paper-tearer I ever saw and you're going to London. Here, sign these contracts."

As if in a dream, Hugo Hogwater signed the all-important papers. The agent reached into his desk and drew out some additional documents.

"Here, Hogwater," he said as he handed them across, "are all the things you will need. You have there your copy of the contract, your ticket on the Leviathan, your necessary addresses in London—and your passport. And here——"

He drew out some money.

"——here," he went on, "is $200 in cash. That will hold you until you draw your first salary in England. Your commission will be paid to this office from the other side. Goodbye—and good luck."

Hugo Hogwater arose.

"Thank you, sir," he said hoarsely, "and God bless you. I'll tear paper now as it was never torn before." . . .

It wasn't until the night before the boat landed on the other side that Hugo Hogwater actually believed that this had happened to him. It just didn't seem possible. He kept examining his passport and his contract to make certain it was all on the level. And when he finally reached the conclusion that everything was jake and that he was about to land in England—Hugo Hogwater got drunk.

Yes, my friends, Hugo stepped into the bar room that night and got himself positively stinko. He drank straight ryes with gin chasers, and he topped off the evening with a pint of Scotch. It was Hugo's first real bust in thirty years, and he made it a honey. It took three stewards to get him into his bed that night.

It was five o'clock before the paper-tearer fell asleep. And as he slept, he dreamed. He dreamed that the house was packed and that he was doing his act.

Acting, in his sleep, he reached over and tore up his money. Then he tore up his contract. Then he tore up his passport.

So, when the boat arrived, they sent him back to America!

SEA FLIERS LAND FOURTH TIME

TORUN, Poland, July 2.—(AP.)—Brooklyn's flying brothers, Joseph and Benjamin Adamowicz, were forced down near here today en route to Warsaw, making their fourth landing in Europe after conquering the Atlantic.

CROSSEN, Germany, July 2.—(AP.)—The flying Adamowicz brothers took off at 9:30 a. m. today on their flight to Warsaw. Gasoline shortage forced them down here last night.

The Brooklyn soda pop manufacturers got several hours' sleep at the house of the burgomaster. They landed in a potato field following a hop from Le Bourget Field, Paris. They had gone to Le Bourget from Fiers, France, where they were forced down Saturday after flying the Atlantic from Harbor Grace, N. F.

STATE'S SEASON ON BASS OPENS

HARRISBURG, July 2.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's bass season opened today with the Fish Commission giving sportsmen the cheering news that water conditions are good and the bass plentiful.

Fishermen this year are permitted to use plugs with nine points. A section of the Safe Harbor dam on the lower Susquehanna is closed to fishermen because of construction work and a section of the west shore of the Conestoga along the dam also is closed.

The season ends November 30, with a maximum catch of 10 bass nine or more inches long permitted.

MT. LEBANON MAN ENDS LIFE

Ill health was said today to have caused Robert Dey O'Neil, 49, vice president of the Vulcan Detinning Company, Neville Island, to shoot and kill himself in his apartment, 110 Newburn drive, Mt. Lebanon, early yesterday, according to a Coroner's report.

Mrs. Anna O'Neil, his wife, who heard the shot while she was telephoning her brother for aid, told deputy coroners that her husband suffered a nervous breakdown several months ago.

Mrs. O'Neil reported she sought the aid of her brother when she saw her husband with a revolver in his hand. She was under a physician's care today at the home of her brother, J. F. Mittinger, 218 Gilliland place, Bellevue.

2 Swallow Poison, One Seriously Ill

Paul Howard, 21, of 5963 Alder street, was taken to Homeopathic Hospital at midnight after drinking poison in his home last night, according to police. The police were unable to gain any information from the youth, whose condition was reported as fair.

Mrs. Mary Assad, 29, of 29 South Twelfth street, was in a serious condition in South Side Hospital as the result of taking poison in her home early yesterday. Police said she was despondent.

Poison Fails, Dies By Rope in Hospital

Mrs. Lena Leon, 50, hanged herself with a rope to a bed in the Wilkinsburg Private Hospital early today, according to police.

She was taken to the hospital yesterday after she had swallowed poison in her home in Midland avenue, Wilkinsburg, the police reported. A coroner's report telling of her success in her second death attempt blamed ill health.

Son Finds Father Hanged in Home

Unemployed several months, George Magel, 60, of 41 McClain street, was found hanging in the basement of his home early today according to a morgue report.

Magel was found by his son, George, Jr., who discovered that his father's bed had not been slept in. The son said his father had been despondent.

Portia Gives Both Sides Of Wrecked Romance

A PORTIA come to judgment—yea, a PORTIA. Shakespeare knew his onions about some women. And occasionally we even have such members of the sisterhood today.

How quickly men say, all women are unreasonable. "Oh, it's a woman's way," they'll say. And wink. Yet they can be wrong. For even great Homer nods occasionally.

Now here is a sister who insists upon laying both sides of her problem before me. She says usually I hear but one side of a question. And that isn't right. I should be told everything or nothing.

Miss Brunot

Dear Miss Brunot:

No doubt it is difficult to give advice on a case about which you know only what one person tells you. There are always two sides, but I will try and tell both sides in one. And if you can help me, I shall be most grateful.

I am 23 and have dated a good bit. So I am not a kid about judging people, but this situation is one too much for me. I am in love with a man a few years older than I, a sweet, decent man and one whose tasks and ideals are very similar to mine.

STOPS CALLING

For awhile we dated continually, but lately he has quit making dates with me. Even quit calling me up. For no reason that I know of. It is perfectly possible that he is tired of me. But I don't believe that. For one thing, he does not date any one else. I know he is broke. And I also know that he is very proud. I tried to go half way, and, in fact, I almost threw myself at him. But finally I let him alone entirely.

He asked me for several dates, but on evenings I had a previous engagement. Then he asked me to meet him one night when he had to work afterwards. I did so, but we could find nothing to say to each other. Since that night he has not called at all.

Perhaps I was too proud and too unfriendly that night. But I thought it was up to him to make the advances. He had hurt my feelings and while I had tried to understand and be sensible, I guess I was pretty formal. He was, too.

It's a terribly uncertain sort of situation. He has never told me in so many words, that he loves me. But I always felt that he did. I still think so.

ALWAYS FAIR

Now, Miss Brunot, do you think I should ask him what is the matter? I dislike putting him in an embarrassing possition. He has always been fair, and if he does not love me, the last thing in the world I want to do, is to cry on his shoulder, because I have just happened to be the one in love.

He cannot help it if he does not love me.

And I want him to be happy. You know that's what someone wants if they really love someone.

Then, too, I have tried to be friendly. I have done all there is to do. Should I leave it to him, now? I can't help thinking in some way his pride is hurt.

Thank you, and I shall be waiting. EVE.

Sister, we always think a man's pride is hurt when he acts queer. And we are in love with him. We either say he is sensitive, or too refined, or too gentlemanly. Or something or other. It is an excuse to ourselves for something having gone wrong in our love path . . . No doubt, this fellow is worried about being BROKE.

NOTHING TO OFFER

He feels he has nothing to offer a woman. And he hasn't when one looks at it materially. These are difficult days. There may be bread lines, and the NRA, and a government down at Washington working overtime on borrowed money . . . But even so, do you want to see the man you love give up, and live on a dole . . . I don't believe you do, Eve . . .

Yes, I would have a talk with him . . . He isn't the sort of a man, if I read correctly, who would like a half-way woman. One who didn't indicate at least that she was cordial and a real friend. So tell him that you don't want him to leave you. That you are whole-hearted in your interest in him . . . That you have faith in him and his ability . . . Let him see you are a person who helps instead of hinders, and that your affection is deep.

You are surely fond of him when you say his happiness comes before yours . . . so few of us can LOVE in that big way. We want to possess that which we care for . . . even if it is slippery and likely to leave us because it has none of the adhesive qualities born of genuine affection.

DON'T LET HIM GO

And so, Eve, I say . . . DON'T LET THIS MAN GO out of your LIFE until you are sure he really wants to . . . I firmly trust in your intuition . . . You are a wise young woman, and are likely to see right . . . So I believe he does care . . . and that if you drive along with him, but not too fast, you and he will land at the same destination . . .

It isn't always being fair to leave a man when his nobility of purpose thinks you should . . . It isn't always the just thing to let a fellow stick in the mire, merely because he has lost hope, and has arrived at the conclusion there is no future for him.

I believe he wanted to say something important to you the night he met you at his place of work. And that your standoffishness kept him from doing so . . . Try again, to find out what it was.

There are two sorts of persons one is continually meeting with who cause surpise.

First there are those who are dressed in the best of taste, riding around in grand automobiles, and when they arrive anywhere they attract the most favorable attention.

They appear to be important "somebodies." But you are amazed when you find out that they are really "nobodies" much.

Then there are those plain quiet persons to whom we pay hardly any attention at all. But when we find out who they actually are we are no-end surprised!

It is well to be a little doubtful of those who talk so tall and dress so swell—it's their stock in trade and their lives are apt to be all "front" and no background!

Now that the sun is high in the heaven and pretty faces are bronzing, the girls who heed the beauty parade are using a cheek rouge of purplish brown. Sounds terrible but it isn't. If the complexion is extremely dark, the effect is interesting. Makes you think of portraits done by the old masters. Romantic, that's what it is.

Heels of moderate height and width, neither spiked nor flat, appear on the latest shoes. They are now the correct choice. Praise be to the designers thereof, since sensible heels will do more than anything else to correct weak ankles and promote normal muscle conditions of the calves of the legs.

Climb the heights of beauty by wearing one of the new chiffon evening frocks. A charming model is of white chiffon with huge polka dots of sheer, navy blue velvet. The narrowest velvet ribbon makes thin shoulder straps and there is a matching blue cape with all-over shirring.

All aboard, and those whose luggage include clothes that won't crush are fortunate. An ideal evening ensemble for traveling is a frock of blue lace, and a swagger coat of midnight blue satin that is guaranteed not to wrinkle. The dress has a peplum that becomes a back ruffle.

Given in Marriage :: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Hank and Bill, Older Boys, Also Missing

Lillian threw up her right hand in cheery salute as she bade Hugh and me "Good hunting!" in our quest for Junior and Roderick, so inexplicably missing from the room off the nursery where she had gone to bed the night before. Then she turned down the corridor to the nursery, where Marion and Carolyn were temporarily keeping guard over my baby daughter Faith, and Hugh putting a supporting hand under my elbow, guided me down the stairs and on through hall and veranda to the front lawn where Kate was still crawfishing along the drive, looking for bycycle tracks.

So absorbed was she that she did not see me until I had reached her side and laid a tremulous hand upon her shoulder. Then she started up and clutched me excitedly by the arm.

"Oh! Meesis Graham, my Meesis Graham, lookit!" she gabbled. "So mooch tracks. See, vun ober anudder. I tink somebody chasing somebody else alright. Me, I find me here two kinds of tracks."

"Where? Let me see!" I demanded, as excitedly as she was speaking.

FINDS TIRE PRINT

"Dere!" she said, pointing dramatically at the unmistakable print of bicycle tires in roadway and grass, now so wet with the profuse morning dews of Eastern Long Island that the effect was almost like rain. "See dot! Beeg tires go long first, den leetle tires coom rooning after, sometimes on top, sometimes same place, sometimes vun side. Leetle tires not so straight like beeg tires."

I looked where her finger pointed, and saw that she had described the prints accurately and graphically. Along the path, straight almost as the traditional arrow so beloved by descriptionists, ran the tracks of bicycle tires such as those attached to the ordinary size cycles. And zig-gagging unskillfully across and on either side of the big ones were the smaller tire tracks which, with a lump in my throat, I recognized as belonging to the smaller bicycles though modeled exactly like the bigger ones which were the pride of Junior and Roderick.

"You see?" Katie repeated when I raised my head.

"But whose are the bigger bicycles? Bill and Hank have theirs up at Worcester. What is it, Jim?" For Katie's husband, our standby in all outdoor work at "The Farm," had come hurriedly up to me with patent excitement in his usually stolid face.

"My bicycle's gone," he said, "and that old one of Mr. Graham's, that Jerry Ticer rides around when he's over here."

Katie gave a raucous little crow.

"Dose tracks right here," she said. "I know dose prints of dot old wheel of Jeem's, eef I see eet in China. Lookit, Meesis Graham! Four bicycles went oudt dees gate. Coom long! See vich vey dey go, oop or down road."

"Just a second! Hugh's voice was authoritative. "There's one point we must clear up first. Where are Hank and Bill? I don't think they went over to The Larches for the night."

OTHER BOYS MISSING

"They're in the bungalow," I said, "or at least there is where they asked me if they might sleep. They didn't want to go to The Larches."

"Surely. Just as soon as we've seen Hank and Bill," he returned. "That will take but a minute, and we won't lose any time, as I will show you. Katie! Jim!"

"Go on out to the road and check up in which direction these bicycles have gone. Mrs. Graham and I will be with you directly. Come with me, please."

He beckoned to me and I walked with him to the door of the bungalow, while Katie and Jim went on to the gate.

The bungalow door was unlocked, and when we opened it we saw that the bed clothing upon the cot beds had been tumbled to the floor, and that there was no sign of either Hank or Bill.

Household Hints

A squeeze of lemon juice and a quarter teaspoon of olive oil added to the water with which pastry is mixed will make it light and flaky.

A small quantity of powdered alum in the water in which glass is rinsed will make it sparkle like crystal.

Keep medicines in a cool, dry, dark place. Light has a deteriorating effect on many medicines put up in solution form.

Many people think of their electric bills only in terms of the amount of electricity they use for lighting purposes. They forget the many other conveniences which electricity makes possible in their homes. Vacuum sweepers, washers, ironers, refrigerators . . . electric appliances whose very presence in your home means hours of time saved and a great deal of hard work avoided. Electric mixers, waffle-irons, percolators and toasters . . . handy and quickly responsive appliances which make many a modern home more pleasant. This is to mention only a few electric appliances which add so much to home-life today . . . and which, incidentally, cost so little to operate.

The length of time the appliances named in this advertisement can be operated is based on 4c per Kwh, in which classification a large percentage of our customers come. If your use of electricity entitles you to the advantages of a 3c rate you can operate the same appliances proportionately longer. However, those who pay 5c for electric energy can operate these appliances only four-fifths of the length of time stated.

This electric bill is based on domestic rate C, for homes of 7 rooms or less . . . other domestic rates apply in various cases, but the principle of the diminishing rate remains the same.*

Contract Bridge :: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Signalling

Most Bridge players are told early in their careers about the importance of signalling—that is, when playing against the Declarer and when not in the lead, of playing a high card or, if there is time to complete the "echo," a high card followed by a low one, to indicate a desire that the suit led be continued. Unquestionably many games are saved by a judicious use of signals, but it is unfortunately true that some players feel compelled to give the "come on" signal whenever they hold the commanding card of a suit, whether such a signal can be of benefit to the partnership or not. Take for example the deal below, in which South, the Declarer, fulfilled his too ambitious contract because one of the players felt it was his duty to signal when the first round of spades was led.

North, Dealer.

	♠ Q 8 7 6 ♡ Q 6 5 ◇ Q 8 ♣ A K 3 2
♠ K J ♡ 8 7 3 ◇ A 10 5 4 3 ♣ 10 3 4	North West East South	♠ A 10 3 2 ♡ 9 4 ◇ J 6 2 ♣ Q J 7 6
	♠ 9 5 4 ♡ A K J 10 2 ◇ K 9 7 ♣ 9 8

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 N T	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

While North's hand is practically a bedrock minimum, it does contain adequate trump support, so North feels impelled to give his partner another chance after the One-over-One response. But his bid of 4 hearts is too strong and should have been defeated.

West's opening lead was a small diamond, and Declarer, winning the trick with the King, returned the suit. West then won the Queen with the Ace, and led a trump. The Declarer won this trick in his own hand, ruffed the last diamond with the Queen and drew the adverse trumps. He then, facing the almost certain prospect of losing three spade tricks, except with the most favorable distribution, hopelessly led a spade to the Queen. West played the King and East conceived the brilliant idea that he should encourage the continuance of the suit by signalling with the Ten. As per orders, West now led the Jack, which was covered with the Queen in Dummy and won by East's Ace. However, the signal, instead of proving of benefit to the partnership, was fatal. South won the remaining tricks, solely because of an incorrect application of a correct principle. In this instance there was no conceivable advantage to the defending partnership in East's telling West that he held the ace, as he did not hold other cards of equal value in the suit.

Tomorrow's Hand

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A 6 5 ♡ 9 7 4 3 ◇ 4 3 ♣ K 5 4 2

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

-:- -:- Correct Manners -:- -:-

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"Promotion."

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I think that it shows lack of good taste if a sister or a sister-in-law gives a shower for a bride-to-be. Am I correct? B.

I agree with you, for there is a definite "promotion" appearance about a shower given by a close relative of the bride-to-be or the groom-to-be. It is natural and appropriate for a group of the bride-to-be's friends, or the members of her club, to plan a shower for her. But when the family steps in with plans (and conscious and careful plans they inevitably are, too) there seems a very definite question of taste here. And they certainly can make it difficult on the budgets of the friends of the bride-to-be!

Give the Bride Her Due

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to announce my engagement at my cousin's wedding. Is it the proper thing to do? If it is, would I have to ask permission of the bride?

At what time during the wedding should I have my brother announce it? (There will be a dinner and dance.) S.

I don't think that you have any right even to ask your cousin for this privilege. Her wedding day is her day, and all the drama of the occasion, all the importance, all the significance, belong to her. You have no right to ask her to share these with you, even if you and she are the closest of friends. And for you to make this announcement without asking her is in the worst of taste.

So by all means plan having your own announcement party, or make your announcement informally, with notes written to your friends.

Good Manners Are Always In Order

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A and her fiance were walking down the street and a young lady accidentally dropped her glove. A's fiance stopped to pick it up. Do you think he was right in doing this? B claims it was manner's of him, and C disagrees, saying he had no right to do this, because, after all, he was walking with A. Who is right?

A, B AND C.

I can't understand why in the world C maintains that the man should discard his manners when he is walking with his fiancee. If he did this his fiancee wouldn't be very proud of him. Of course, he should have picked up the glove, whether or not he knew the woman who dropped it. And as he hands it to her, he should raise his hat.

Sympathy Comes First

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I haven't been on speaking terms with one of my girl friends for about six months. Now her father has just died. Do you think it proper for me to send her a card expressing my sympathy? A.

Such small things as "not being on speaking terms" take their proper perspective before the great fact of Death—and of course, you must at once write your friend to tell her of your sympathy and understanding, and to inquire of her if you may in any way help in this sadness that has come to her.

Don't send her a ready-made card—this is always terrible taste when we wish to send our condolence—but write her an honest-to-goodness letter. You don't even need to mention the "not-speaking." If you don't wish to. With her heart so full of sorrow as it is, it would be cruel of you to make anything of this pettiness. Be a fine, understanding friend, understanding and of service.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Vacation Time

Dr. Copeland

This is the time of year when a great many persons go on vacations. It is surprising to learn just how great is the migration of people from one state to another during the summer months. A writer recently described this procession as the "American caravan." Unfortunately, too many vacationists overlook the most important function, the real purpose of a good vacation. They fail to realize that relaxation, pleasure and rest are essential ingredients of a normal and healthful vacation. In the selection of a hotel, camp, farm or boarding house, too little attention is given to the available water, milk and food supply.

As a result of this negligence, vacationists often return home fatigued, suffering loss of weight and in many instances have contracted such infectious diseases as typhoid fever. I cannot overstate the importance of knowing that the water and milk supplies of the resort where you will vacation are above suspicion.

The popularity of the automobile has inspired many persons to spend their vacations traveling through the country, pitching camp at night, or putting up at a roadside inn. This is indeed a relaxing and enjoyable way of spending a vacation, but the dangers of carelessness must not be overlooked.

Never pitch your camp anywhere without making sure that it is located on a high and dry spot. Do not use water from the stream unless you are assured of its purity. Whenever in doubt it is best that the water be boiled before it is used for drinking purposes.

When you purchase foods on the roadside avoid places that are not screened from flies and dirt. Above all, do not drink milk that is not kept in sealed containers and certified as to its purity. Too often, the city vacationist is misled by the belief that because the milk is fresh from the cow it is pure. Some cows are diseased and their milk is a menace to the health of all who use it.

May I warn those individuals who believe that vacation time means merely "a good time." There are dangers in late hours, irregular meal times, overexertion and lack of rest. Such a vacation leads to poor health and disease.

Avoid all strenuous and fatiguing sports. Until the muscles and heart are accustomed to them, they may do harm.

Bear in mind that this is the time of year for your body to regain its strength and endurance. An abundance of fresh air, sunlight, regular hours of sleep and afternoon naps are of great benefit. They prepare for the strain of the months to come.

Answers to Health Queries

J. W. Q.—Will having your head shaved make your hair come in thicker? What can be done for dry hair?

A.—Occasionally this tends to stimulate the growth of the hair, however, there are times when this will not help the growth of the hair. For full particulars send a stamped, addressed envelope and repeat your question.

Mrs. O. B. W. Q.—My little girl of 3 has very little hair. What can I do to stimulate the growth?

A.—Application of pure white vaseline or olive oil, gently massaged into the scalp should be helpful. Make sure that general health is good. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Make This at Home

It's Simple, But . . . Oh, My!
Pattern 1922.

This is one of those tremendously chic two-piece frocks which do their stuff so quietly and subtly you have to stop and look carefully to find out where all that style really comes from. Front pleats that all turn in, are one of its clever little tricks, and pleated sleeves that grow into a devastatingly smart epaulet on the shoulders are another. The rest of it is mostly very good proportions and a demure and becoming little round collar. The original was made of red and white checked gingham and worn with navy blue accessories. It was stunning!

Pattern 1922 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes five yards 36-inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. Be SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

The smartest warm weather fashions, the newest fabrics, and the summer season's outstanding accessories are illustrated and described in the NEW PATTERN BOOK. ORDER YOUR COPY OF THIS HELPFUL NEW SUMMER BOOK. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CESTS.

Address orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

BUCS LOSE LINDSTROM FOR INDEFINITE PERIOD

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Hoyt Qualifies to Start. Shows He Can Go Route, Brilliant Work by Vet. • Ruffing Not Near Mark. McAuliffe in Politics. Army of Sprint Stars.

If ever a relief pitcher deserved to have his club come through and win for him, that pitcher was Waite Hoyt in yesterday's local game against the Cubs, which the Pirates pulled out of the fire with two men down in the ninth inning. And if a trace of doubt existed in any quarter as to Hoyt's right to a trial as a starting hurler, it must have been erased by the brilliant exhibition given by the veteran right-hander over a route that amounted almost to a regulation game.

Waite Hoyt

The only question about Hoyt centered around his staying qualities. All season he had been pitching just about the finest relief ball in the majors, but he never had gone more than six innings. Yesterday, however, he went seven and two-thirds frames, and made a strong finish after one of the best pitching performances seen on the home lot in a long time. This, too, in spite of the fact that it was the third straight game in which he had worked. Hoyt surely has earned the right to start a game of his own. He may not make a success of it but at least he deserves a chance to try, and in any event he can do no worse than the regulars have been doing.

TERRY RATES PITCHING DECIDING FACTOR

With all due respect to the help that the livelier ball gives to the clubs having hitting power, and while still conceding a solid base hit to be the best of all strategy, Bill Terry clings to the conviction that pitching will decide the pennant fight, whether the Giants keep the championship or yield to the challenge of one of their three western rivals. For that reason, he argues that if his club can remain at or near the top until Bud Parmelee, who gave himself a short test Saturday, is ready for regular starting duty, New York will have the stuff to beat them all down the stretch.

Because of the importance he attaches to pitching, Terry thinks the Cardinals will be harder to beat out than either the Pirates or Cubs. He believes St. Louis is the club he has got to worry about, and says the Dean boys alone are enough to make the Redbirds formidable. Besides, he views Joe Medwick as one of the best hitters in the league and sees a lot of power otherwise in Frankie Frisch's club. Discussing the new players he has seen this year, Terry says he was impressed most by Cookie Lavagetto, of the Pirates; Dolph Camilli, now with the Phils, and Tuck Stainback, of the Cubs.

RUFFING STILL FAR FROM MOUND RECORD

Since Red Ruffing ran up a string of three consecutive shutouts, including a one-hit game, fans in general have been awaiting his next start with interest and speculating as to how much farther he might extend his chain of 29 successive scoreless innings. The Yankee pitcher still is far from the major league records in both shutout games and runless innings.. The top mark for shutout games is five in a row, set by Doc White, of the White Sox, in 1904. Ed Reulbach hurled four straight for the Cubs in 1908, and Grover Alexander duplicated that performance for the Phils in 1911.

Red Ruffing

Reulbach's string included a double-header in which he blanked the Dodgers twice in one afternoon. The record for consecutive scoreless innings pitched is 56, set by Walter Johnson for the Senators from April 10 to May 14, 1913. Reulbach put together 44 scoreless rounds during his streak in 1908. Carl Hubbell beat that mark last year with 46 for a new National League record.

Ruffing, who allowed a total of only nine hits in his three straight shutouts, is in a fair way to prove the contention of New York scribes that he can be the best right-hander in baseball when he desires. It appears to be all a matter of condition. After winning 18 games out of 25 in 1932, Red allowed himself to take on a lot of weight last year and dropped to a record nine won and 14 lost. Last spring he became serious again, worked hard to remove the surplus poundage, and his present sensational form is the result.

OLD RING CHAMP SEEKS ASSEMBLY SEAT

Old Jack McAuliffe, one of the greats of the fight game from 1884 to 1896, and who retired in the latter year as the undefeated world lightweight champion, has thrown his hat back into the ring. Not that he wants anything to do with Barney Ross, present holder of Jack's former title. In fact, McAuliffe, 68 last March, is nearer to Max Baer's poundage than to that of Ross.

It's political glory that McAuliffe is seeking this time. He is a candidate on the Democratic ticket for the New York State Assembly from the Sixth District of Queens, which includes the so-called silk-stocking sector of Forest Hills and Kew Gardens. Jack wouldn't be the first ex-fighter to sit among the lawmakers. John Gully, English heavyweight, went to Parliament. John Morrissey, American heavyweight, went to Congress. Warren Barbour, New Jersey Senator, was an amateur heavyweight champion, and Marty McCue, featherweight and lightweight, held a seat in the New York Assembly.

SPRINTERS UNDER 10 FLAT NOW COMMON

There was a time when footracing experts scoffed at reports that a sprinter in some part of the track realm had done 100 yards in less than 10 seconds. They said it was due to incompetent or dishonest timing; that the men in the world able to run the century in 10 seconds could be counted on your fingers. If any of those skeptics of other days are around now, probably they can't believe their own eyes as they lamp the number of sprinters who have made "even time" look slow. A 10-second man couldn't even qualify these days.

Ralph Metcalfe

The amazing advance that has been made in sprinting was evidenced by the entry list for the recent National Collegiates in Los Angeles and for the A. A. U. national championship meet in Milwaukee. Imagine a single meet, like the one on the Coast, bringing together seven men with records of 9.6 seconds or better for 100 yards; nine who have covered the same distance in 9.7 seconds, and seven others who have stopped the watches at 9.8 seconds, or a total of 23 fliers in the 9.8 class or faster. There they were, headed by Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette's famous man of motion, who has equaled the official world record of 9.4 seconds, and Bob Kiesel, with a mark of 9.5. And you can add to that list of 23 many others under 10 seconds who are no longer running or who were not competing in those particular meets.

CITY LEAGUE'S NEW MEMBER MAKES BOW

The Immaculate Heart nine, winner of the Greater Pittsburgh Baseball Federation championship and a finalist in the National Baseball Federation elimination series, makes its bow as a member of the City League this evening when it has the honor of opening the second-half schedule by opposing the Book team, last year's titleholder and winner of the first-half crown, at Olympia Park.

Immaculate Heart, under the management of Joe Dobbs, is a well-balanced team and should prove a worthy successor to Beltzhoover, which was compelled to relinquish its franchise in the City League.

The Book nine clinched the first-half title yesterday by defeating Mt. Oliver at Mt. Oliver, 14-6. The team, however, will be handicapped in the second half due to the fact that Manager Heinie Boll, one of the best hitters in the league, is suffering from an injured leg. While Heinie may be unable to play regularly, his pinch-hitting ability makes him a valuable man in emergencies.

The Pittsburgh Crawfords and Nashville meet in the final game of their series at Greenlee Field this evening. Women will be admitted free. Wednesday finds the Crawfords and Homestead Grays clashing in two games at Greenlee Field, the first at 10:30 and the second at 6 p. m.

GURNAY BEAUTY RACE WINNER

Gurnay Beauty, from the loft of G. Paul Coultes, was the winner of the second mid-season pigeon race from Xenia, O., to Pittsburgh, a distance of 218 miles. The race was held by the Central Combine. The winner was followed closely by Andy, from the loft of A. Yodanis.

Pro Champs to Get Ed Thorpe Trophy

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP.)—The Ed Thorpe Memorial Trophy, in honor of the famous official who died recently, will go to the National Professional Football League champion hereafter.

The league officials approved the acceptance of the offer here yesterday. The championship game between the eastern and western winners will be alternated hereafter, starting in the East next fall.

Thevenow's Hit Which 'Won in the Ninth'

COACH CRANDALL LLOYD WANER

UMPIRE PFIRMAN CATCHER HARTNETT TOMMY THEVENOW

The Pirates put on a story book finish to beat out the Chicago Cubs, 5-4, at Forbes Field yesterday. Two pinch-hitters, Red Lucas and Earl Grace, were disposed of by Pitcher Bud Tinning in the ninth and the crowd began to leave, with the score 4-3 in favor of the Cubs. Then Lloyd Waner drew a base on balls, Paul Waner sent him to third with a hit to center which Cuyler fumbled and Pat Malone was called in to relieve Tinning. He walked Pie Traynor purposely to fill the bases and then Thevenow, who had just taken the place of Arky Vaughan at shortstop after the latter was chased for protesting a called third strike in the eighth, came through with a double to center which drove in the tying and winning runs and broke up the game with a dramatic flourish. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture shows Thevenow delivering the telling wallop in the pinch.

STAR'S FINGER HURT CHASING FUNGOES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Freddie Lindstrom, slugging leftfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be lost to the club for an indefinite period as a result of a second fracture in the third finger of his left hand. Lindy, who was nursing the injured member and believed to be almost ready to return to active duty, sustained the second fracture last week while chasing fungoes off the bat of Larry French. He left by airplane for Chicago today to undergo treatment.

X-ray pictures taken of the injured hand show that the bone in the third finger again was broken and as a result Lindstrom will be unable to see active duty for an indefinite period. In the meantime, Forest Jensen will hold down the left field post.

The race in the National League is getting hotter, but the Pirates are taking a breather today, the date being open on the playing card. The Bucs and Reds will stage a prelude game tomorrow, the same clubs to fight it out in morning and afternoon contests on Independence Day.

THEVENOW PROVES HERO

Baseball and the theremometer hit a new season's high at the Oakland Orchard yesterday as 11,000 natives and neighbors, heat-sick and grief-stricken because their favorites were trailing the Cubs as late as two out in the ninth, suddenly went haywire over a feat of the most unpretentious member of the Bucco squad—Tommy Thevenow.

Literally, it was the Waner Act that went over, but this time it went over the plate, with Tommy stealing the show as his courageous wallop to right-center scored the brothers and give the Bucs a 5-4 victory over the Cubs.

The drama of the last act was pepped up by contrasts. You see there was little cause for cheering during the afternoon, the home boys trailing nearly all the way.

So the disappointed fans were ready to leave the park when the first batter in the ninth went out, the Cubs enjoying a one-run lead. The exits were filling with homebound rooters as the second out was recorded.

PAUL HITS SINGLE

The homeward surge in the aisles halted as Sprout Waner drew a pass from Bud Tinning. A panic ensued in the exits as Brother Paul smacked a smoking drive to center. Sprout sprinted to third, and Paul hustled to second as Cuyler fumbled.

Then Tinning was yanked for Pat Malone, who walked Pie Traynor under orders, filling the EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: MAN WITH IRON HANDS—Thirty-two years ago Andrew A. Gawley, of Meaford, Ontario, lost his hands in a sawmill accident in Spry, Canada. For a long time he was unable to feed himself, dress or perform any work for a livelihood. But, with the help of his blind father, he finally remodeled a pair of hands made by an Owens Sound manufacturer, completely mastering their use. Today Andrew is able to perform all ordinary tasks, and his iron hands are even superior to natural ones, because he can break stones or cut wire with them as easily as with a pair of pliers. Gawley makes a profession of constructing his type of iron hands for other handless people and is now exhibiting his unbelievable accomplishments at the "Believe It or Not" Odditorium, Century of Progress Exposition, Chicago.

FORMER NATIONAL CHAMPION TO RACE IN HEARST REGATTA

JIM NUNNELLY TOP RANKING AMATEUR

A former national champion is included in the list of entrants in the William Randolph Hearst Gold Cup outboard regatta to be held by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and Oakmont Boat Club at Oakmont one week from next Saturday and Sunday.

The former premier is Jim Nunnelly, of Detroit, rated one of the four best amateurs in the United States. He is the former record holder in the E and F classes.

According to James W. Mulroy, of Chicago, secretary of the National Outboard Association, Rust Heinz, local star, is a much better than average amateur driver, as is also Warren E. Lucas, of Jersey City, another entrant, while Johnny Edgar, of Troy, O., is a star class F, or fast speed racer.

While entries already in from eight states in the East, Middle West and South, the regatta shapes up as one of the leading attractions of the year, and the thrill-seeking fans are assured of two afternoons of exciting sport.

Hoyt's relief pitching after relieving French in the second inning was another high spot.

The Pirates are idle today. Their game with the Cubs in Chicago on Thursday has been set back to make a doubleheader next Sunday.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER,
Former Star, Now Coach of Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

The Kaiser says he is willing to come back to the throne if the people want him to. I guess just about anybody would be Kaiser or President or King if the people wanted them to be, so there is nothing to get excited about over the Kaiser's offer. There are rumors that a military dictatorship will soon rule Germany and maybe this offer by the Kaiser is a trial balloon, as the politicians say. Sort of getting set, as it were. Anyway, the next couple of years are going to be interesting to watch. I guess you notice that I'm getting to be a student of European affairs.

Regards,
PROF. HONUS WAGNER.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY OF GREATER PITTSBURGH

LIFE PREMIUMS GAIN OVER YEAR AGO

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP.)—The people of the United States are paying life insurance premiums at the rate of almost $10,000,000 a day, or about $425,000 more than a year ago.

This comparison, based on statistics for the early months of this year, provides a key to the increased rate of savings of the nation's population, since the trying period of early 1933.

Statistics from 42 leading companies with 85 per cent of the insurance in force in the country show that 5,661,054 policies and certificates were taken out in the first five months of 1934, against only 4,934,000 in the corresponding period of 1934. Premium receipts for the first four months of this year amounted to $970,778,000, an increase of $42,675,000 over the same months of 1933.

VITAL INDEX

Many financial experts and economists regard life insurance statistics as a "vital" index of the nation's financial health. For into that great reservoir goes a vast part of those savings which are the backbone of the national economy.

More than half the population of the United States carries life insurance. Roughly 68,000,000 to 70,000,000 people have life policies out of a population of close to 130,000,000. There are only about 10,000,00 individual stockholders and 8,000,000 owners of bonds.

These policies, numbering more than 90,000,000, include ordinary life insurance policies, together with group and industrial policies generally assumed by employers for the benefit of their workers.

GROUP POLICIES GAIN

Group certificates, which get low rates because they are usually undertaken by an employer for his working force and are effective only during the course of employment, had the largest gain of the several classifications in the first five months of the year. Some 154,293 group certificates were issued, against only 63,000 last year, a rise of 145 per cent.

Industrial policies underwritten totaled 4,121,179, against 3,652,000 last year. Ordinary life policies were taken out in the number of 1,385,582, compared with 1,218,000 last year.

Ordinary policies are by far the largest in average size. The average policy of this type in 1934 has been $1,749. This compares with $1,756 last year and $2,250 for all outstanding policies. The average group policy this year has been $1,272, against $1,601 last year and $1,785 for business in force.

Industrial policies alone show a higher average than in the past. This year each industrial policy has averaged $259, compared with $245 last year and $210 for business in force.

VOLUME GAINS

The total dollar volume of life insurance underwritten in the first five months of the year amounted to $3,687,197,000, a gain of $548,529,000 over last year.

In addition to providing a good measure of the average American's pocketbook, life insurance company statistics offer an excellent cross-section of the investment and financial markets.

The assets of the life companies are enormous. These 42 concerns controlled $17,417,000,000 (as of April 30) of funds which must be kept in profitable employment. The opinions of the men who handle these funds naturally have a deep influence on the condition of the markets. Their assets, incidentally, rose $397,000,000 in the 12 months ended April 30.

BUY GOVERNMENTS

At the present time, 65 per cent of the new funds of the life companies is going into federal government obligations. Their aggregate holdings of government securities crossed the two thousand million dollar mark for the first time on April 30 when they totaled $2,022,000,000, compared with $1,465,000,000 the year before. Some state and municipal obligations are included in the total.

Other bonds and stocks held amounted to $6,868,000,000, compared with $6,275,000,000. Mortgages amounted to $5,457,000,000, against $6,002,000,000 12 months before. Life company executives say, by the way, that payments on mortgage principal are running well ahead of last year.

The most desirable asset from the insurance company point of view consists of loans on policies because of the 6 per cent interest charged. Figures on these loans are possibly indicative, too, of the financial condition of policyholders, for often premiums are met through borrowing against existing cash equity. Policy loans on April 30 totaled $2,915,000,000, a drop of $72,000,000 in the year, or 2.2 per cent in loans in force.

World's Largest Whisky Plant To Open

PEORIA, Ill., July 2.—(AP.)—Formal opening Friday of its $5,000,000 distillery, the largest in the world, was announced by officials of Hiram Walker & Sons Co. The new plant will turn out 100,000 gallons of whisky a day, and its daily grain consumption will be 20,000 bushels.

CLOUDS HOVER OVER STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 2.—(AP.)—Clouds hovered over the financial markets today and both traders and investors were inclined to remain within storm-proof shelters pending the clearing of speculative skies.

Extreme dullness marked the first day's operation of the stock exchange under federal regulation and most share groups, led by the rails, exhibited a rather heavy tone. Some of the nervousness was attributed to the exciting developments in Germany as well as to doubts concerning the effect of various new laws on industrial profits generally.

The softness of grains did not tend to brighten the picture. Wheat and corn dropped a cent or more a bushel and the other cereals lagged. Cotton reacted about $1 a bale at one time and silver and rubber futures were hesitant. Bonds of the secondary classes were somewhat reactionary. European gold currencies firmed in terms of the dollar.

Selling in the carrier section was attributed partly to the signing by the President of the railroad pension bill, which is expected to increase the costs of the roads by some $25,000,000. Executive disapproval of this measure had been forecast in some quarters.

The personnel of the exchange control commission was about in line with expectations. While many of the provisions of the new law will not become effective until October, Wall street was hoping that the several protective features of the act will tend to revive public confidence in equities and that business will recover some of its former volume.

Commentators pointed out that the impressive list of favorable dividend declarations in the past six months should go a long way toward convincing stockholders that the economic structure has been appreciably strengthened.

Among the uncertainties being considered, however, were the ability to trade to resume the recovery movement in the fall; the eventual worth of the dollar; the extent of government relief expenditures; the future of corporate earning power and the final position of NRA in business life. The market, it was believed, has already discounted some of these problems.

MARKETS DRAG IN EUROPE

LONDON, July 2.—Trading was inactive on the stock exchange today. Gilt-edged securities were steady, while German bonds were weak due to the obscure outlook. The closing tone was irregular.

PARIS, July 2.—Heaviness prevailed on the Bourse today, stocks showing small average losses. Germany's troubles were held accountable for the contraction of trading. The closing was heavy.

BERLIN, June 2.—Political events failed to make any great impression on the Boerse. The opening was cheerful due to satisfaction over the frustration of the treasonable plot. The tendency weakened in the course of the day, closing irregular and at the lowest, prices averaging 1 to 2 centums lower.

GRAIN VALUES RULE LOWER

CHICAGO, July 2.—Grain prices averaged lower early today. Pending issuance of unofficial July crop summaries, trade lacked volume, with sellers somewhat in a majority.

Opening unchanged to ⅝ off, September new 90⅛@¼, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn also started unchanged to ⅝ down and sagged all around.

I. C. C. Orders Probe Of Oil Pipe Lines

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP.)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today ordered an investigation of reduced rates and gathering charges recently put into effect by oil pipe lines to and between 11 states in the Southwest and Middle West.

Secretary Ickes, oil administrator, had asked the commission to refuse to allow the rate reduction. The commission previously had said it would not interfere with the rates pending an investigation.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Raw sugar was quiet early today, with prices unchanged at 3.13 for spots. No sales were reported.

Futures opened unchanged to 1 point lower, but displayed a steady undertone during the morning on a moderate turnover. September moved up from 1.71 to 1.72 on buying through brokers with Cuban and banking connections. The market was ruling net unchanged to 1 point higher at midday, with July selling at 1.67 and March at 1.87.

Refined list quotations remained unchanged at 4.75 for fine granulated, with a fair withdrawal demand continuing.

Visible Grain Supply.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The visible supply of American grain shows these changes in bushels: Wheat increased 3,706,000; corn decreased 2,138,000; oats decreased 873,000; rye increased 713,000; barley decreased 28,000.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

The market was due ⅛ to ¼d lower, opened ¼d off, and at 2.15 p. m. was ⅜ to ½ pence lower.

The close was ⅛ to ⅜ pence lower, figured on sterling at 8.04.

NEW YORK CLOSE WITH NET CHANGES

Mixed Shift At End of Half Year

By B. C. FORBES

LATEST developments represent a mid-summer mixture of favorable and unfavorable, of ups and downs. Thus:

Mr. Forbes

Yet 16 million Americans are today receiving public relief—and New York City records a big increase in its current relief expenditures over a year ago.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT emphasized in his radio talk the many measures taken by Washington to improve conditions—and he was able to call an impressive roll.

The Democratic Appropriations Committee chairman puts the total incurred by the Seventy-third Congress at just under $14,000,000,000, the Republicans' spokesman places it at nearer $19,000,000,000.

PROPONENTS of the New Deal point to the record breaking quotations ruling for United States government obligations as proving beyond shadow of doubt that the national credit never stood higher.

The financial world explains that Washington has so chilled the spirit of enterprise and given so little thought to the safeguarding of investments that investors, both institutional and individual, are afraid to put their capital to work in normal channels, and that the premium on government obligations reflects, not confidence in national conditions, but unprecedented lack of confidence. They point out also that America's banks never before carried such a mountainous volume of excess idle funds.

MEANWHILE, stocks and bonds mainly mark time.

Agricultural commodities are influenced by weather changes, but they too, have lately been without definite trend.

Similarly, advances in some raw materials are offset by declines in others. Steel prices for the third quarter were lowered appreciably at the week-end, creating rather disquieting effect. Cotton, silk, rubber, pork did somewhat better, but eggs, butter, hides, wool, lumber receded.

SENTIMENT may be said to be just as mixed as actual developments.

It still is true that there is more optimism lower down than higher up in the world of affairs.

The present prospect is that irregularity will be experienced during the coming two or three months.

What happens thereafter doubtless will be influenced importantly by governmental and other political activities and prospects.

THIS WRITER FEELS STRONGLY THAT EVERY RESPONSIBLE CITIZEN SHOULD PUT HIS SHOULDER TO THE WHEEL TO PUSH THE NATION FORWARD.

IT WOULD BE a grave mistake for business, industry, financial leaders to assume that permanent recovery has been absolutely assured and that therefore, there is no special need to exert effort and ingenuity to the point of incurring risks, in the national interest.

PROGRESS has been made in this country, as well as throughout the world of course. But the total of men and women still unable to find gainful employment remains appalling.

Unemployment of capital is as correspondingly abnormal as unemployment of workers. True, employers were poignantly disappointed over the failure of President Roosevelt to voice one word as to the vital necessity for business to earn at least moderate profits.

Corporate Earnings

Endicott Johnson Corporation and subsidiaries report for the six months ended May 26, net profit of $889,459 after all charges. This is equal, after deducting preferred dividends paid, to $1.69 a share on the 495,360 shares of common stock outstanding. Net profit for the corresponding six months period a year ago amounted to $855,184, or $1.59 a share on the common stock. Net sales for the six months amounted to $26,820,899 compared with $18,765,537 for the like period of 1933.

Erie System for five months ended May 31 shows net income of $875,885 after taxes and charges, equal after allowing for dividend requirements on the 4 per cent first preferred stock, to 40c a share on 155,570 shares of 4 per cent second preferred stock. This compares with net loss of $2,125,973 in first five months of 1933.

International Shoe Company in six months ended May 31 earned $1.45 a common share, against 84c a common share in the like 1933 period.

SLOAN, MOTORS CHIEF, SEES RECOVERY

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, feels certain that we are in an industrial recovery. Furthermore, that this recovery is, in its general trend, a force as irresistible as that of the industrial depression that preceded it.

He was asked today, the end of the first half of 1934, if, in spite of all the current pessimism, he still felt as he stated in his annual report earlier in the year.

There was no hesitation in answering "yes." He had said at that time:

"The rate of improvement may accelerated or retarded by injecting into the picture abnormal influences, but the general trend will not be affected for the reason that an industrial recovery, like an industrial depression, is, in a practical sense of the word, an irresistible force."

He reiterated:

"Yes, I still stand by that, although the part about acceleration or retardation is important and there goes with that, the implication that influences could be injected into the picture that would temporarily offset the normal trend toward recovery."

VIEW OF U. S. SPENDING

Sloan, while an optimist, appreciates that pessimism is quite general among business and financial leaders today. He said:

"For one thing, the thinking people seem to view, with apprehension, the spending of such huge sums of money. They realize that expenditures of this character have the political effect of calling for more and bigger expenditures, and they wonder where it will end, and whether it will end short of a catastrophe..

"Understand, I'm giving you what I believe to be a cross-section of opinion if the people I meet—not necessarily my own. As for myself I just can't believe but what we will have judgment enough to recognize facts and adjust our course before it is too late.

"The situation seems to call for some definite clarification of policy on the part of the administration. On the other hand, we all must recognize that that is not possible because many of the things that are being done are admittedly experimental. That being the case, the best policy can only be determined by the process of trial and elimination or modification as we are able, through evolution, to measure the effect on the national economy."

DEFINES "PESSIMISM"

Sloan was asked how he accounted for the pessimism existing in the face of rising indices of business which characterized the first half of the year. He answered:

"Certainly even a superficial analysis of how we stand today, compared with how we stood a year and a half ago, must convince any fair-minded individual that we are immeasurably better in almost every way. This fact we should keep continually before us—we are too apt perhaps to forget it. I am speaking now from the standpoint of our national economy as a whole. Unfortunately, we have not progressed far enough to have yet affected the individual position of many of our people.

"All this being as it is, I ascribe the pessimism, to which you refer, to the uncertainty as to whether our material improvement is to be maintained, or whether it is synthetic in character, in which event it cannot be maintained. I do not think the word pessimism is the right word to use. It isn't pessimism, it is uncertainty. As a matter of fact, I believe that both fear and pessimism, as to the future, have passed so far as this industrial depression is concerned, unless there is injected into the picture something that does not now appear to be evident."

Market Board May Name Pecora Chairman

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP.)—Friends of Ferdinand Pecora still believed today the counsel of the Senate Banking Committee might become chairman of the Stock Market Regulating Commission.

They said Pecora had not agreed to take a membership on any other terms.

Despite indications that President Roosevelt intended for Joseph P. Kennedy, New York financier, to be chairman, Pecora's friends believed he might be selected to head the regulatory body.

They predicted if given a free hand the four majority members of the commission known to favor strict regulation of the exchanges would choose one of their own group to head the body.

They contended that if the commission chose the rotating system of chairmanships which prevails in some other commissions they might begin with Pecora, who holds the one-year appointment, and end up with Kennedy, who was appointed for the five-year term.

Chairman Fletcher, of the Senate Banking Committee, was one of those who hoped Pecora would be made chairman.

LAUDS LEMKE BILL'S AIM

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Strong endorsement of the Frazier-Lemke bill as a measure "to prevent original selfish creditors from foreclosure on distressed farm debtors," was voiced today by Gov. W. I. Myers, of the Farm Credit administration.

Under this bill, signed Saturday by the President, a virtual moratorium on farm mortgage debts for a six-year period is provided, together with the creation of a special bankruptcy procedure for distressed agriculturists. Myers said:

"The program of the Farm Credit administration has been to prevent arm foreclosures and to refinance excessive debt burden on a basis which would permit good farmers to work out.

"As a result of the general recovery during the past year and the loans of the federal land banks and the land bank commissioner, the great majority of distressed farm mortgage cases have been relieved, leaving a very slight minority of farmers who will have to go into bankruptcy to save their homes.

U. S. 'Kitty' Ten Billion To Fight Depression

WASHINGTON, July 2.—(AP.)—In the fiscal year just beginning, the government can spend near 10 billion dollars and still remain within President Roosevelt's estimates of the cost of whipping the depression.

It spent a peacetime record of $7,105,050,084 in the 1934 fiscal year which closed Saturday night, piled up an operating deficit of $3,989,496,035 and pushed the public debt to an all-time high of $27,053,141,414.

Even these huge sums were far below Mr. Roosevelt's forecast of $10,569,006,967 of outlays in the old year and a debt increase of $7,309,068,211 as compared

Girl in the Family

By BEATRICE BURTON

CHAPTER XXV

In the three weeks she had known Allen he had changed everything in Susan's life, giving point and meaning to everything she did. Even these days of dullness and hard work were bringing her closer to the time when she could marry him and settle down to the real business of life, and the joy of it . . . "Marry and settle down." The worn phrase sounded matter-of-fact and dull enough, but all the enchantment and romance of the whole world were bound up in it for Susan whenever she thought of herself and Allen standing before a minister or going house-hunting—and she thought of very little else as she ran her hot iron over the old linen tablecloths and sheets or scraped gravy from the bottom of the roasting pan.

On Wednesday night Allen stayed downtown for his law classes, but on Thursday night when Susan was getting dinner she heard him come in. She had the kitchen door open so that she could listen for him, and when she heard the sound of his key turning in the lock she went softly down the rear hall to the side door.

"Susan . . . Susan." He took her in his arms and Susan leaned back in them tilting her face for his to kiss.

"Susan, just think, some night I'll be coming home this way to our house, and you'll be waiting for me—" Then his arms slackened and he drew away from her, listening. A door closed somewhere in the front part of the house and footsteps came down the hall. Slow, heavy, shuffling footsteps. Uncle Worthy in his house slippers.

Allen glanced toward the door that led to the front hall. The footsteps came very close, then stopped and the door of Uncle Worthy's study opened and closed.

Wants to Be Above Board

Susan breathed a long sigh of relief. "Saved!" she whispered and let out a little laugh that was hardly more than a breath.

Allen shook his head. "I can't say that I care so much for this hole-and-corner stuff," he said flatly. "The sooner they know about you and me the better pleased I'll be."

"What do you mean?" Susan's eyes were large and questioning in the dimness of the cold little entry way.

"I mean this—that the last thing in the world that two people ought to be underhanded about is their love," he said, opening the door that led to the front hall. "If they have to sneak and lie about it—" He snapped his fingers as if he wanted to show her just how worthless that sort of love was in his opinion, and went up the front staircase to his own room.

Back in the glare of the kitchen Susan thought over what he had said as she turned the veal chops in their sizzling pan and turned down the gas under the coffee pot . . . He was right about love, of course.

The door from the pantry swung open and Uncle Worthy popped his head into the kitchen. "Didn't I hear you talking to someone out here, Susan?"

She shook her own head. "There hasn't been a soul but me in the kitchen for at least an hour," she said. It was the truth and yet it was not the truth. She knew that she ought to say, "I was just talking to Mr. Sholes in the entry way, Uncle Worthy."

Wallace Coming Home

Just before dinner a telegram came from Wallace. It had been sent from a town less than a hundred miles away and it announced that he would be home that night and would telephone her from the station as soon as his train got in. Susan, in the role of housemaid, answered the doorbell when the messenger boy brought it and she said nothing about it to anyone in the family.

But she took it with her when she slipped out of the house after dinner to meet Allen, who was waiting for her in the doorway of the Shoe Fixery on the corner, just out of sight of the house. They read it by the light of the arc light, their heads close together. It was below-zero weather and the street was almost deserted. A block away the footsteps of a solitary pedestrian rang like iron in the frozen stillness, and the stars were unusually large and bright above the roofs on the other side of the street.

"If you're going to have to see Steffen tonight you'd better not stay here, talking, very long," Allen said when he had read the telegram and handed it back to Susan. His voice was sharp with the kind of sarcasm that is the result of jealousy. "You'd better go and get dressed for him."

"He may not want to come out tonight," Susan answered. Her voice was like a gentle hand, reaching out to soothe him. "He only said that he was going to call me up—and, Allen, I wish you wouldn't be jealous and bitter like this. You don't have to be. I'm never going to see him again, or think of him, after I get things straightened out with him. But I am sorry for him because this is going to humiliate him—"

"But, sorry or not, you're going to tell him exactly how things are, aren't you?" In the shadow of the doorway he put his hand under her chin, tilting her face so that he could look directly down into it. "The sooner you get it over with the better it will be for everyone concerned, Susan. It isn't fair to him or to yourself or to me not to tell him right away."

He left her after a few minutes, his whole attitude being that of a man who is leaving the woman he loves to an uninteresting rival knowing that presently she will return to him.

"If you don't go through with this, you needn't ever try to explain it to me, Susan." That was his parting remark.

The train that brought Wallace back from the south was late because of a down-state snowfall, and he did not telephone her until half past eleven that night.

"It's too late for me to come out, sweetheart," he said, to her great relief. "I'd drive past to see you just for a second, but it would be after midnight by the time I got there and I won't get too much sleep, as it is. Hard day ahead of me tomorrow, after all this loafing, too."

At twelve the next day Susan left a luncheon of cold salmon and potato salad for her aunts and Uncle Worthy set the table, and went down to the bank to see him.

She had telephoned him to say that she was coming and he was waiting for her, with a white carnation in the lapel of his coat. She wondered if he always wore one when he was at work or if he had gone out to the flower stand in the lobby of the building to decorate himself with it in her honor. His collar was as white as the flower, and his face was reddened by the sun. He had had three good days of golf, he told her.

As she shook hands with Wallace, Susan felt shabbier than usual. In comparison with his double-breasted blue suit, his necktie of rich and heavy satin, his glossy black shoes, her old fur coat seemed to take on an extra rustiness and "rattiness."

But Wallace smiled down at her as if she were the most beautiful human being in the world, and the grip of his fingers hurt. "Susan, I've got to kiss you," he said with a glance over his shoulder at an elderly man who sat at the desk next to his. "I wish old Barton"—he nodded in the man's direction—"would go chase himself around the bank for a minute or two so I could do it."

Wants to Confess

Allen would have kissed her if all the bankers in the Fourth Federal Reserve District had been there to see him do it, Susan reflected, if she were openly engaged to him as she still was to Wallace. But she was glad that Wallace did not try to. She wondered, looking at his handsome uninteresting face, how she had ever let those rather pale lips touch hers, and how she had ever mistaken a feeling of security for love.

He drew up a chair for her beside his desk and seated himself in his own chair, looking very business-like, as if he were ready to discuss stocks and bonds and second mortgages with her. Far back in his eyes was a questioning look as if he were wondering why she had come to see him.

"Will you go out and have lunch with me after a bit?" he asked. "I can't leave until half past twelve. I shouldn't, at any rate."

Susan's throat tightened and stiffened all at once so that she had to swallow hard two or three times before she could answer. "Thanks, but I don't care for lunch, Wallace. I came down here to see you because I have a—a sort of confession to make to you."

She clasped her hands on the very edge of his flat-topped desk. In the palm of the left one was the ring box, held tightly as she had held her Sunday school nickel when she was a little girl.

"Yes?" Wallace draped one arm over the back of his swivel chair and smiled at her calmly. "And what is this dreadful confession?" His smile implied that whatever it was it couldn't be so very bad or so very important. He was very certain of her, and his certainty showed in his attitude.

"It really is dreadful, Wallace." Susan put her elbows on the desk and leaned closer to him so that the elderly man could not hear what she was going to say.

Something in the gesture, something in her face, must have suddenly convinced Wallace that she really did have something important to say to him. The smile slowly left his eyes and the questioning look deepened in them.

'Can't Go On'

"Our engagement can't go on!" She brought the words out in a rush. "It's all over!"

Wallace sat back in his chair as if she had reached out and slapped him across his face. He stared at her as if she were a total stranger who had brought him some shocking piece of news.

"But how?" he asked finally. "How not go on?"

Susan stared down at her clasped hands. "This is the hardest thing I've ever had to do, Wallace. To explain this to you, I mean. But I do want to be honest with you. When I told you I'd marry you I fully intended to do it. I was sure I loved you. But I'd never been in love before, and I didn't know what it was like."

"Ah!" Wallace's smile came back into his face, the kind of smile that is as bitter as a look of extreme dislike. "I see. You've found out since then what it is like to be in love. Is that it?"

"I'm afraid it is."

She had not meant to tell him that. She had intended simply to tell him that she did not care for him enough to marry him, and then to get away from him as soon as possible. She saw now that it was not going to be easy to carry out that program.

Wallace got out of his chair. "Let's go somewhere and talk this over," he said, "in private. I'm afraid I don't quite get the hang of what you're trying to say."

He got his overcoat and his rubbers and his hat, and side by side they crossed the white marble floor of the bank and out into the cold sunshine of South Main street.

Not all questions can be answered, although many of the world's brightest and wisest men have thought about some of them and tried to answer them for years. In fact, what men know now is only a tiny, tiny part of what will probably be known eventually. Most books are answers to questions. A book is one of the best ways we have of storing up information.

When the farmer stores grain in the barn, it is for use later, but the grain is used up eventually. The knowledge in books is always there.

But maybe you can't find the answers to your questions in books. And maybe no one can tell you. Then you want to try to find the answer yourself. That's probably the most fun of all.

We know a fellow who likes to work out puzzles. He thinks and thinks, and tries and tries. And almost always he solves the puzzle. He says solving a puzzle gives him more pleasure than eating ice cream cones.

And so it is with most puzzles. If you like to use your head, you will like to solve puzzles. Almost everybody who invents something was trying to find the answer to a question.

Once, for instance, there was a man who wanted to know why you couldn't sew by machinery. Sewing, he saw, was a hard job and took a lot of time and trouble. And since all clothing had to be sewed by hand, either the clothing cost a great deal or the women and men who did the sewing didn't get paid very much.

So this man worked to figure out the answer to this problem—a machine that could sew. And finally he found the secret. He put the eye of his needle near the point, instead of in the back, as in the hand needle.

Get your mother to show you how her sewing machine works sometime. And get a mechanic to explain how automobiles work, and other machinery and wonderful inventions.

Daily Short Short-Story

By ELEANOR BLAKE

After a long period of unemployment, Cynthia Earnshaw, a secretary and efficient business woman, at last found work. But she refrained from telling Ken Tillson what its nature was. She was confident something else would soon turn up in a few days and in the meantime there was no use destroying Ken's idea of her. No use letting the man she loved, the man she planned to marry, know that his future wife was stationed behind the counter in a chain drug store.

Ken was well up in the copy department of a big advertising firm, a salaried man, a man with a position to maintain. And since they would soon be married, and Cynthia would be giving up her job in any case, she would keep her secret to herself. For a few days, a few weeks, perhaps . . .

But the weeks became months and the months a year. Ken's salary was cut once, and then again. But Ken wouldn't have his wife working after marriage, even in so dignified a capacity as that of secretary to the president of a large importing firm. Times would get better after a while. Meantime, Cynthia and Ken would simply wait.

* * *

Cynthia's first guilt concerning the deception she was practicing on the man she loved grew with time in volume and intensity. She hated snobbishness; he hated lying, and here she was caught in a very network of both—and the web was of her own weaving. Yet the task of untangling so intricate a meshwork loomed larger with each day that passed. She couldn't tell him now, couldn't tell him that, not only was she doing work they both would think beneath her, but that she had lied to him about it as well.

But tell him she must, and soon, because Ken had recently suggested that he call for her at the office, that they have lunch together.

He had, in fact, insisted a point of it. And she could not cope with him much longer. So far she had held him in check, but only last night he had brought the subject up again. He had laughed, true enough, saying:

"I'm coming for you tomorrow noon, honey, whether you say 'yes' or 'no'." But he had set his lips in a firm line, then had added, "Unless, of course, you don't want the office force to see me, unless you're ashamed of me . . .

She had lacked courage to tell him then, hadn't been able to summon will enough. And now, this noon, he would call for her at the office where she had said she worked, call for her and be told she was not there, had never been there . . .

She glanced up at the clock and saw that in half an hour it would be time for lunch. Her heart, heavy with apprehension, was leaden in her breast. In thirty minutes, in twenty-five, in twenty . . . And tonight he would call her, come to see her, face her with accusations of snobbishness, of cowardice, of lies.

"Cynthia!"

"Ken!"

The startled, frightened look in her eyes turned slowly to realization, and then to laughter.

"Quick, honey," he cried, "the gum! Somebody's holding my cage for me. I've been out of work for weeks—just got this job. If I'm not back in three minutes I may lose it."

He leaned across the counter, dropped the silver coin he held in his hand into her open palm, pressed the palm swiftly for an instant, then ran out the door, calling as he went, "I'll see you tonight, sweetheart. But not at the office." He laughed and was gone.

* * *

Ken stepped into his cage with an elated grin at the boy holding it for him. "Thanks, Tom. I'll do the same for you some time."

"Aw, skip it. Today's your last day, isn't it?"

"Yes. I'm quitting tonight."

"I dont' know much about you, Ken, but I've liked you ever since you came in here two weeks ago. Listen, don't get me wrong or anything, but if you need dough I got some you can have till you get set."

"O. K. Just wanted to let you know."

"Hello, pal," said a friendly voice. "Come on in. What's on your mind?"

"Nothing, Bill, except my two weeks are up and I wanted to drop in and thank you for dealing me in when I asked for it."

"Oh, that's all right. Glad to do you a favor any time. Say, how did you break the fact that you were a full-fledged elevator operator to the little woman?"

"That was easy enough. I just ran over to the drug store and pretended I didn't know she was working there. Gee, she can look cute when she's happy. You should have seen her beam when she realized that I had on an elevator operator's uniform. The poor kid, that job's been bothering her for weeks.

"I know, old man, but how's it going to sound to her when she finds out you were only working this thing during your vacation. She'll put two and two together, discover that you were only trying to make her feel good—and then figure she looks like a sap. It'll be a honey of a thing to handle."

Ken looked at him with a funny little self-conscious twinkle in his eye. "Love will take care of that, my boy."

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

Match correctly:

1. "All other goods by fortune's hand are given
   A wife is the peculiar gift of heaven." — Benj. Disraeli.
2. "In much wisdom is much grief." — Pope.
3. "Youth is a blunder; manhood a struggle; old age a regret." — Wordsworth.
4. "I dote on his very absence and I wish them a fair departure." — Bible.
5. "The smoke ascends
   To heaven as lightly from the cottage hearth
   As from the haughtiest palace." — Shakespeare.

Do you know:

6. What is the human skeleton composed of?
7. About how much blood is there in the average person?
8. What are caterpillars the larvae of?

1. Pope, "January and May." 2. Bible. 3. Benj. Disraeli, "Coningsby." 4. Shakespeare, "Merchant of Venice." 5. Wordsworth, "The Excursion." 6. Bone and cartilage. 7. About six quarts. 8. Butterflies and moths.

We feel sorry for the disappointed tourists who are unable to start fires in the petrified forest.

Mr. Keenweese says he did his best. His letter of to date: "I couldn't find any leaves. But after cooking dinner we got the pie plates and the wrapping paper together. Making a small heap, I tossed a lighted match on it. It blazed quite well. We drove away laughing merrily in top glee. Next day we got all the newspapers in another state but none of them mentioned a fierce timber fire raging anywhere. The wife felt terribly about the whole thing as yesterday was the children's birthday."

Well, it's too tooting bad, Mr. Keenweese. The reason you didn't find any leaves was because you were in the petrified forest. You couldn't start a fire there even though you didn't realize it at the time. The trees are as stony as the left leg of Gen. Grant's monument.

Later on in his letter Mr. Keenweese states that he launched a very neat avalanche in Switzerland two years ago that swept away three small but pretty towns. He did a highland fling on a balanced boulder and the thing started off in high gear. We wonder if Mr. Keenweese had anything to do with the tidal wave in that Norwegian fjord. He seems to be a man who gets places and leaves in the nick of time.

The careless campers did some fine work in the Adirondacks this summer. Seventy-five acres were singed off the top of the mountains by an amateur who ain't even listed in the first 10. All he had was a pocket lighter and some excelsior from a busted seat cushion. He says he fanned it with his hat for an hour. This blaze came within a mile of a town. All his efforts were wasted when the residents beat it out with shovels, banjos and barrel slats. The audience was so unappreciative that he didn't go back to make a speech.

Now, we would like to learn the address of that lad. We want to know where to send his medals. He ain't the professional type who will violate the game and bird laws by using gasoline on a windy day. He's a bona fide amateur, sport for sport's sake.

Out in the Yellowstone and among the big trees there has been interference from the government forest rangers. They made a tourist go back 10 miles to stamp out a cigaret he had thrown into a pile of dry shavings. They didn't even allow him congressional mileage although he has an uncle who was almost elected to something in his lodge. We are going to see about this. America is supposed to be a free country.

ODD FACTS

In 1832 London boasted 80 firemen and 19 stations; in 1866, 136 men and 20 stations; today there are 1,911 officers and men, with 61 stations.

Police Get Shake-up

Department Is Doing Better Job But Should Have Greater Security.

The latest shake-up in the Pittsburgh police department, some of the demotions, dismissals and promotions having a political tinge, is but another evidence of the unrest which must extend itself clear through the department outside the civil service ranks.

By and large the police department has been doing an improved job. It has been raiding heretofore unraidable places, and it appears that the reported old system of concentrated collections for "privileges" has been stopped.

But a department which, in six months has had three directors of public safety, two superintendents of police, three assistant superintendents, and now an acting superintendent, manifestly cannot have any feeling of security. The condition raised by the resignation of Superintendent Ben Marshall, which Director A. Marshall Bell refuses to accept, is confusing.

It is generally conceded that Superintendent Marshall will not return to the force. But he may. Through the influence of friends he is to be paid in full to the end of the year ,and then may retire on a pension. Meanwhile Assistant Superintendent Jacob Dorsey serves as acting superintendent for the interim.

In the unexpected event that Mr. Marshall should return it is assumed Mr. Dorsey would step back to his secondary place. If Mr. Marshall does not return there is no assurance Mr. Dorsey will become superintendent. Director Bell says he considered other men for the superintendency, but the plan to pay Mr. Marshall at least for the remainder of the year made that impossible.

The whole situation is confusing, as the subject of the department's leadership has been ever since the McNair administration took office. This must not be taken as a criticism of the department's work, so far as it has felt it could function effectively.

Incidentally, with so many changes being made, now might be an excellent time to put back on the force some of the men who were efficient, but in former administrations were dismissed for purely political reasons. This would serve to show that the present department means what it says when it denies politics in its conduct.

May Change Front

Protest Meetings Against Incinerator Sites May Influence Mayor's Attitude.

Mayor McNair, according to report, is planning to permit the incinerator ordinances to become law without his signature. Protest meetings against the Chateau street and Brilliant Pumping Station sites are scheduled for tonight, and the tone of these meetings may cause the Mayor to change front.

It is time this subject was being settled. Any one who believes it ever will be settled without controversy, and that any district will not protest against the location of a city incinerator in its midst, still believes in Santa Claus. It is only natural that protests should continue.

But Council has acted after long deliberation, after hearing protests, and after considering many sites. It has met a demand which the public has made for years, a step toward the ending of the exorbitant contracts held by private companies.

Each day of delay, each week of dallying with the problem, but serves to extend the life of this contract that much longer beyond January 1, when the incinerators are supposed to be ready. And Director Moyer of the Department of Public Health says the public operation of these plants means substantial savings.

Pension Fund

Supreme Court Decrees County Must Contribute To Maintenance of System.

County pensioners who have received no payments during the controversy between the County Commissioners and the County Pension Fund, now seem assured of a resumption of their allotments. The Supreme Court has decreed that the Commissioners must contribute to the pension fund.

Chairman Charles C. McGovern of the County Board says he doesn't know where the required $75,000 is to be found in the county treasury, but apparently it must be. The result will be either a curtailment of other county work or a deficit at the end of the year.

The Commissioners originally balked—with the exception of Commissioner Mansfield—because they held the fund was insolvent and was headed for bankruptcy. As a corrective, they sought legislation for a new pension system in the last Legislature, but were defeated. They can try again next year, perhaps with better success if they can prove their contention.

Whatever the merits of the positions of the two agencies in the controversy, there will be approval for the payments to those who contributed their money to the pension fund and for so long were without returns.

Civil Service

Commission Restores to Exempt Class 50 Positions Which Kline Opened to Politics.

The Civil Service Commission showed that it meant business Saturday when it restored to the exempt class approximately 50 positions which the Commission in the Kline administration had opened up to political preferment.

The crux of the decision revolved around the restoration to work of a son of Councilman P. J. McArdle, who had been discharged from his Mayview position by Director Hay of the Department of Welfare. That, however, has practically no political implication, as the Commission and Mr. McArdle do not see eye-to-eye politically.

What the Commission has done, additionally, is to restate its principle that department heads must bear the burden of proof that an employe should be dismissed.

In one respect the Commission was rather naive in its latest decision. It held the exemptions never were legally accomplished because there was no record that the late Mayor Kline had ever approved the change of classification. If Mr. Kline hadn't approved the change there would have been a new commission, whatever the record shows or fails to show.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 2.—Diary: Out to a Grand Central lunch counter. And the man next stool was handcuffed to an undersheriff going to Sing Sing, a youngish fellow who could not keep back tears. So across town speaking to Jimmy Johnstone and Billy Seeman and gazed upon the increasing decadence of Broadway from Louis Mann's step at the Astor.

So the afternoon writing a magazine vignette about America's most widely discussed newspaperman, Damon Runyon. Then to the Rex Coles for tea and, wandering Columbus avenue, picked up a fey volume of Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch and stopped awhile to talk to Roxy.

Driving to the Sleepy Hollow Country Club with my lady to dine with the Will Hayses and Will's brother Hinkle. And on the road home a motor was upside down in a ravine, a woman killed and her husband, swaying from drink, was shrieking hysterically. A sorry picture.

* * *

The Sleepy Hollow Country Club, built 44 years ago, was once the home of Finley Shepherd and wife, the former Helen Gould. The housekeeper installed at the opening still presides. There are 17 bedrooms for club members furnished as they were originally and the largest in America. The largest, occupied by Mrs. Shepherd, encompasses the space of at least five ordinary rooms, the closet double-decked with winding stairs. What was once a front terrace is now the golf course. From every window the view is so sweeping that pastoral serenity becomes somewhat torpor. You want to hear the cars go bump.

One of the smallest, most select town clubs is the Coffee House, whose membership is made up of painters, writers, sculptors, architects and actors. The rules are confined to a single mandate, viz there shall be no rules. The purposes of the organization were set down by the late Joseph H. Choate at the opening dinner: "No officers, no liveries, no tips, no set speeches, no candidates for membership, no charge accounts, no rules." Frank Crowninshield is a prime mover.

Sumner Blossom, lean young magazine editor, does not pace the room, tugging at a forelock, an old sanctum custom, in discussing stories with writers. He is a chair gymnast instead. He may sit on one leg, then the other, or Bhudda-like, on both. And in tense moments almost ties himself in a knot. Lord Northcliffe was another editor who liked to sit at conferences with legs doubled under him. Perhaps the only editor to relax in office powwows was the late Ben Hampton. He stretched out on a chaise-longue puffing a big cigar when taking things over. Bob Davis used to pencil hieroglyphics furiously on a desk pad but never missed a word.

Ballard Macdonald, long one of Tin Pan Alley's crack song writers, joined the expatriates in Tahiti months ago, after closing up affairs for a permanent isolation on that outer fringe of the world. But after six weeks of cultured beachcombing a George White post-card forwarded from his New York address reading: "How about some lyrics for my new show?" sent him up the gangplank of the next steamer—so hungry for civilization he left flat on its back he walked right up and kissed the Times Building. His dream of exile, as is usual, was pleasant only in planning.

The remaining expatriated Americans in France believe the unprecedented fine of nearly a million for Jenny Dolly was merely the outward glow of inner embering toward foreign success there. A French trick. The Dolly sisters have been stepping high, wide and handsome for many years in Paris and along the Riviera. This definitely puts a crimp in their strut. Jenny Dolly will move to London or return to New York. She is through with France and vice versa.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

The day was a mess. Those hundreds of dreadful letters filled with bitterness and despair—and nothing that I could do about it all. What was the use? Was there any hope for any of us any more—or had the world come to a dead end, at last?

You know the mood, don't you? Who doesn't, nowadays? Generally, though, I can fight clear of it. But this morning something was wrong with the old wallop. And then suddenly—just the way they do in the patent medicine ads—I stumbled across a sentence in O. O. McIntyre's column.

Mind me mixing you in with the pink pills, "Odd?" You shouldn't—for you're certainly grand for what ails us. And maybe you'd been having a touch of the blues yourself.

For you told of driving around a little old church in the dusk and seeing its spire reaching up against the night, seeming to "tear out the sick new things of life and beacon the strong old promises."

Grand words, Odd! Did you hear the old gal's spine snapping back into place across three thousand miles?

"The sick new things of life" . . . God! it doesn't require any Brain Trust to enumerate them! The sick new fears . . . the sicker new fevers . . . plain as a plague you can read their record on the haunted, hungry faces of today. Faces that are all dressed up with nowhere to go. A whole world sick with hate and greed and doubt. And you think you've found the answer, Odd?

The steeple of a small, gray church standing strong and still above the blazing bedlams of a Hollywood night. A pointing spire—symbol of the faith that has been part of the human dream since man first began dreaming at all. Yet, today, it is as potent as when the first fumbling fingers formed it out of splintered stone. Potent to do that which faith has always done for sick, sad men—release and lift their fainting hearts to God.

Promises—of what? What do we need for our release? Faith in a life hereafter—a healing heaven after this earthly hell? Yes, but more than that. We need—and that spire points the way—hope and healing now.

The old sure stars that have never ceased to shine in spite of the darkest storms. Blazing through the night, brightening to the sunrise, shine God's "strong, old promises"—symbols of security, set steadfast in the sky.

And not in the sky alone. There are "strong, old promises" in each heart as well. Stars in each darkened life—white stars of courage, tenderness and simple faith that all our human weakness and wickedness cannot dim. In each of us, no matter how damned or desperate, some shining star.

Stars in the night—stars in our hearts—and above the pointing finger of a spire. Man's hand reaching out to the good and the God he cannot see. Man's faith bridging the night.

Face your night and know it for the weak thing it is—a brief, passing shadow. Reach out of your night toward the beauty around you, the beauty within you. Believe in that starry beauty. Believe, in spite of all bitterness and bewilderment, that love and faith and gallant courage to do still exist . . . and still will carry on . . . until the sunrise!

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Assorted Co-Respondent

Not every co-respondent in a divorce case is a blonde. Not every rival for a man's affections is another woman.

* * *

Sometimes it's a pinochle deck, sometimes it's a boat, sometimes it's a lodge and sometimes it's an innocent little trout-stream that happens to be His Big Heart Interest.

* * *

A woman recently named her husband's yacht as the wicked Jezebel who had stolen his affections and on whom he was lavishing all his time and money. Maybe that's why a yacht is always called "she." Ever notice the caressing, affectionate tone in which a man speaks of "HER," when he boasts of his yacht?

* * *

Many a bored wife could name a golf course or a bag of clubs as the guilty co-respondent who lured away her husband's love and most of his attention.

Thousands of women could sue an office desk for alienation of their husband's affections. And there was a time when a stock-ticker was a more dangerous rival to a woman's happiness than any blonde in a beauty chorus.

* * *

No author's wife ever lived who was not jealous of his pen or his typewriter or even of the imaginary characters in which he was temporarily absorbed.

There is many a wife who envies her husband's motor car all the loving care and tenderness that are lavished on it. And many a beautiful woman would give her eye-teeth to be able to shoot up all the ponies in her husband's race stable, or to sue them and collect damages.

The fact is, every normal man has more than one love in his life; and his wife is lucky if her "rival" happens to be a hobby. Or a nice healthy sport.

* * *

A passion for fishing may take a man away from his home for a week at a time, in the spring—but it also takes his mind off other women. It's a better sign to see a married man spending his money on fancy "flies" and trick fishing rods than on fancy neckties and tricky clothes.

* * *

A man without a few avocations—a few side-lines—soon becomes a mere money-making machine, about as interesting to chat with as a cash-register. Or else he spends his spare time getting into mischief, getting into flirtations or getting fat.

* * *

So, if your husband has a grand passion for a boat, a car, a horse, a game—for anything except a woman or a bottle—don't regard it as a co-respondent, but as a friend in disguise.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Old Gold

In city by city
And town by town,
Through street after street
Men go up and down.
Through the whole wide land
At each home they ask:
"Have you any old gold?"
What a curious task!

They are buying the chain
On youth's neck that gleamed,
They are buying the dream
Which a lover dreamed.
They are weighing a locket
That held a loved face.
They are buying a cross
From a source none can trace.

They are getting a mother's Marriage band
And the ring she took
From a dead child's hand.
It will all be purged
Of its dross and dreams
And hidden away

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

If you are middle-aged or older, very likely you misjudge the young people of the present time.

Because their actions are more free and easy in many ways than those of your younger days, you conclude that they are not morally as good.

If a young lady smoked a cigaret in your day, she was said to be of unsavory reputation.

That has now come to be a unjust classification.

You remember the girls of your younger years would become embarrassed if the ruffles or even the hem of their petticoats showed below their dresses.

You compare this sort of modesty with the girls of today whose short skirt period has made them less leg conscious.

Why should the display of legs seem any worse to you than the low cut and sleeveless dresses worn by the girls of bygone days?

WISE WORDS

Weakness of mind is the only fault incapable of correction.

We are never so happy, or so unhappy as we imagine.

Pocket Veto Story Found to Be Silly

By James T. Williams, Jr.

CONTRARY to the silly story broadcast from Washington by overzealous propagandists of the New Deal, President Roosevelt has not abolished the pocket veto. Nor has he, as these yarns allege, "established a new precedent" by issuing a statement giving his reasons for disapproving a dozen or more bills passed in the closing hours of the late and unlamented Seventy-third Congress.

The veto power which the President possesses is found in Article 1, Section 7, of the federal Constitution. It gives the President 10 days, not counting Sundays, in which to sign or veto a bill. If he does not act within that time and Congress is still in session, the bill becomes a law without his signature.

If Congress has adjourned within the 10 days' period, and he is thereby prevented from returning a bill, it fails of enactment, regardless of whether he writes his disapproval upon it or gives out a statement of his reasons for refusing the approval.

This is what has come to be known as a "pocket veto." The first President to exercise this Constitutional power was Andrew Jackson, nearly 100 years ago. At the close of the short session of the Twenty-second Congress President Jackson delayed sending a veto message to the Capitol, and Congress adjourned on March 4, 1833.

* * *

Supreme Court Upholds Veto

THE BILL thus given a pocket veto by "Old Hickory" was one which had to do with federal revenues raised from the sale of public lands. Congress in this bill ordered that the proceeds from these sales be distributed among the states and this Jackson stopped by this initial pocket veto.

The validity of the pocket veto was challenged in recent years by a number of lawyers, with some Senatorial encouragement.

But the United States Supreme Court unanimously upheld the decision of the Federal Court of Claims that a pocket veto is valid in the case of any session of Congress.

The contention that a distinction could be made between a pocket veto going into effect on adjournment of a first or intermediate session and one going into effect on adjournment of a final session was unanimously rejected by the great tribunal.

Congress, having adjourned, the bills which President Roosevelt declined to approve thereby received a pocket veto, there being in session no Congress to which they could be returned. It is within the privilege of a President to exercise the pocket veto in silence or by issuing public statement giving his reasons. Sometimes one course is followed and sometimes another.

But no president can abolish the pocket veto because no president can amend the federal constitution. In fact the amending process is entirely independent of the president.

* * *

How Constitution Can Be Changed

TO AMEND the constitution, the proposed amendment must first receive a two-thirds vote in each of the two houses in order to be submitted. Then it goes from congress via the secretary of state to the governors of the several states, who transmit it to the legislaures for action. In order to become effective three-fourths of the state legislatures must ratify it.

Of course, President Roosevelt is not to blame for the broadcast that he had abolished a constitutional power of his exalted office. He knows that he cannot do that.

He knows that Congress cannot delegate to the president the amending power because that power is shared by the congress with the several states.

It is not helpful to the President or his administration for the people of the United States to be told that he had attempted to exercise a power that is not his under the constitution.

This country is not hospitable to the idea of increasing the power of the President beyond the limit fixed by the framers of the federal constitution.

And the last power the American people would be willing to delegate to the President would be that of amending any part of the constitution that did not suit his pleasure, be it the pocket veto or the bill of rights.

Sailing Vessels Hold Their Own in Australian Grain Trade —What Happened to Pure Food Baby?

By Edwin C. Hill

BETWEEN Port Victoria in South Australia and Falmouth in England lie 16,000 miles of ocean, and this is the course for the race of the grain ships, the most glorious adventure still left to the sea. They are on the way now, the last of the windjammers, about 20 in all, each loaded down with 5,000 tons of grain; decks awash in the storms and cold of Cape Horn, idling in the equatorial calms and plowing through the weeds of the Sargasso Sea.

It would take the brush of a Winslow Homer to do justice to the picture of one of these great four-masted barques under full sail, cutting its way through the South Atlantic at 14 knots an hour.

To put it into words, none does as well as Alan Villiers, historian of the seven seas, who, himself, has made six trips around the Horn. Last year he was part owner and third officer of the Parma, which won the grain race in the record-breaking time of 83 days. Describing the fleet in an article in the Elks' Magazine, Mr. Villiers wrote:

"Not one of these ships has an engine. They have no wireless. They have no power of any kind, no means of keeping in touch with the shore. They call at no ports. They sail the whole long, lonely route, away from the steamship lanes and far from the land. Blown only by God's wind, it is a hard road they sail, and it is a trying life for the boys who sail them.

"Yet this race of the dying windjammers is just about the most romantically interesting thing left in the world today. You don't sit in the galley and look at the foaming seas; you do not stand in a steam-heated wheelhouse to steer the ship. She steers by hand from an open whale-backed wheelhouse, and only carries a wheelhouse in order that the stormy seas may not drown her struggling helmsmen. Here, in this last remnant of the old square riggers sailing around Cape Horn, true adventure may still be found."

Yes, gone forever are the days of the clipper ships of the United States and England, the days of the tensest of rivalry on the oceans and of the races from China with the cargoes of tea and silks. Steam and power have left only the Australian grain cargo to the windjammers, and the other maritime nations have left the carrying of it to the Finns.

Gustaf Erikson Owns Most Windjammers

ONE, Gustaf Erikson, of Mariehamn, Finland, has a virtual monopoly in the trade, owning no less than 20 sailing vessels. He began as a cook, and cooks command what is good pay on the sea. His ships carry most of the Australian grain, and the growers send part of their crop by sailing ships because it gives them several months of free storage in addition to cheap transportation.

The square riggers are old, but they are not the ships for old men. They are manned by striplings, each with a crew of about 25 boys scarcely out of their teens; with a staff of officers whose ages rarely average 32 years. The master gets $60 a month, the hands $2.50, whereas the apprentices pay for the privilege.

A New York boy, Hilgard Pannes, 19 years old, was on the record breaking run of the Parma last year, and talking of the record making trip, he said:

"We tore along with a bone in her mouth all the way. We had rough weather, and below the Horn it was cold, but it was not too rough. The old man (being his 40-year-old captain) hardly ever went to bed; slept with one eye open on a settee in the chart room and he kept us moving. We started a seam once or twice but we lost no sails and had no accidents . . . 57 days to the Horn and 72 to the Equator, I think."

Baby Prodigy Makes Good

THE casual reader of a newspaper on March 18, 1914, may have ran across, in an obscure corner, an item bearing the dateline of Washington, which read as follows:

"John Preston Wiley, of this city, has had the unique honor conferred on him of being pronounced the finest specimen of a male infant known to art. Smithsonian Institution experts say he measures at every point the ideal development and proportions.

"Every curve and dimple of his anatomy has been preserved for the wonder and admiration of the present and coming generations by careful modeling from plaster casts.

"John Preston Wiley is the younger son of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, the champion of pure food, and is now three weeks old."

So ended that dispatch, but the country was to hear a lot more about this baby. The father had his opinions on food and diet and never hesitated to express them, and to fight for his ideals and ideas against even Presidents and Congresses. Almost single-handed he wrote the Pure Food laws, and when this baby came along to him in his seventieth year, he proceeded to tell the mothers how an infant should be raised.

And the mothers listened to him, too, with the result that any number of thousands of men and women are alive today. For Dr. Wiley insisted that his baby have the milk from a healthy cow and that the milk and the milk bottles be sterilized. This is old stuff now but it was not then, as the infant mortality records will attest.

After two years of this, the boy was left to himself, out of the spotlight. Most of my readers, I imagine, read the newspapers of May 31, 1934, where under the dateline of Annapolis, Maryland, they learned that Rear Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, presented diplomas to four hundred and sixty-three midshipmen of the United States Naval Academy and that the No. 1 man of the class to receive the gilded sword was John Preston Wiley, of Washington, D. C.

The baby of 1914 is a young man of twenty now, six feet two inches tall, weighs one hundred and seventy five pounds, a lacrosse player, a boxer, an honor student—and one infant prodigy who has lived up to promise.
